Report from the

GENERAL PRESIDENT

- We reassert our jurisdiction in ceiling systems during '64
- Increased work among International representatives during year
- Cooperation throughout the union anticipates prosperous '65

AS WE START THE NEW YEAR, 1965, I would like to review briefly the past year's activities, accomplishments, and other events of interest affecting our International Union:

In January, 1964, the honor of being elected by our Executive Council, as General President, was bestowed upon me. I said then, and I want to say again, I feel this is the highest honor to be awarded to any lather. On September 17, 1964, at our Twenty-Fifth Convention, you, the membership, proved your confidence in me by electing me to the full term as General President.

One of my first suggestions to you to strengthen our International Union was to work out ways and means to establish business agents in the field on a full-time basis to service the area properly and to protect our trade jurisdiction. I also suggested that apprentices should be trained in sufficient number to man the jobs with skilled, qualified and competent lathers, which is another means to protect our trade jurisdiction. By February, 1964, this program was being carried out by a number of local unions, and, at the present time, there are other areas establishing working dues for this purpose. Eventually, we hope there will be a full-time business agent in every area.

At that time we were also in the process of setting up forms for submitting Apprenticeship Fund payments to the LIU. These forms are now available and have been sent to all local unions participating in this program.

In the February issue of The Lather we informed you of the passage of H.R. 6041 by the House of Representatives without amendment by a roll call vote of 357 to 50. This bill pertained to the inclusion of fringe benefits in wage predeterminations for Federally-financed work. This bill was signed into law by Lyndon B. Johnson, President of the United States, on Thursday, July 2, 1964, at 11:15 a. m., which was a momentous occasion in the annals of labor.

THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL of the LIU met February 3-7, 1964, and the minutes of this meeting were published in the February issue of The Lather. One subject of great importance taken up at this meeting was the proposed Agreement on Ceiling Systems between our International Union and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters dated June 10, 1963. The Executive Council referred this matter to the convention for consideration. However, while this matter was referred to the next convention, a meeting of the two committees from the Lathers and the Carpenters was held at the Hamilton Hotel in Washington, D. C., on March 10, 1964. Brothers Stan Arnold, Harold Mills and Clarence Gariss served on the committee for our International Union. However, due to a business commitment, Brother Arnold was unable to attend this meeting. The committee of the Carpenters was reluctant to discuss anything further regarding the proposed agreement until they found out what was going to be done with respect to the enforcement of the proposed agreement, and, after an all-day discussion by the members of the committees present, they agreed that a meeting should be arranged by the chairman of the two committees for a later date, when full committees could be present.

Consequently, after careful study of the records at Headquarters, I directed a letter to M. A. Hutcheson, President of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and

REPORT FROM THE PRESIDENT

Joiners of America, advising him that the records made it clear that this proposed agreement on Ceiling Systems between our respective organizations dated June 10, 1963, was never in force or effect because it was never approved by the Executive Council of the LIU, being rejected by our Executive Council by a vote of five members against the proposed agreement and four members in favor of the proposed agreement. The communications between President Hutcheson and myself were reproduced in The Lather. President Hutcheson informed me that holding further meetings would be meaningless in view of our position. I felt future meetings could prove beneficial and so informed President Hutcheson and further informed him that we stood ready and willing at all times to meet with either him or through representatives of the respective organizations to further explore matters of mutual concern. Of course, there were no further meetings, and at the Twenty-Fifth Convention of the LIU, the proposed agreement on Ceiling Systems between the Lathers and Carpenters dated June 10, 1963, was rejected. As of this date, we are all working towards regaining the work in many areas which comes under our trade jurisdiction, but it will take persistent action on the part of each and every member, local union, council and international representative. We are gaining, and the spirit you have shown in the past months definitely proves that this fight for our trade jurisdiction will be carried on to the fullest extent.

DEPUTY REPRESENTATIVES were appointed in March of 1964 to service the States of Hawaii and Alaska. These two states were never before represented in this capacity. Brother W. J. Turner services Alaska, and Brother Richard Fonseca services Hawaii, and both are doing an outstanding job. Other additions to the staff of International Representatives servicing the various regions are: Brothers M. E. Ferguson, Region No. 5; R. A. Georgine, Region No. 3; C. H. White, Region No. 4; Charles Brodeur, Region No. 6; and Walton C. Parker, Region No. 7. Appointed as Deputy International Representatives assisting in the various regions on special assignments are: Brothers Kenneth Edwards, P. L. Lovett, Michael O'Laughlin, Francis W. Horan, C. F. Michel, Donald Richter, and Edwin Dunn (in Canada). Also, Brother Clarence Gariss served in this capacity until recently but is not active temporarily upon his doctor's orders. Also Brother Julius Sole served as Deputy International Representative until his untimely death on Friday, October 16, 1964.

The people in Alaska suffered one of the most disastrous earthquakes in history. Brother Turner, Deputy Representative, reported that Lathers of Local 529 were all right, with little property damage and with apparently only one injury, which was to the wife of Brother

Owen Clark, No. 29023, who was injured in a car parked in front of the J. C. Penney Company. Brother Turner made one statement in his report which is well worth repeating at this time: "As we drive down the streets and survey the damage, we are proud to belong to the Lathing and Plastering trades. The superiority of Lath and Plaster shows in every instance."

AS A MEMBER of the Board of Trustees of the General Pension Fund and General Pension Plan of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union, I called a meeting of the Board of Trustees, in accordance with Article III, Section 8 of the Declaration of Trust, elected Employer Trustee Hoyle Gilbert as Secretary of the Board and me as Chairman of the Board.

The Board of Trustees has held two other meetings since that time—both being very constructive and beneficial. This Fund is growing constantly, and we have many new local unions joining the plan. In my report in the November, 1964, issue of The Lather there appears a brief financial statement on the Pension Fund, and some other statistics on the Fund appear in the report of the General Secretary-Treasurer, J. Earl Ferguson in this same issue. Brother James L. Connolly was appointed as a member of the Board of Trustees.

At their meeting on the 24th of July, 1964, the Executive Committee of the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association considered a letter which I had directed to Mr. Robert Maidt, then president of the Association, in which I asked the possibilities of having his Association endorse the General Pension Plan and General Pension Fund of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union on a national level, and as a result of this they adopted the following motion: "The CPLIA Committee endorses the National Pension Plan in principle and requests that a joint committee be named by the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union and the CPLIA to administer and further the efforts of a joint national pension plan." Brothers Dave Richardson, J. Earl Ferguson and Walton Parker have been appointed to serve on this committee representing the LIU. At this time we would again like to urge that you make every effort to have this clause included in your collective bargaining agreements.

REPRESENTATIVES of both Contractors and Labor met during the time the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association held their Board Meetings and Committee Meetings in May, 1964, for the purpose of discussing the reactivation of the Promotion Program. The reactivation of the new Promotional Program is now in full force, and we ask that you make every effort to participate in this program through your collective bargaining agreements. This Program is progressing, but it needs the support of everyone to be a success.

During the month of August, 1964, anticipation reached an all-time high for everyone planning to attend our own Twenty-Fifth Convention, being held in New York City at the Hotel Astor. Then, with September, the time we all thought so far away was upon us, we were in the midst of the Convention. We were acting on issues of vital importance to our very existence as an International Union. . . . We were attending the World's Fair as guests of the Host Local Union No. 46. . . . We were attending an exquisite banquet, again as guests of the Host Local Union No. 46. I know that everyone attending these affairs thoroughly enjoyed them and join me in sincerely thanking the members of Local Union No. 46 for their efforts to entertain the delegates and their families attending the Convention.

In the midst of all the festivities and excitement of the Convention we did not overlook the fact that this Convention also marked the retirement of two members of our organization who had served our International Union faithfully for many years: John P. Cook, #21504, who was enrolled as a journeyman lather in Local 72, September 29, 1919. He became a Vice President March 20, 1936 and served as International Representative of LIU from June 15, 1953, until June 1, 1962. He received his 25-year card July, 1959. Lionel Brodeur, #32799, who was enrolled as a journeyman lather December 16, 1926 in Local 95, to which Local 492 became successor. Brother Brodeur worked at the trade out of several local unions but mainly through Local 53, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, of which he is presently a member in good standing. He became a Vice President July 14, 1947 and served as International Representative of the LIU from April 5, 1954, until October 25, 1963. He received his 25-year card July, 1959.

I know that each and every member joins me in extending thanks to both Brother Cook and Brother Brodeur for their many years of service to our International Union and also best wishes that they may spend many restful and happy years in retirement.

THE TWENTY-FIFTH CONVENTION of the LIU brought about changes in many ways, all of which we feel are for the best. J. Earl Ferguson, long-standing member of the Executive Council, was elected as General Secretary-Treasurer. Brother Ferguson and I have pledged ourselves to see that the LIU, its local unions, councils and members shall receive every service possible. We have to date done so and fully intend to fulfill this obligation to the best of our ability.

We have five new members on the Executive Council; Brothers E. R. Baldwin, C. H. White, R. J. Hamilton, A. H. Burton, and H. J. Sheerin. Incumbents re-elected were M. A. Rizzo and C. J. Haggerty.

You gave your vote of confidence in these Brothers when you put them in office, and we know they will fulfill their obligations to the best of their ability.

I have tried in this report to mention briefly the highlights of the past year, and I would like at this time to repeat a portion of our Holiday Message from the December, 1964, issue of The Lather, which states in part: ". . . May you have blessings in abundance to count during this joyous Yuletide; and as you count them, whisper a prayer for the future that we may build, with courage and confidence, a better world for our fellow men and for our families—in peace and good will."

I would also like to say at this time how very much we appreciate the cooperation you have given us in the past and are giving us each and every day. We want to assure you that every action we take and our every thought is only in the best interests of our International Union, its local unions, state, district and provincial councils and the entire membership, and our only request is that you continue to give us your cooperation, and together we will build our International Union to the heights it so rightly deserves and to the heights we are capable of achieving.

Sincerely and fraternally,

Sal Maso

DECISIONS OF THE GENERAL PRESIDENT

Alsid Dorion, No. 52614, and David MacLean, No. 59520 vs. Local 260—Brother Alsid Dorion and Brother David MacLean appealed against the action of Local 360 in fining each of them $50 for violation of Section 107 of the LIU Constitution. After carefully considering all evidence submitted to this office, the General President found these brothers not guilty due to extenuating circumstances and rescinded the fines.

Report from the

GENERAL SECRETARY-TREASURER

THE DAWN OF A NEW YEAR is with us. With this dawn, may I suggest that all members adopt the following pledge:

- I will attend all meetings regularly.*
- I will participate in local union affairs.*
- I will work for the welfare of all.*
- I will advocate and practice good workmanship.*
- I will abide by and enforce the by-laws.*
- I will work conscientiously if appointed to a committee.*
- I will offer constructive criticism when necessary.*
- I will compliment officers on a job well done.*
- I will at all times protect our trade jurisdiction.*
- I will advocate promotion of our trade.*
- I will produce a fair day's work.*
- I will practice fraternalism with the slogan "The injury to one is the concern of all."*
- I will contribute generously to help a needy Brother.*
- In an election, I will support friends of labor.*
- I will pay any dues when due.*

I am sure if all members adhere to the above, the future of the local unions will not be in jeopardy.

AFL-CIO LEADERS have reason to hope that President Johnson will support labor's top priority legislative goal—the repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act. This is the provision of the law which makes so-called "right to work" laws possible in the states. It's a provision which had applied a heel to labor's neck in 20 states and has threatened similar oppression in several others.

The Building and Construction Trades Unions of the AFL-CIO have worked year after year, since passage of the Taft-Hartley Law in 1947, to obtain repeal of Section 14(b). This is the major goal of each Washington legislative conference of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department.

Now there is more hope than ever before that this portion of the law will be repealed . . . if not in 1965, at least during the Johnson Administration.

The only handicap in this session of Congress may be that the President places more emphasis on Medicare for the aged and Federal aid to education—two other goals of organized labor.

AFL-CIO leaders believe that a majority of the Congress is committed to repeal of the compulsory open shop.

"I am sure that the President is going to support the Democratic Party platform," AFL-CIO President George Meany has told reporters, and he noted that repeal of Section 14(b) was in the 1964 Democratic platform.

This point was also stressed by Presidential Press Secretary George Reedy, who said that the Chief Executive had "made that clear" and that Johnson's commitment to the Democratic platform was "implicit in the discussion" he had with union leaders.

THE 1965 CONSTRUCTION OUTLOOK

Total industry growth of 3.5 percent, to a new record of $50 billion for contract awards will be tempered by declines in some types of building.

THE 1965 OUTLOOK for the construction industry is good. Across the board, experts are predicting a 3.5 per cent increase in contract awards during the new year, for a total dollar value close to $50 billion. However, the buoyant general trend will not be reflected in all categories of construction. There are some soft spots, which are likely to drop off from last year's level, and some forecasters are uncertain about what the second half of 1965 will mean to business-oriented construction.

Helping to boost the construction picture right now is the optimism shared by consumers and businessmen. The economy is riding the longest-lived upswing since World War II. Wage-earners have been taking more money home in their pay envelopes, and the men who manage the production facilities are planning to invest more money to keep consumers supplied with goods, at least for a while. Total employment, although far short of the ideal, remains high in comparison with the past.

Why the caution, then, about the 1965 business picture? Some experts think there are signs that the boom may be softening. For one thing, the price of raw materials—basic commodities like steel—is edging upward faster than the price rise for consumer goods. Sooner or later, consumer goods will reflect the upswing, which could mean less spending power for the people.

Also, people are increasing their indebtedness faster than their take-home pay. In growing numbers, people are spending the cash values of their life insurance policies, and refinancing their homes to raise even more cash. The extent of this kind of credit expansion has some of the financial experts worried. If continued too long, and too fast, recession could result.

However, the situation is not critical yet, and the construction industry forecasters are reasonably confident of continued growth. And even if there is a business slump in the second half of the year, only part of the construction industry will be affected. The great amount of construction now being generated by Federal programs—urban renewal, education—streets and highways—would likely continue, perhaps even be increased as anti-recession measures.

Urban renewal has become a major prop to the construction industry. Since 1949, when it was initiated, Federal stimulus has produced programs for rehabilitation in 770 of the nation's cities. By the end of 1963,

How It Stacks Up

For most categories of construction, the trend is up. The strongest segments of the construction industry in the immediate future are:

GOING UP

- Single-Family Residential
- Streets and Highways
- Commercial
- Industrial
- Social and Recreational
- Educational

HOLDING STEADY

- Hospitals and Institutions
- Religious Buildings
- Apartments

NOT SO GOOD

- Public Buildings
- Hotels and Motels

the Federal Government's outlay had been $1.3 billion, private investment close to $6 billion.

One of the best educated guesses about the 1965 construction picture is the F. W. Dodge Corporation's year-end predictions. This year, the forecasters are predicting contract dollar value gains for:

- House building—up 5 per cent to $15.1 billion.
- Streets and highways—up 4 per cent to $5.3 billion.
- Commercial construction—up 3 per cent to $4.6 billion.
- Educational building—up 5 per cent to $2.8 billion.
- Manufacturing construction — up 5 per cent to $2.8 billion.
- Social and recreational buildings—up 4 per cent, for a total of $625 million.

Expected to show no change in contract award totals for 1965 are:

- Hospitals and institutions — steady at $1.75 billion.
- Religious buildings—holding at $825 million.
- Apartments—beginning to rise out of the current slump, for a 1965 total of $5.4 billion, equal to this year.

On the decline:

- Public buildings—down 3 per cent to $800 million.
- Non-housekeeping residential—such as hotels and motels, down 2 per cent to $1.3 billion.

One previous soft spot, residential building, looks better. F. W. Dodge's President, Wallace F. Traendly, said recently that the recent housing decline looks like a temporary setback, tied up with an apartment market that was "running out of steam." During the housing boom of the early sixties, influenced by the sudden increase in new family formations, new living quarters were heavily committed to rental space for the young.

Right now, the housing industry is in a dip, but the outlook is for a 3 per cent increase in contract awards, with apartments moving ahead in the early part of next year. One and two-family home starts are not expected to increase much in number, but the dollar value of each home built will be on the rise.

With general improvement in standards of living has come an expansion of leisure time, and the need for facilities catering to its use. In the coming year, social and recreational buildings contract awards are expected to climb by 4 per cent, with a total commitment of over half a billion dollars.

Riding the population explosion along with housing and recreational building, educational construction has an even better prospect for growth next year, with a shift in emphasis toward college level facilities. Needed are college classrooms, laboratories, libraries and related structures—all more expensive to build than 4-wall classrooms thrown up in the 50's for the baby boom. Provided with an extra fillip by recent Federal aid programs, educational construction is forecast for a 5 per cent increase in contract dollar value in 1965, to a total of $3.8 billion.

Typical of the state educational programs is that of New York, where a current state college system enrollment of 88,000 is expected to come close to doubling in 6 years. A total of $1 billion has been voted for college construction. In New York City alone, the seven state-aided colleges anticipate a 6-year increase in enrollment from 7,000 to 25,000!

By the end of this year, close to one-third of New York's billion dollar kitty will have been obligated, with some completed and some under construction, guaranteeing a year-long boom.

Until the arrival of the mid-1965 point where "uncertainty begins" in the economic outlook, according to Mr. Traendly, construction to satisfy the needs of business and industry will continue to climb. He hazards a 12-month forecast for a 5 per cent gain in contracts for industrial facilities.

Stores and other mercantile buildings are expected to continue their present rate of growth. 1965 contract awards for this category are expected to be up 3 per cent, with stores alone climbing by 5.

The total contract value for commercial buildings is forecast at $4.6 billion, and $3 billion for manufacturing.

Office construction is the one soft spot already noticeable in the business category. Contract award projections for 1965 call for continued decline—at least in the first half of the year, with a possibility of an upturn in the second half if business continues good.

In Federal and state government construction, continued sharp increases for highways, sewer and water projects are expected to more than make up for weakness in other categories. Federal aid programs keep funds flowing for much-needed roads, and F. W. Dodge predicts a 3.5 per cent increase in street and highway contract awards for 1965, to about $5 billion.

Public administration and office buildings will be down about 3 per cent, for a contract value of $800 million, compared with $825 million this year. Military construction will also decline in 1965.

Regardless of the business situation, the return of Lyndon Johnson to the Presidency, backed by a Congress more favorable to the Democratic Party than any other since 1936, will go a long way toward helping to keep the construction industry confident. President Johnson shows no signs of slowing down on legislation important to construction.

With an insiders' working knowledge of Congress and exceptionally keen Presidential powers of persuasion, Johnson can be expected to translate many of his "great society" proposals such as urban renewal, aid to education, transportation assistance, into action.

For a construction industry eyeing the business future somewhat warily, the Federal Government picture is comforting. If it doesn't skirt a recession altogether, it will at least smooth out the bumps—if and when it comes.

On January 20, amid the glitter of receptions, balls and a massive parade, Johnson and Humphrey take the reins of government

The Nation Greet Its New Leaders

PRECISELY AT 12:00 NOON, January 20, the swearing-in of President Lyndon B. Johnson will begin. On a special stand constructed on the east steps of the Nation's Capitol Building, Supreme Court Chief Justice Earl Warren will administer the oath of office to Mr. Johnson. Immediately afterward, House Speaker John W. McCormack will administer the oath to Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, and the nation will march forward formally under a new administration.

Joining the new leaders on the platform will be members of a Congress primed for an exceptionally effective working relationship with the chief executive and his second-in-command. The November election, to which the inauguration is formal affirmation, not only proved the popularity of the President, it provided him with a House and Senate unmatched in Democratic strength since 1936, and perhaps never equalled in terms of cooperation. The course of legislation will not be without disagreement, but Johnson has already forged a harmony with Congress unmatched, some top-notch politicians say, in 150 years. The prospects are exceptionally promising for needed legislation. This is welcome news to the many thousands of well-wishers who have already begun to pour into the Nation's Capital city to witness, and take part in, the pomp and ceremony of an inauguration.

Some experts estimate that 8,000 or more visitors will be arriving, jamming Washington's hotels and public facilities to the limit. Many of them helped Mr. Johnson win the election, and, as is traditional, the party of the Presidents makes the stamp which marks all of the formal and informal celebrations.

The time of the swearing-in is a departure from tradition. Always before, brief salutations and prayers preceded the formal induction into office, delaying the swearing-in for 45 minutes or so. This year, the Inaugural Committee, under the chairmanship of Johnson's long-time friend and fellow Texan, Dale Miller, was concerned about a Constitutional technicality. The Constitution prescribes that the new President shall take office at 12:00 noon.

There was some reasonable question about whether the nation actually had a President, then, between mid-day and the time of the oath of office was administered. The question was resolved beyond doubt by shifting the swearing-in to number-one spot on the inauguration-day program.

After the President delivers his inaugural address, the major spectator event of the day will begin. Moving out from staging areas around the Capitol building, the inaugural parade will form itself and move down Washington's ceremonial parade route, Pennsylvania Avenue. The first unit, as is traditional, will be from the state of Texas. Then will follow Minnesota's unit, in honor of the Vice President, and the remainder of the state units, in their order of admission to the union.

In the past, the parade has often lasted past sundown. This year, the Inaugural Committee—which is responsible for handling all of the details of the inaugural events as well as raising the money for the bulk of them—has made an attempt to limit the length of the parade. Each state's share has been trimmed to one automobile for distinguished state officials, one float, and one marching unit. Even so, estimates of completion time for the parade had a way of getting longer as inauguration day came closer.

Also, the Committee hopes to inject "a more serious note" into the parade. In the past, virtually every imaginable form of parade trappings have appeared.

The President, Vice President, and a limited number of dignitaries and friends will be watching the parade from a distinctive reviewing stand in front of the White House. The most elaborate yet construction for the purpose, it is an airy, graceful pavilion protected by a roof supported on 36 delicately flared columns.

Around the President's reviewing stand, across the street, and all the way down Pennsylvania Avenue 40,000 spectators will watch the parade from specially-constructed stands. In the White House area, they were heavily-constructed lumber structures. Along the other parts of the parade route, they were mostly collapsible bleacher stands. Back at the Capitol plaza, another sea of 16,000 specially-built stands accommodated spectators watching the swearing-in.

Although the swearing-in and the parade are to provide most opportunity for the general public to observe inaugural week activities, it is only a small part of the celebration.

For a number of days before, there would be receptions, parties and balls for distinguished guests, the President and Vice President, Young Democrats, state governors, and party faithful.

After the parade comes the social pinnacle—the inaugural ball. In reality, it is a number of balls, scattered across the width of the city of Washington in several locations. The largest single ball will be held in the National Guard Armory, Washington's roofed-over floor area.

Decorations for the balls will be unusually lavish. Large hanging baskets jammed with flowers—tent-like cloth pavilions which serve as ball boxes—sculptured decorations—all focused on a theme of "America the Beautiful."

The cost of ushering in a new President and Vice President is steep. This year, the Inaugural committee estimates, the bill will be close to $1.5 billion, above the $184,000 cost of the Capitol Plaza stands which are paid for by Congressional appropriation. But surprisingly, all of this money—and more—is raised entirely by the Committee through the sale of souvenirs, and tickets to the parade.

Design Of The John F. Kennedy Grave At Arlington Announced

The president's widow, Jacqueline Kennedy, kneels at her late husband's grave in Arlington Cemetery, located across the Potomac River in Virginia. Picket fence around gravesite is temporary and will be removed from permanent memorial site.

PLANS WERE ANNOUNCED recently in Washington, D. C., for the design of the grave of the late President John F. Kennedy at Arlington National Cemetery.

The grave will lie in a small grass plot on a wooded hillside. It will be marked by a gray slate tablet in the tradition of the early Americans in New England. The Eternal Flame, lighted by Mrs. Kennedy on November 25, 1963, will remain the central symbolic feature of the design and is placed at the head of the grave. The flame will be directly along the great axis of Washington extending from the Capitol to the Lincoln Memorial and on across the Potomac River to the Custis-Lee Mansion.

The site of the grave and the walkways leading to it blend with the contours of the hillside and the national military cemetery. The approaches to the grave must accommodate as many as 50,000 visitors a day in the summer months and provide a setting for small ceremonies. Yet the design strives to preserve for each visitor a sense of intimacy and privacy.

The grave site can be seen clearly from the Lincoln Memorial. The Memorial Bridge, the symbolic link between the North and the South, leads the eye to focus on its location. The flame and a long low wall behind it denote the site. Against the imposing backdrop of the Custis-Lee Mansion it will be seen by day and night.

The visitor approaching the cemetery through the Memorial Gate at first loses sight of the grave. Then, as he moves up the walks and roads it will reappear between the oaks.

From these already existing walkways the visitor comes to an entrance area marked by a curved wall and a bench. Here official cars may be parked for formal ceremonies.

From this entrance begins a paved walk that curves upward around a mounded circle of law with granite retaining walls rising and falling with the sculptured earth. The walk is cut into the hill so as not to obstruct the view from the overlook above.

The circle of earth is gently molded to provide a formal foreshore for vistas to the grave, and its forms a setting that brings the beautiful great oak into balance in the total composition. All of the new construction is designed to blend into the existing contours of the hillside.

Where the walk curves in toward the grave, the visitor enters an elliptical terrace which serves as an overlook to the city and permits reflective pause.

Steps from the overlook lead up to the grave site, a paved rectangular space. Here the visitor leaves the curved forms of the walk and overlook with their darker granite, and he moves into the contrasting rectilinear forms of the immediate grave area. Here also the gray granite changes to white marble.

In the center of this space, slightly elevated, is the rectangular grass plot where President Kennedy is buried. Its marble frame contains a kneeling step for prayer. Within the plot is the slate marker, about 3 feet by 4½ feet in size, identifying the grave and bearing the incised inscription:

JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY

with a small cross incised above the name. It is flanked by smaller tablets marking the graves of President Kennedy's deceased children. In the grass plot, and to the rear of the tablets, emerging from a low three-pronged bronze font, is the eternal flame.

As a backdrop for the flame is the long low wall with the seal of the President of the United States cut into its surface. This is the terminal point of the design.

With the exception of the flickering and continual movement of the eternal flame, the entire scene and all objects are designed to give a sense of serenity, tranquility and rest.

The line of visitors moves around the grass plot and as they turn, the magnificent panorama of the city of Washington opens up before them. From the grave site they descend the stairs to the overlook. The Lincoln Memorial is directly ahead; the Washington Monument, the Jefferson Memorial and the Capitol dome are seen through the trees.

From the overlook, the visitor may exit quickly and then walk up to the Custis-Lee Mansion where he can look back over the grave site as well as the city.

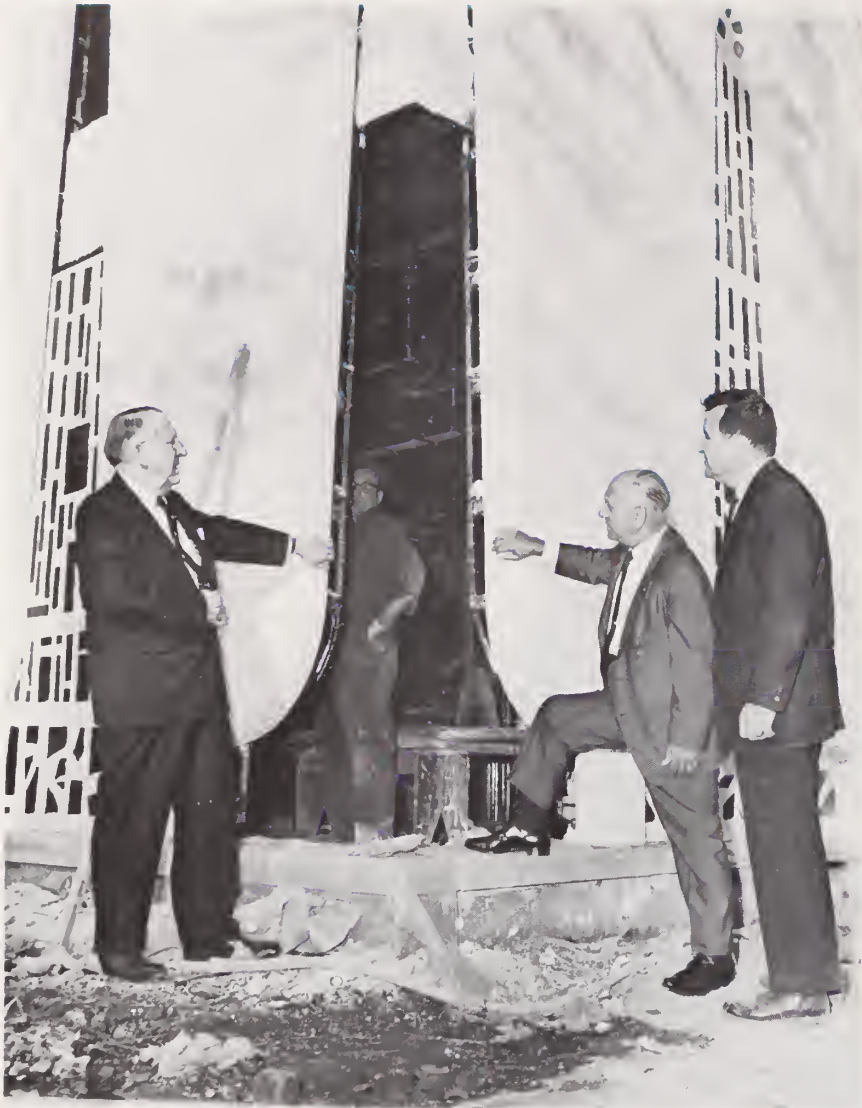

DO YOU RECOGNIZE ANY OF THESE OLD TIMERS?

Lathing Exterior Wall System

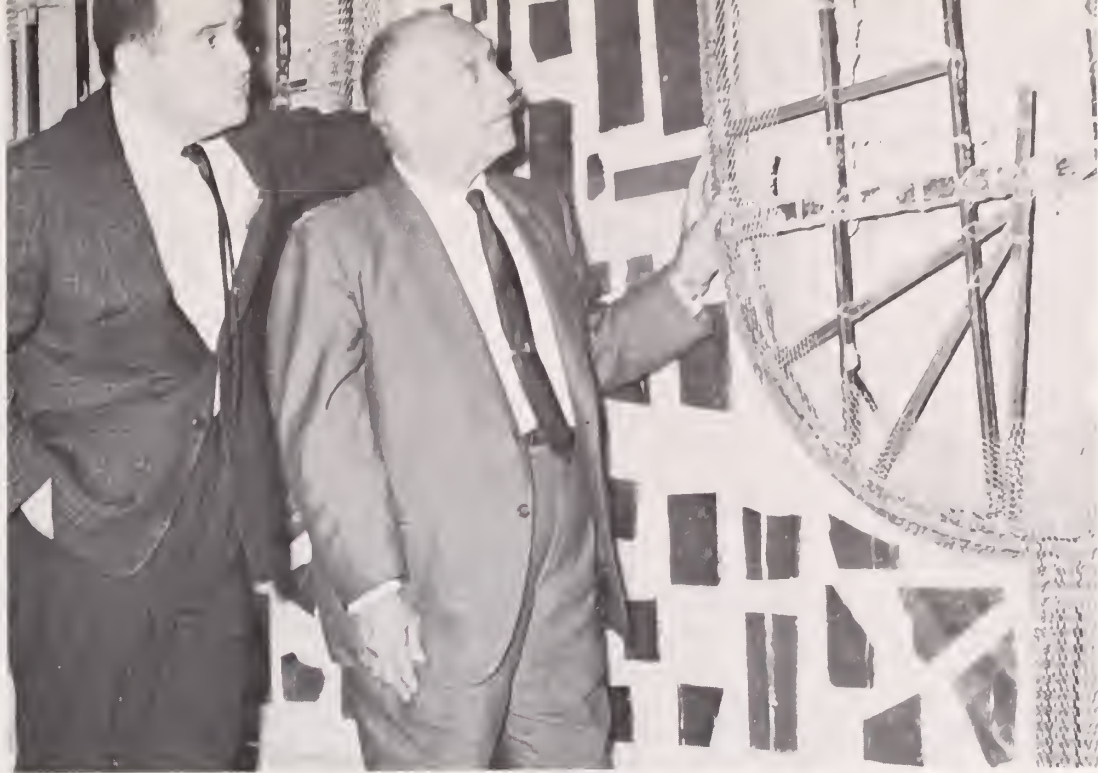

THE ST. JOHN Bosco Catholic Church, in Chicago, stands as proof of the unlimited potential and versatility of lath and plaster systems for twentieth century architectural design.

The architectural firm of Belli and Belli, Chicago, wanted a wall that would blend well with stained glass windows, yet develop a strength of 3000 PSI. They chose lath and plaster as the ideal medium.

Brother Jack Riney, lather foreman of the William A. Duguid Company and member of L.U. 74, Chicago, supervised a crew of lathers who not only finished the job in record time, but far exceeded specifications. The lath and plaster work achieved a PSI of 6000 after 28 days, and a BTU value of 1.7. The architect was satisfied by the cost savings over other methods of construction.

Lathers International President Sal Maso, who recently visited the job site with architect Anthony Belli, complimented the crew as well as foreman Riney for excellent execution of an unusual job.

Development of the application for the St. John Bosco Church was a joint effort of the architects, the Duguid Lathing and Plastering Company, and lathing and plastering experts who collaborated on the design. They included Irv Friedman, of the Lathing Foundation of Chicago, and James Hamilton, head of the Lathing Department of the Washington Trade School in Chicago.

St. Louis Lather Wins Superior Craftsmanship Award

Honored by American Institute of Architects

A difficult lath-and-plaster assembly involving skylights and a speaker baffle won for Brother Elmer Curran, St. Louis, an American Institute of Architects Superior Performance Award. Brother Curran is a member of L.U. 73, and was foreman on the job.

The challenge to Mr. Curran's professional skill was an unusually large and distinctive ceiling mounted unit for the Brith Sholom Kneseth Israel Synagogue in Richmond Heights, Missouri.

Architect Robert Elkington striving for unusual eye appeal and functional excellence, specified lath and plaster work to cope with the free-form shape of the baffle.

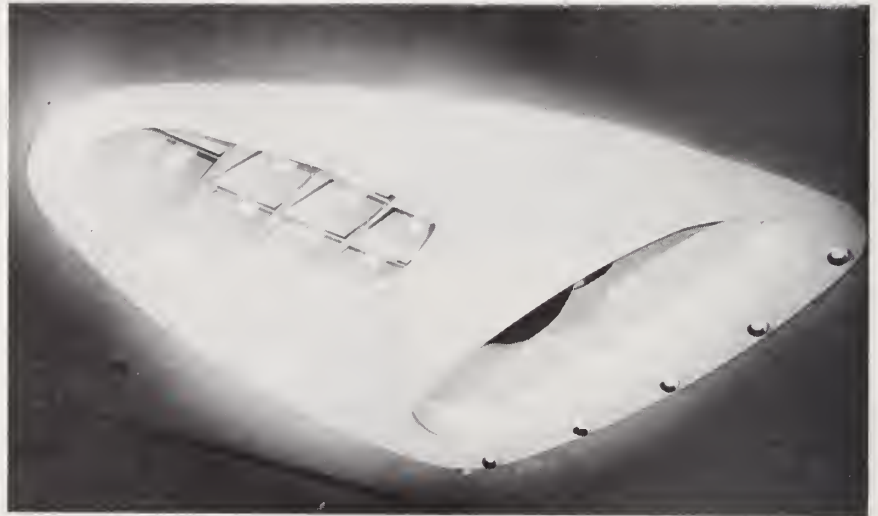

In executing the design, Mr. Curran had to exercise a great deal of individual technical judgment, as much of the work was impossible to specify precisely. Such details as locating the corner beads, expansion joints and plaster trim were handled expertly.

The award was presented October 27 at the regular meeting of the St. Louis Chapter of the American Institute of Architects. Lathing work was by Commercial Lathing Co., under General Contractor E. Wade Hankins, Clayton, Mo.

Jodoin Urges Uniform Standards Among the Canadian Provinces

The Canadian Labour Congress has urged the government to act quickly in implementing its new labour legislation.

"The principles contained in this legislation are unanimously endorsed by the members of our Executive Council," said Cloude Jodoin, CLC president.

"For many years the labour movement has urged the adoption of this type of legislation. One of its greatest values will be as an incentive to the establishment of uniform standards by the provinces. The provincial legislatures will soon be in session and we feel it is important that the legislation now before the House of Commons be adopted without delay so that it will be available for consideration by the provinces."

Medicare Adopted as Theme Of CLC 'Citizenship Month'

The Canadian Labour Congress will make medicare the theme of its Citizenship Month program in February, 1965, Cloude Jodoin, president of the CLC has announced. The labour organization's executive council, meeting in Ottawa, also decided that the Citizenship Month program should mark the start of a drive toward inauguration of health services in line with the recommendations of the Hall Commission by Canada's centennial year.

"Canada could give no better centennial birthday present to her people than assurance of full health services," Mr. Jodoin said. "The Canadian labour movement has always been in the forefront of efforts to obtain better social provisions for all people. Seldom has there been an objective which is as deserving and necessary as medicare.

"The recent intensive study made by the Royal Commission under Mr. Justice Hall has proven beyond all doubt that such a program is within our reach. At the same time the Commission has emphasized that shortages of personnel should not be used as an excuse to delay initiating programs and plans.

"We propose rallying the entire support of the labour movement toward this objective. All sections of our movement will be asked to direct their attention to medicare next February and from that point on we propose continuing a program so that with the observance of our country's centenary these long-delayed services will be within the reach of every Canadian."

Immigrants to Canada Up In First Half of 1964

Immigrants to Canadian numbered 51,323 in the first half of 1964, up from 41,444 in the same period last year, the Department of Citizenship and Immigration reported in November. Of the total, 17,546 arrived in the first quarter of the year, 33,777 in the second quarter.

Of the 51,323 immigrants, 26,219 were destined for the labour force, compared with 21,360 in the same period in 1963. Of these, 8,764 were in the manufacturing, mechanical and construction category, and 4,676 were in the professional and technical class.

Immigration from the United States totalled 4,881, compared with 4,365 in the first half of 1963.

Rodeo Cowboys Discuss Plans For Nationwide Closed Shop

In Calgary, Alberta, the cowboys' union debated whether to seek a nationwide closed shop. Known for 20 years as the Cowboys Protective Association, the organization last week changed its name to the Canadian Rodeo Cowboys Association and decided to recruit all professional rodeo cowboys in the country. The cowboys' union bargains collectively with managements on the amount of prize money and also for injury insurance, the two issues that most concern the bareback riders and bullthrowers.

Government Pension Experts Seek Uniformity in Private Plans

At a recent meeting in Toronto, government pension experts agreed to set up an interprovincial committee to develop Canada-wide uniformity in portable private pension plans. Private employer pension systems have been operating virtually without control since the Government bowed out in 1958 due to constitutional problems. As a result, employers can make pension promises without regard to their capacity or ability to meet the pension obligations. Goal of the new committee is to present a model draft bill for consideration by Jan. 1, 1966.

FOUNDING OF THE FEDERATION OF ORGANIZED TRADES & LABOR UNIONS

The founding of the FOTLU — the Federation of Trades & Labor Unions took place in November, 1881, in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. This initial meeting was attended by 107 delegates including leaders of eight national trade unions. Among these leaders was Samuel Gompers, then President of the Cigar Makers International Union.

This meeting was important because it brought together important union leaders of the day who commanded more than local influence. The meeting also resulted in an organization which was destined later to become one of the more important labor organizations in American history — the American Federation of Labor. While the Convention was not large, the forces set into motion justify classifying this Pittsburgh meeting as a landmark of labor.

700 times a day a defective child is born to bitter disappointment and a woman's tears.

It is the tragic truth that one in every ten American families experiences the suffering caused by the birth of a defective child.

Working together through the March of Dimes we can do so much to stop this heartbreak and anguish. You can help by giving to the March of Dimes to support research and treatment.

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

UNDER DATE OF JANUARY 14, 1965, a letter was directed to all Local Unions, State, District and Provincial Councils. A copy of this letter was sent to the President, Secretary and Business Agent(s) of each local union together with a copy of a "Bulletin" which had been sent out by the Carpenters International Union.

I am sure your officers will see that the information contained in these communications is passed on to each and every member of your Local Union because the Bulletin very clearly shows the problem existing with the Carpenters concerning our Trade Jurisdiction. It also clearly shows the type of propaganda being circulated, which is the reason we are constantly urging you to get out in the field and police your jurisdiction and see that our members are assigned to and perform the work which properly belongs to us. You will also realize why we keep repeating that we cannot relax our efforts to protect our trade jurisdiction for one minute.

I had the pleasure of visiting throughout Canada during the latter part of November, and first part of December, 1964. Among the many discoveries I made during this visit was that the potential in Canada is tremendous for our trade and industry. Our members in Canada proved to me beyond any shadow of doubt that they are true trade unionists and that they are ready and willing to assert any steps necessary to protect our trade jurisdiction. Soon after my return from this trip I received a letter from the Western Canadian District Council of Lathers, stating their feelings with respect to my visit and they asked that their letter be published in THE LATHER. This letter appears on pg. 6 of this issue. Letters such as this are most heartening. The only regretful part is that so much time has been wasted . . . that these people have not received the support they needed and so rightfully deserved long before this time.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES of the General Pension Fund and General Pension Plan held a meeting January 6-7, 1965. A picture of the Board of Trustees taken at this meeting appears on page 2 of this issue of THE LATHER.

A number of very important issues were taken up at this meeting, and acted upon, which will definitely be beneficial to not only the General Pension Fund itself, but also to the participating Local Unions and their members. The Ostheimer Company was employed to perform an actuarial study of the Plan and Fund. Such studies are necessary periodically to determine the possibilities of increasing the benefits offered by the Plan and to determine other factors pertaining to the Plan. You have probably received a letter regarding this study sent out under date of January 22, 1965, directed to all Local Unions regardless of whether or not they are participating in the Plan. The letter was sent out in accordance with the request of the Ostheimer Company because in many instances a local union participating in the Pension Plan does not have the proper wording in their working agreement. Therefore, you should fill out the questionnaire included in the letter you received and return it to the Pension Fund Office immediately.

After careful consideration, the Board of Trustees appointed James C. Waddell as Administrator for the General Pension Fund and Plan. Hereafter all correspondence and payments to the General Pension Fund should be directed to Mr. Waddell, Administrator, General Pension Fund, 6530 New Hampshire Avenue, Takoma Park, Maryland.

Presentations were made to the Board of Trustees by various companies with respect to the investment of the money in the General Pension Fund. After careful consideration the Board of Trustees selected Manufacturers Hanover Trust Company of New York, to handle these investments.

We are very please with the increase in the number

Union Busters Suffer Setback In Indiana

THE "right-to-work" boys—those members of management, chambers of commerce, and the like—who want state and local laws passed which will restrict or deny the right of workers to enjoy union shop agreements, suffered a surprising setback in Indiana last month, as that state repealed its own "right to work" law.

Indiana follows the lead of Louisiana and a small group of other states which have turned thumbs down on efforts to wreck unions through such restrictive legislation.

And by its action, the Hoosier State pulls itself out of the ranks of those states which have passed such laws. Now there are 19 in all. The map shown on this page indicates the states which still have the so-called "right-to-work" laws. (If your state is one of them, you and your local unions should be working to get the law repealed.)

The Indiana Senate voted 38-12 to repeal the eight-year-old law prohibiting union shop agreements. The 35 Senate Democrats were joined by three of the 15 Republicans on the vote. The repeal bill had been unanimously approved by the Senate Labor Committee at a special meeting held on the first day of the session.

Indiana's new governor, Roger D. Branigin (D), gave the repeal drive top priority in his legislative address two days before the Senate vote. Democratic leaders had already assigned the repeal bill the coveted designation of Senate Bill No. 1.

Branigin urged the legislature to begin its session "by correcting the errors of the past."

He termed the "right-to-work" law a "sham," and added:

"It has accomplished no purpose which is worth the rancor and controversy it has stirred among our citizens. I urge its immediate repeal."

Two union members co-sponsored the Senate repealer: Donald R. Yeagley, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee and a member of the Auto Workers at the Bendix Aviation Corp. plant at South Bend, and William Christy of Hammond, a Steelworker employed at the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.

The Senate-passed bill moved to the House Labor Committee whose chairman, William Babincsak, is a member of the Intl. Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and co-sponsor of the measure in the House. Democrats hold a commanding 78-22 majority in the House.

The Senate put an "emergency clause" on the repeal bill, which made it effective as soon as it was signed by the governor. Ordinarily bills do not take effect until they are formally promulgated several months after the legislature adjourns.

Indiana was the only northern industrial state which has banned the union shop. The "work" law was rammed through a Republican-controlled legislature in 1957.

THE COVER: Two significant dates in American history fall during the month of February—The birthday of the first President on the 22nd and that of the sixteenth, Abraham Lincoln, on February 12. The contrasts in the background of both of these great men is symbolic of the American opportunity for all to reach their utmost exertion, regardless of station in life. Washington, son of an English trader, became an early proponent for Federal union, and set the initial course which the presidency has followed ever since. Lincoln with the legendary climb from the rude log hut, rose to his full stature under the pressures of a war which threatened to split the nation of Washington apart. Lincoln held it together through 52 months of bitter war.

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

THE INAUGURATION OF PRESIDENT JOHNSON and Vice President Hubert Humphrey this January 20 marked a significant victory for COPE. The return to office of the President, a national mandate for a new, liberal-minded Vice President and a sizeable liberal margin in the Congress of the United States came about in large measure because of the active, shirtsleeves efforts of the AFL-CIO's political information arm. It required the hard-earned wages of most of you, funneled through COPE, to turn the trick. This has been emphasized many times by the leaders themselves.

Hubert Humphrey, speaking at the recent AFL-CIO Legislative conference in Washington said, "to be quite frank about it—I don't think we could have done anywhere near as well . . . in fact we might not have done it at all without you."

But Humphrey added a significant note of caution. "Now that you have embraced us, don't leave us. We are going to need you every day, every week, every month in the 89th Congress.

And Larry O'Brien, able White House legislative trouble-shooter, underscored the importance of continued effort. "I'm afraid there's a tendency at this point to take things for granted." O'Brien told the assembled AFL-CIO leaders that he had just come from a White House cabinet meeting, where the President had emphasized the need to recognize that nothing should be taken for granted.

Fresh in the minds of all Democratic leaders was the close vote on the rules reform measure, which was approved by the House shortly after the 89th Congress convened. The margin of victory was just 224 to 201—in a body that has a Democratic majority of 295 to 140. The rules reform measure would not have passed without the help of 16 House Republicans.

The meaning of all this is clear. Any sense of complacency derived from the outcome of the past election is self-deception. There is still a tremendous amount of work to be done to keep the building and construction trades' legislative goals constantly before the Congress. No matter how good the intentions of the President and Vice President, they cannot move a step without Congress, and the legislature is a political chameleon.

Votes never are split precisely down the party line. Many Democrats cross the line when they feel that contrary sentiment back home, in the districts where they received their personal mandate to legislate, is more important than moving the Great Society forward on a national front. This is exactly what happened on the rules vote. Many of the Democratic members of Congress themselves are overconfident. Constant attention to Capitol Hill is essential to successful implementation of labor's goals.

In addition, work must be started immediately on the 1966 congressional election campaign. Traditionally, the pendulum swings toward the other party in the off-year elections, and there is expected to be a great deal of ultra-conservative activity in Congress and the voting districts.

Very soon, each local will be receiving its COPE books for distribution to its members. In view of the national political picture, it is essential that we continue our support to this important organ of the AFL-CIO.

I urge all of you to contribute your dollars regularly, conscientiously, faithfully and with a constant awareness that no legislative program—regardless of how well it moves away from the starting line—has ever continued to advance on its own. Somebody has to push. If the push is not supplied by us, you can be assured there will be others willing and able to take over.

The Pyramids of Egypt

Oldest and only surviving wonder of the ancient world, the best of the giant pyramids of Egypt rise like limestone Gibaltars out of the desert sands at Gizeh. Countless volumes have been written on the origin, history, and uses of these immutable tombs of the once mighty Pharaohs.

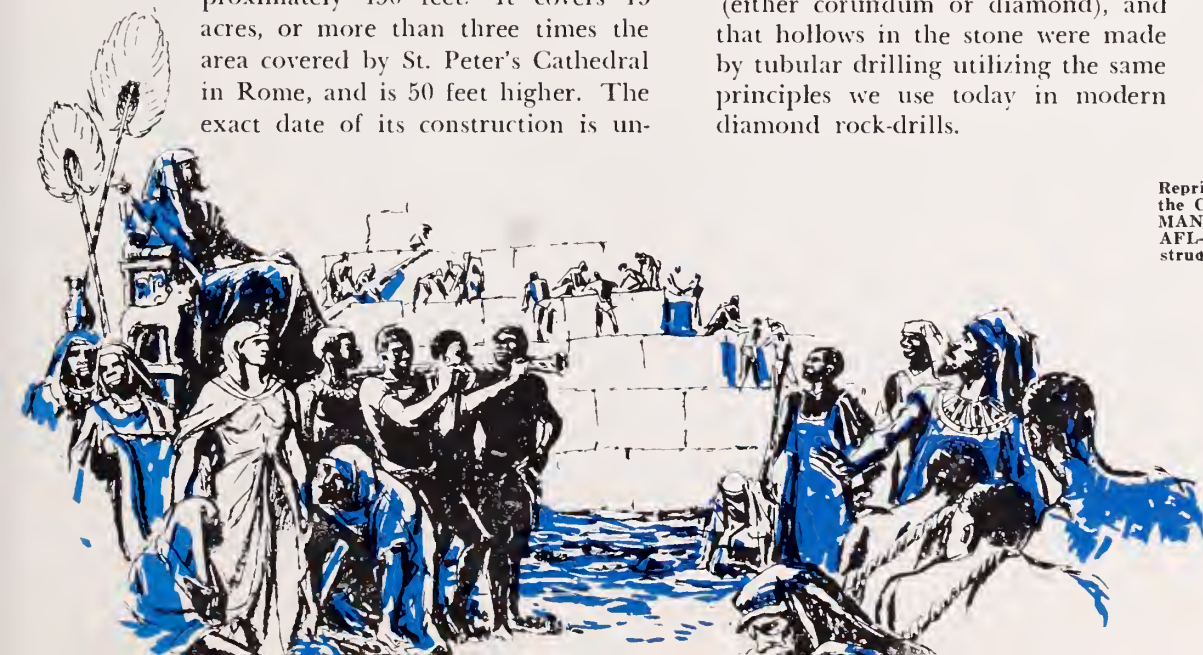

The largest, built by Khufu (Cheops), had an original estimated height of 482 feet, now worn to approximately 450 feet. It covers 13 acres, or more than three times the area covered by St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome, and is 50 feet higher. The exact date of its construction is unknown, but has been estimated as early as 4700 B. C.

Details on the transport of the huge building blocks used in the pyramids' construction have never been explained. Here is a conception of how the giant stones might have been handled by manpower.

It is known that the finished hard stones—granite, diorite, and basalt—were, in all fine work, sawed into shape by bronze saws set with jewels (either corundum or diamond), and that hollows in the stone were made by tubular drilling utilizing the same principles we use today in modern diamond rock-drills.

Dec 31st/64

Mr. Sal Maso,
General President,
Wood, Wire & Metal Lathers International Union,
6530 New Hampshire Ave.
Takoma Park 12, Maryland.

Dear Sir & Bro-

It is a matter of principal that at this time a few small words of thanks should be forthcoming to you for the strenuous and demanding tour that you have just made of the Canadian Locals of the International Union. The Council has been instructed to write such a letter and we know these are the thoughts of all the Locals you visited in Canada.

Sal you have done something for our locals here in Canada that has never been done before or attempted. You have gone into local unions and talked with the rank and file, listened to their problems, told them how to go about solving some of their most vexing troubles and most of all you assured them they would get all the backing the International could give them. You gave them stirring talks, instilled a new confidence in them, no problem was too large or too small, not once did you side track or refuse to discuss a question and there were some very trying situations to face.

You went into the French speaking section of Canada where no general President has ever been.

Some of the locals here in Canada have never seen a General President. To name a few, Local 147 Winnipeg, Man. Chartered sixty-two years and the first time a General President has been there. Local 205 Edmonton, Alta. chartered for many years, Local 221 Calgary, Alta. Chartered many many years, we could go on and on but this is the first visit ever by a General President to a majority of our Canadian locals. You assured us that you would be back again to visit those Locals that were missed. We have found you a man of your word and know you will return.

Perhaps as yet you are not aware of what an impact your visit has made with those areas where you visited. It has instilled a new confidence in our people, brought them out of a lethargy they were in from constant battling with those who would steal our trade jurisdiction, gave them confidence that they have a leader that is there to see that no more of our trade jurisdiction is given away.

The International Locals here in Canada are separated by many hundreds of miles and due to the geographical location of the various locals a tendency was developing whereby local autonomy and local problems and battles to hold our trade jurisdiction were the thoughts uppermost in the minds of the individual lather.

Since your visit our people are gathering their forces to reclaim our trade jurisdiction from those who would take it away, yes and those who have every intention of taking it all. There is a long hard road ahead. We fight so many with so few.

We know now that we have a fighting General President leading us and in there battling for our cause.

Thank-you Sal, you gave us new confidence. Come again but stay longer.

Respectfully and fraternally,

E. J. Markman President

Al Burtin Secretary

DECISIONS OF THE GENERAL PRESIDENT

PUBLISHED IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 180 INTERNATIONAL CONSTITUTION: "All appellate decisions of the General President and/or of the Executive Council and/or of the Convention must be published in the following issue of THE LATHER along with a short and concise synopsis of the case being decided."

Correction:

In the January Issue of THE LATHER the case decided by the General President should have been identified as

"Alsid Dorion, No. 52614 and David MacLean, No. 59520, vs. Local 360"

Donald Wigley, No. 55282, vs. Local 140—Brother Donald Wigley appealed against the action of Local 140 in fining him $25 for violation of Working Rule 16 of Local 140 by-laws and Section 96 of the LIU Constitution. After carefully considering all evidence submitted to Headquarters the General President found this brother guilty and upheld the fine as placed.

Clarence Elliott No. 51340, T. C. Carruth No. 52113, F. Jaramillo No. 54544 and Arthur DeMelo No. 47816, vs. Local 208—Brothers Clarence Elliott, T. C. Carruth, F. Jaramillo and Arthur DeMelo appealed against the action of Local 208 in fining them $100 each for violation of Section 107 of the LIU Constitution. After carefully considering all the evidence submitted to Headquarters the General President found these brothers guilty but due to extenuating circumstances reduced the fines to $50 each.

THE CHANGING CONGRESS

With a radically altered balance of power, the 89th Congress convened in January to begin the work of reshaping its structure to conform to its political complexion. Although there is a comfortable balance of Democratic power, the leadership still faces a challenge in loyalty when the votes are cast.

The 89th Congress is bending with the winds of change. There are many new faces, swept in by the Johnson-Democratic landslide victory this November. There is a new vigor, and there is a brand-new working relationship between the Congress and the President as well as among the legislators themselves.

However, the change is not all what it appears on the surface. Despite a paper superiority of 295 Democrats to 140 Republicans in the House, and 68 Democrats to 32 Republicans in the Senate, there will be a real challenge to the Congress' Democratic leadership to keep the party solidly in line, especially in the House.

Some much-needed legislation will pass with difficulty, emerging battered and weakened. Other keystones in the President's Great Society structure are likely not to pass at all. Some may never get on the floor for a debate.

An Uncertain House

As early as the first day of the new Congress' life, House Democrats lost control of 73 of their 295 on a crucial rules change vote, and would have failed to get the changes through without support from 16 defecting Republicans. The change swings House power away from the potent and conservative leader of the House Rules Committee, Rep. Howard W. Smith of West Virginia, to House Speaker John McCormack of Massachusetts. It enables the speaker to set action in motion to pull a bill out of the Rules Committee after it has been bottled up there for 21 days.

This 21-day rule vote tells a lot about the new congress. It's geared in principle to Johnson's legislative program. It is mostly anxious to streamline the legislative machinery. But is faced with the task of handling Democratic party mavericks who may bolt the party in favor of voter approval back home. The House Democratic leadership has been made plainly aware of the demands of the job of keeping party members in line.

The really new group of young liberal legislators, however, elected in many cases with the assistance of labor organizations, seems likely to cause little concern. Out of the 71 in the House, 68 voted on the rules change, and 62 of these went along with the party.

The House rules changes were first hammered out in a Democratic party caucus before the opening of Congress, where the complete party reform package considered necessary to keep the session rolling was put together.

Equally important to this goal was a facelifting for Congressional committees. In addition to filling vacancies left by the defeated congressmen, and assigning the new faces to committees, there was the job of breaking the conservative stranglehold on certain House Committees.

For years, the House Ways and Means Committee has been under the control of conservative forces. In the last session of the 88th Congress, it was the Ways and Means Committee which was largely responsible for the death of the Medicare bill.

Likewise a stronghold of arch-conservatism was the House appropri-tions Committee. It had throttled a number of liberal pieces of legislation by simply blocking funds.

In 1940, the ratio of Democrats to Republicans in both of these key committees had been frozen. Despite subsequent fluctuations in the House party makeup, the majority party retained 15 seats in the Ways and Means Committee, the minority 10. On the Appropriations Committee the ratio was 30 for the majority and 20 for the minority. To reflect accurately the present party split of the House, there would have to be 34 Democrats and 16 Republicans on the Appropriations Committee.

This is exactly the ratio agreed to by House Speaker McCormack and the Republican's new majority leader, Gerald R. Ford, of Michigan. For the Ways and Means Committee, the ratio was changed to 17 Democrats and 8 Republicans.

The important House Education and Labor Committee shifted from an old balance of 19 Democrats against 12 Republicans to 21 and 10. Still unassigned are 3 Democratic and one Republican chairs.

All other House committees, except the Rules Committee which was largely circumvented anyhow by passage of the 21-day rule, were likewise reapportioned in favor of the Democrats.

On the Senate side of Capitol Hill, initial efforts at reform were aimed at the favorite liberal target of the filibuster. To reduce the effectiveness of the tactic which has long been a favorite of the southern conservative faction for delaying or killing bills, the bolstered Senate liberals are trying to trim the number of votes required to cut off a filibuster. Now, two-thirds of the Senate must agree. The change proposal which was being considered by the Senate in mid-January would give cloture power to a 60 per cent vote.

New Men at the Top

With the drastic change in power balance, and the loss of old members, Democratic Congressmen also busied themselves in the opening days of the 89th Congress with a reshuffling of their party leadership.

The Democratic majority Whip slot in the Senate, left vacant by the departure of Hubert Humphrey for a bigger job, was filled by Louisiana's Russell Long, despite his poor record of Administration support. It will be Long's job to keep an accurate nose count of likely votes on upcoming issues, and cajole doubtful members to go along with the party. Long has been opposed to Medicare, aid to education, foreign aid and civil rights, among others. Democratic unity was weak in the Senate, and Long successfully rode over the challenges of John Pastore, Rhode Island, and Mike Monroney, Oklahoma.

Despite this development, however, the Senate is considered reasonably safe for Administration legislation. There is enough support anticipated from the liberal Republicans there to pass most, if not all, of the major Administration bills that come up for a floor vote.

The liberals fared well in the House leadership shuffle. The new Democratic majority leader there is Carl Albert, from Oklahoma. With three years of outstanding service to the party as a floor leader, and seven as party whip, Albert is a top professional insider, dedicated to Johnson and the party. A former Rhodes scholar, Albert is considered a good bet to replace Speaker McCormack when he steps down.

Albert has no illusions that the job will be easy, and he expects constant exercise of his special skills to keep members in line. He said that he doubts that the Democratic majority can be taken for granted.

House Majority Leader Carl Albert

The Opposition

Albert faces a young, new Republican counterpart across the House floor. Meeting January 4, the House Republican Conference selected Gerald Ford to replace Charles Halleck of Indiana, by a close 73 to 67 vote. Ford's election reflects the Republican's desire to shrug off a tarnished too-conservative image, and puts the moderate-to-liberal wing of the GOP in the driver's seat. Ford was supported by a middle-seniority Republican "activist" group. In 1959, these same people had unseated former Speaker Joseph Martin from the Republican leadership, in favor of Halleck.

Minority Leader Gerald Ford

Although Ford seems anxious to change the GOP image and is aligned solidly against the old-line party leadership, there seems little chance of any basic change in GOP economic and social welfare philosophy.

Ford has strong opposition to efforts to rework the Taft-Hartley Act, and he has called the anti-poverty program "loosely drawn." His strategy will be to develop positive GOP "alternatives" to Administration programs, instead of denying that any problems exist which should be approached at the national level.

The most liberal Republicans dislike Ford's support of Goldwater in the past campaign, but Ford himself felt there was no choice—that he either had to support the Republican candidate wholeheartedly, or assist the Democrats.

The Legislative Schedule

Congress' role is likely to be more that of the referee—approving or disapproving specific items in Johnson's program with little change—than originator of new legislation. Parts of The President's "Great Society" should win reasonably smooth sailing, but there will be other pieces that will fail.

Almost assured of passage is Medicare. Hubert Humphrey speaking to delegates at the AFL-CIO Legislative Conference in January, promised Medicare legislation "before the first flower of spring." This—plus other Johnson ideas for legislation in the health field—is almost certain to pass both houses.

An extension of the minimum wage, several notches down Johnson's list of law, stands a reasonable chance of passage. It would include, for the first time, hotel, restaurant and laundry workers, among others.

Repeal of section 14b of the Taft-Hartley Act, however, is up in the air. Although this item was a solid plank in the 1960 and 1964 party platforms, Johnson has left timing and suggestions for specific action vague. Discussing this issue at the AFL-CIO Legislative Conference, Humphrey said steps would be taken "at the time it needs to be done, when there are ways and means and votes to get it done." Johnson seems hesitant to call the issue out on the floor early, for fear of losing support needed to pass other measures. Mike Mansfield, for one, has said he was doubtful that 14b would be repealed this year.

Johnson would like to invest about $1.5 billion—roughly double last year's appropriation—in the fight against poverty. Although there is likely to be some initial opposition, public support cannot be ignored, and the predictions call for getting this into law.

For aid to education, the future looks uncertain. A $1.5 billion boost in funds for Federal aid to education is given a chance of making it through, although Mansfield thinks this will be a "problem". Democratic Whip Albert thinks the bill falls short of what is needed, but agrees with Mansfield about its prospects for passage.

A slash in excise taxes looks like a sure bet. Congressmen will need no prodding from Johnson to act, and in fact they may want to run faster and farther than Johnson. The President has asked for cuts of about $1.5 billion, on selected items. Many Congressmen would like to repeal the excise tax on virtually all items. Albert thinks a compromise is likely.

The urban affairs program will probably be a delayed-action effort. Johnson would like to follow through with Kennedy's idea for a Cabinet-level Federal agency charged with the responsibility of watchdogging urban renewal, transport, and related problems. The experts predict passage, probably later on, for this one.

Passage is also expected for water and air pollution control authority.

Generally, some hopes for a forward movement on substantial programs for the public food are likely to be realized during the 89th Congress. This Administration-Congress team has the opportunity to do more in this direction than has been done in many, many years. But the outcome is by no means certain. The House rules change vote raised the warning flag on the possibilities of a fragmented House majority. Recent talk about 14b gives little to be happy about right now.

The lesson is reasonably clear. Any group with a vested interest in programs it knows are essential to the public good must stick doggedly with them every moment—all the way through the 89th Congress. It's no time to relax.

LEGISLATIVE GOALS OF THE AFL-CIO

The striking parallel between the Administration's Legislative program for this year and that of labor has been noted by all observers. Here are the formal AFL-CIO legislative targets, outlined recently by President George Meany:

- Repeal Section 14 (b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, which allows states to enact so-called "right-to-work" laws.
- Provide a national hospital insurance system based on social security, commonly called "Medicare."
- Eliminate inequities and resolve contradictions in the nation's basic labor-management law.
- Cover all workers under the minimum wage law and increase the wage to $2 an hour.
- Increase federal aid to schools serving children from low-income areas.
- Promote urban renewal and aid low-cost public housing.
- Expand federal grants for community facilities.
- Promote the Appalachia program.
- Provide for grants and loans for community mental health centers.
- Appropriate more funds for the anti-poverty program.
- Eliminate excise taxes on goods and services generally used by all Americans.
- Enact legislation to protect the consumer on installment buying, packaging and drugs, and create a federal consumer information service.
- Prevent importation of Mexican farm laborers and improve the conditions of migratory farm labor by including them under national labor and social insurance laws.
- Continue support for trade expansion.

Members of L.U. 46, New York, recently completed an unusual job 385 feet up the inside of what is believed to be the highest steel stack in the United States. Both the stack itself and the inside of the plate steel flues were lathed to provide a foundation for a heat-resisting concrete coating. The lathing, sub-contracted to the Huber Lathing Company of New York City, was done for the Consolidated Edison Company's new Ravenswood power generating station in Queens. The job took about 48,000 square feet of 4x4 wire mesh, about 20,000 linear feet of reinforcing steel half-inch rods. It was finished by members of Local 46 on November 18. From the ground to the top of the stack, including the flue structure, it is about 462 feet.

1966 A PIVOTAL YEAR

Give Your COPE Dollar Now

"For almost a year now, you've been taking home an extra 7½ cents an hour as a result of the tax cut of 1964. That adds up to a good piece of change in anybody's book."

You know what helped make it possible? Your COPE dollar, the buck you gave to the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education.

Here's how.

Your dollar joined others voluntarily contributed by union members. Together, they helped elect liberal candidates to the U. S. House of Representatives and U. S. Senate. And the overwhelming majority of these COPE-supported candidates voted to cut your taxes, to give you more spending money.

The total cut will add up to 7½ cents an hour more in take-home pay for you and your family.

So, you can look upon your COPE dollar as an investment, an investment that pays dividends.

Of course, there's more to be done, much more. And this means more COPE dollars will be needed.

For example, pivotal congressional elections are coming up in 1966. These could be make-or-break for Great Society programs.

Traditionally, off-year congressional elections bring a sharp drop-off in House and Senate seats held by the party in control of the White House.

Because many liberals captured seats in normally conservative districts as a result of President Johnson's sweep in 1964, the threat of such losses will be doubly dangerous in 1966.

The conservative forces know this, too. The political arm of the National Association of Manufacturers has launched its fund and organization drive and already has announced it will zero in on 102 marginal House seats in 1966, most of them now held by liberals.

Also, the medical association's political action arm, AMPAC, has sent out this call to doctors: "The time has come to begin work for tomorrow."

So the conservatives will be busy between now and November, 1966. They mean to bring about the biggest off-year party switch in history.

Would you rather fight, or switch?

You can fight, and you can start now by contributing your dollar to COPE.

As was pointed out earlier, the tax cut was helped along by your COPE dollar, but there's more to be done.

Other programs are urgent: good jobs for all at decent wages, more security for the elderly, better schools and growing opportunity for your children, good housing for all Americans, programs for peace.

These things don't just happen. They come about only when enough men and women in Congress are willing to vote for them. One way to assure a good Congress is to give your dollar to COPE. Give in 1965 to help build a solid back-log of funds for good candidates in 1966.

It's an investment—the best investment you could make.

Wage Scales for Building Trades Show Increase

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The hourly wage scales of unionized building-trades workers showed a slight increase during the third quarter of 1964. According to the Department of Labor, the increase amounted 0.2 percent, or 1 cent.

The estimated average scale for building-trades workers now stands at $4.26 an hour. The greatest gain was acquired by plasterers whose average hourly scale increased 8.6 cents to $4.58. Painters raised their average by 3.6 cents to $4.15, while electricians and plumbers advanced their rates by 2.1 cents to $4.71 and 1.8 to $4.68, respectively. The average for carpenters remained unchanged at $4.38 an hour, and that of bricklayers and laborers moved up less than half a cent from the respective rates of $4.74 and $3.30 an hour.

The level of scales on October 1, 1964, was 3.6 percent higher than a year earlier and approximately 26 percent above the 1957-59 average.

CANADIAN NEWSLETTER

Present Status of Canada's Industrial Production

The following is taken from the text of the year-end review of the Canadian economy issued by the Minister of Trade and Commerce, Mr. Mitchell Sharp:

"Total industrial production appears to have risen by nearly 9 per cent from 1963 to 1964 compared with increases of 3 per cent and 5 per cent in 1962 and 1963 respectively. The rise in industrial production since the beginning of the current expansion in 1961 now surpasses that realized in the resource boom of the mid-1950's. Moreover, this present phase of industrial growth is more broadly diffused, secondary manufacturing contributing significantly to the overall advance.

"Despite more rapid growth in the labor force, new jobs have more than kept pace with new entrants to the labor market. As a result, unemployment has declined. Total employment was on average 3.6 per cent higher in 1964 than in 1963, and unemployment was 12 per cent lower. On a seasonally-adjusted basis, jobless persons have fallen to less than 5 per cent of the labor force.

"A key feature of Canada's recent development has been the strong rate of improvement in productivity, especially in goods-producing industries. Technological advance and other forces contributing to the more effective use of productive resources result in higher real incomes and lower costs. These, in turn, strengthen the position of Canadian products in both domestic and foreign markets and thereby contribute to expanded sales and more employment. Thus the steady improvements in productivity in recent years has contributed importantly to Canada's sustained expansion."

C.L.C. Endorses Canada Pension Plan

According to a recent release from the Canadian Labour Congress, that group has endorsed the general principles of the proposed Canada Pension Plan but advanced criticisms and suggestions with regard to some sections. Views of the million-plus member labour group were outlined in a formal submission to the Special Joint Committee of the Senate and Commons which is studying the legislation.

The C.L.C. included in its reasons for generally favoring the bill: "It will provide, for the first time, a system of wage-related benefits to members of the labor force on a virtually universal scale. It will set standards of benefits which bear some relationship to the standard of living enjoyed by the beneficiary prior to retirement. A very considerable number of wage and salary earners and self-employed, who are not now covered by any private pension arrangement, will hereafter be assured of at least a modest income on retirement."

The submission said that the existing Old Age Security Act was regarded as a substructure to the Canada Pension Plan. The two measures together would help to compensate for the drop in income usually resulting from retirement and the combined benefit would be of proportionately greater value to those with low incomes.

Turning to areas of criticism, the CLC indicated five areas of shortcoming:

- The ratio of benefits to earnings, that is, the degree of wage-relatedness in the old age benefit, is too limited.
- The plan provides for funding on a substantial scale.
- The fund is derived in large part from those least able to contribute to it.
- The plan is by its nature regressive in that the principle of transfer payments, which is inherent in social security measures, is unduly restricted and favors those with the greatest ability to contribute.
- The supplementary benefits are low absolutely and by comparison, to similar benefits now available under social assistance programs.

Canada's First Distinctive National Flag

The design of the new Canadian flag is a red maple leaf on a white field with a vertical red bar at each side.

In the 97-year history of Canada, as a nation, this is the first distinctive national flag. On December 24th, 1964, the Queen approved the recommendation of Parliament for the design of the new Canadian flag.

IMPORTANT PROGRESS IN APPRENTICESHIP

WE ARE INTO A NEW YEAR and as Co-Chairman of the National Lathing Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Program, along with Jeremiah Burns, a lathing contractor of New York City and a representative of the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association, I would like to inform you of its progress and direction.

The first effort to establish a National Apprenticeship Program for the lathing and plastering industry was in 1955.

In 1956, the joint committee was actually formed and one of the representative of the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association was Jeremiah Burns. The first task undertaken by the Committee was to write and establish National Standards of Apprenticeship for the Lathing Industry, which were completed and published that year.

The Labor Management Relations Act was signed September 14, 1959, which made it legal for both Labor and Management to sit jointly on committees and to receive and disburse funds for apprenticeship. The committee then solicited voluntary contributions for the financial support of the National Committee. A few interested parties did contribute but the amount received was not sufficient, and future contributions were questionable so it was felt it would not be advisable to start any activities at this time which would incur expenses.

At the 1961 Convention of the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association held in Las Vegas, through the efforts of Jerry Burns at this and previous conventions, a resolution was passed, that all present and future contracts with the Lathers Union, include 1 cent per man hour worked for the National Apprenticeship Program. Local No. 46 of New York City, was the first to do so.

1961 also saw the revision of the 1956 National Standards of Apprenticeship for the Lathing Industry, by the Committee.

The Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association Convention in Miami, Florida in 1962, at the request of Jerry Burns, reconfirmed their actions at the previous convention and again asked that their members include the 1 cent per man hour in all contracts for the National Apprenticeship Program.

In 1963, with the great need evident for the National Program to actually function, and with the accumulation of funds from contributions, the Committee felt it was now feasible and advisable that a program be implemented with the first efforts being directed towards creating a course of related instruction for classroom and correspondence.

Today, the related courses of instruction for classroom and correspondence are ready to go to the printers and will soon be available for distribution. Working with the Department of Labor, Bureau of Employment Security, field tests have been conducted so that a General Aptitude Test Battery could be designed specifically for our trade to be used in testing and rating applicants for apprenticeship. The Committee is considering other areas in which we can assist the Local Joint Apprenticeship Committees, such as: Seminars for the instructors; visual aids for use in the classroom; area or regional coordinators; and journeymen training in new materials, methods and techniques.

Local areas now contributing to the National Apprenticeship Trust Fund are: Hot Springs, Arkansas; South Bend, Indiana; Louisville, Kentucky; Grand Rapids, Saginaw, Jackson, Lansing, Muskegon, Escanaba, Flint, Battle Creek and Traverse City, Michigan; Paterson, New Jersey; Local No. 46 in New York City; and Wheeling, West Virginia.

As you will note, Jerry Burns is one of the most dedicated advocates of apprenticeship with the longest service on the Committee. He has given more of his time and effort to Apprenticeship for our industry than any other person.

Serving as Co-Chairman of the National Apprenticeship Program with Jerry, I realize his untiring interest and willingness to give of himself so our industry and craft might grow and prosper.

I want to ask each of you to include an Apprenticeship Clause in your next agreement with the 1 cent per man hour to the National Apprenticeship Program, for apprenticeship was never more vital to our craft than today.

Indianapolis Adopts Anti-Scab Law

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. (PAI)—This capital of Indiana has become another in the growing number of cities that have enacted laws against importation of strikebreakers.

The Citizens' Job Protection Ordinance was signed into law by Mayor John Barton. A similar ordinance was adopted last July, but the Chamber of Commerce and the Indiana Manufacturers Association tied it up with so many restricting amendments, it was vetoed by Mayor Barton.

The drive for the ordinance in Indianapolis got off the ground late in 1963 when Erich E. Bredl, president of the Indianapolis Typographical Union No. 1 assigned Kenneth A. Davis, a member, to push the drive with the Central Labor Council.

In Memoriam

Anna May McSorley
1881-1965

The membership of the LIU was saddened by the death January 20 of Mrs. Anna May McSorley, wife of past President Emeritus William J. McSorley. Mrs. McSorley, who was 84, won the affection and admiration of every one she met, and was well known to many national building trades union officers. In recent years, Mrs. McSorley accompanied her husband on numerous trips both in the U. S. and abroad.

A loving mother as well as a helpmate for her husband, Mrs. McSorley raised 7 children. Five girls and a boy survive, with 17 grandchildren.

Mr. McSorley was President of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union from 1904 to 1955, with five years' leave of absence, during which he served as President of the Building and Construction Trades Department.

In Appreciation

Local 255 and Brother R. R. Dykes, No. 29459, wish to express their sincere appreciation for the following contributions made in answer to the appeal sent out on his behalf:

ESTABLISHMENT OF LABOR DAY—1882

Organized labor owes its annual celebration of Labor Day to an enterprising and resourceful trade unionist from the Carpenters, Peter McGuire. On May 8, 1882, McGuire urged that the first Monday in September be set aside "to be established as a general holiday for the laboring classes."

The first Labor Day parade and festival of the Central Labor Union of New York City took place September 5, 1882. The general assembly of the Knights of Labor and the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor endorsed the establishment of Labor Day.

The first state law making Labor Day a legal holiday was passed by Oregon in 1887 and on June 28, 1894, the United States Congress acted to establish Labor Day as a national holiday — an enduring and recurring landmark of labor.

Star-spangled savings plan

(How it can help you to a well-provided future)

Most of us think about the future in terms of our families—paying off the mortgage, educating the children, providing a retirement income.

But with the world the way it is today, it's almost impossible to make plans for your own future without considering the future of your country, too.

When you buy U. S. Savings Bonds, your money takes on both jobs. It begins to grow, surely and steadily, to help you reach your savings goals and build your financial strength.

At the same time, Uncle Sam uses these dollars to help reach our national goals of peace and security.

Why not give your savings dollars this double assignment? You'll be joining millions of American families who are investing in their country's future—and you'll probably find that you feel pretty good about the whole thing.

Quick facts about Series E Savings Bonds

- ✓ You get back $4 for every $3 at maturity (7¾ years)
- ✓ Your Bonds are replaced free if lost, destroyed or stolen
- ✓ You can get your money when you need it
- ✓ You pay no state or local income tax and can defer payment of federal tax until the Bonds are cashed

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

IN MY REPORT LAST MONTH I informed you of the meeting of the Board of Trustees of the General Pension Fund and General Pension Plan, and further informed you that a letter had been sent out under date of January 22, 1965, with a questionnaire to be filled out pertaining to participation in the General Pension Plan by your Local Union. Mr. Waddell, Administrator of the General Pension Fund, advises me that returns on these letters have been very slow. It is extremely important that we receive this information because it must be furnished to the Ostheimer Company, Consultants and Actuaries, for the performance of the actuarial study. Also, as soon as the actuarial study has been completed, there will probably be changes to be made in the General Pension Fund "PLAN." Therefore, in view of the need for this information I am again asking that you immediately fill out the questionnaire and return it to the General Pension Fund Office, at 6530 New Hampshire Avenue, Takoma Park, Maryland.

We have previously informed you of the re-activation of the National Bureau for Promotion of Lath and Plaster. At this time I am pleased to advise you that Mr. Gene Scheid has been appointed as the Director for the Bureau. His address is: R.C.A. Building, 1725 K Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. Telephone No. 296-8664. The success of the National Bureau is dependent upon the cooperation of everyone involved. I urge you, therefore, to make every effort to have the promotional clause provided in your new agreements as you negotiate them.

THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL of the LIU, met February 8-12, 1965, at the Americana Hotel, Bal Harbour, Florida. A number of important issues were considered by the Executive Council and you will find the Minutes which have been approved by the members of the Executive Council on pages 4 to 9 of this issue of the Journal.

Now that all of the resolutions referred to the Executive Council by the Twenty-Fifth Convention, have been acted upon, we are proceeding with the necessary revisions of the LIU Constitution, the sample constitution and by-laws, and sample agreement. Copies of the revised LIU Constitution, Sample Constitution and By-laws and Sample Agreement will be forwarded to you as soon as they have been completed.

One important issue acted upon by the LIU Council is the replenishment of the Legal Defense Fund. This action is set forth in the Minutes on page 4, and a letter is being sent to each Local Union, State, District and Provincial Council of the LIU giving a full explanation of the action. Therefore, I shall not elaborate on it at this time.

We are making progress with respect to the protection of our trade jurisdiction. However, I am sure you are well aware of the many tactics being used to infringe on our work. I would like you to forward to me at Headquarters any material or document which you find being circulated in your jurisdiction which you feel is irregular, because only through the continued efforts and cooperation of each and every member and local union can we successfully carry on the fight for the protection of our trade jurisdiction.

Sincerely and fraternally,

SAL MASO,
General President.

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

THERE IS A CLEAR TIE between the world of poverty—created by unemployment, lack of education and skills and economic stagnation—and a state's legal position on the misnamed "right-to-work."

Most of the states which now have such laws on the books harbor more than their share of the poor. Although not all of these states are depressed, those located in the south and southern border area have lagged behind the prosperity of the rest of the country. South Carolina's per person income, for example, was a low average of $1,588 in 1963. In Georgia, it was $1,864. In Arkansas, $1,607, and Mississippi, $1,390. The national average for the same year was $3,449.

The low-income states have hamstrung their prosperity by a policy of attracting low-wage industries, and using the "right-to-work" laws as bait. In recent years, they have drawn textiles, leather and apparel from the more wealthy sections of the country, in an attempt to bolster the welfare of their regions. Although these industries have come—to take advantage of a disorganized and underpaid labor force—the hoped-for gains have not come about. Personal wealth of the citizens of the 16 southern states with "right-to-work" laws remains at about 70 per cent of the national average.

Why? In a conference a few years ago, the governors of these states met to thrash out their economic problems and came up with part of the answer. They agreed that they needed more of the high-wage industries such as machinery, transportation equipment, chemicals and paper. All of these are substantially above average in wage levels.

It's true, of course, that high-wage industries generate a helpful cycle of prosperity. The more that workers earn, the more they can spend, in turn creating even more jobs.

But the high-wage industries know that they need prosperous people close to home, skilled labor, and easy-to-get raw materials. They are not anxious to avoid unions, and accept, in fact, the principles of collective bargaining. They know that the only real chance for industrial peace and agreements which are honored is through relations with a responsible union. Without such a labor organization "wildcat" minorities can interfere with agreements accepted in good faith by the majority.

Once an economy has been based on low-wage industries, it's hard to move the better industries in. The poorly-paying industries resist invasion from more progressive firms. Their labor would irresistibly be attracted to better pay, better fringe benefits and the advantages of a better bargaining position. In addition, the side-by-side comparison with modern labor-management relations in the better industries would force reform inside those low-wage plants.

The push which is now being given to a broad national attack on poverty offers a rare opportunity for many states to speed their economic progress and improve the welfare of their citizens. The poverty war will be waged on many fronts—job creation, education, area redevelopment, training in skills and retraining in newer skills, better job placement, and wage-hour and other improvements in labor standards on both Federal and State levels.

As the poor receive more education and develop better skills, many of them will seek job opportunities wherever these are.

Unless the states which have used "right-to-work" as a deceptive device to win economic health mend their fences, they will find the best of their human resources moving out. The problem will be even worse than it was to begin with. One of their first steps to avoid this should be repeal of 14(b).

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General Secretary-Treasurer

Where Are They Now?

This picture from the past will evoke strong memories for many. We hope some of these memories will give us the names of the husky crew of lathers. Time—unknown. Those in the picture—also unknown. It comes from the personal records of Brother Russell Cook, President of Local 62, Boston, Massachusetts. Know any of the men? If so, please let headquarters know.

Action Begins On Hospital Care

WASHINGTON—The House Ways & Means Committee began closed door consideration of the Administration's social security hospital care bill—and Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills (D. Ark.) said he hoped to have legislation ready for House action by mid-March.

Over the objections of several committee Republicans, the committee agreed to skip public hearings in view of the extensive hearings held last year.

Health, Education & Welfare Sec. Anthony J. Celebrezze met with committee members in executive session to discuss the bill and emerged to tell newsmen that it is optimistic about committee approval.

"There are always amendments," he said, "but I don't, at this point, see any major changes."

The 1965 King Anderson bill would provide up to 60 days of hospital care for each illness for every person 65 or over, with a deductible equal to the average cost of one day's hospitalization. It would also provide up to 60 days of post-hospital skilled nursing home care, out-patient diagnostic services and up to 240 home health service visits a year. It would not pay doctor's bills.

Some House Republicans have said they will propose an alternative plan based on need, but no substitute has yet emerged with an official GOP imprimatur.

The American Medical Association, which has bitterly opposed all forms of social insurance health programs, is currently touting what it calls "eldercare." In effect this would augment the present Kerr-Mills program by providing federal and state funds to purchase private health insurance for elderly persons who can prove their financial need. The AMA's bill has been introduced by Representative Thomas B. Curtis (R-Mo.) and A. Sydney Herlong (D-Fla.).

The Senate last year passed a social security hospital care bill as an amendment to a house bill boosting cash benefits, but it died with adjournment.

Liberal gains in the House in the November elections, coupled with expansion of the Ways & Means Committee to reflect the bigger Democratic majority, have strongly boosted the prospects for hospital care legislation. The Administration bill couples the hospital benefits with higher cash social security benefits and an increase in the social security tax paid by workers and their employers.

AUDIT REPORT

Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union January 1, 1964 to December 31, 1964

February 23, 1965

Mr. Sal Maso, General President
Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union
6530 New Hampshire Avenue
Takoma Park, Maryland

Dear Sir:

In accordance with your request we have examined the books and records of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union for the year ended December 31, 1964 and give you herewith a report of our examination including the following exhibits and schedules:

Exhibits:

A—Statement of Condition December 31, 1964

Schedules:

- 1—Summary Cash Statement
- 2—Statement of Cash Receipts
- 3—Statement of Cash Disbursement
- 3A—Officers and Representatives Salaries and Expenses
- 4—Bonds Owned

Cash in bank was reconciled with statements received from the Suburban Trust Company, Hyattsville, Maryland, and various other depositories where the organization has deposits in savings accounts.

Bonds owned as described in Schedule 4 and Stock Certificate Number 62-245 for 560 shares of Union Labor Life Insurance Company Stock are held for safekeeping in a safe deposit box in the Suburban Trust Company. These securities were verified in the presence of General Secretary-Treasurer J. Earl Ferguson on September 22, 1964. We have been advised by the bank that the box has not been entered since that date.

The net assets of your organization have decreased from $1,231,261.99 on December 31, 1963 to $1,112,801.80 on December 31, 1964, a decrease of $118,460.19 occurring in the various funds as follows:

	NET WORTH DECEMBER 31,		INCREASE OR (DECREASE)
	1964	1963
General Fund	$ 135,984.72	$ 194,661.17	$ (58,676.45)
Organizing Fund	77,854.39	81,896.79	(4,042.40)
Funeral Benefit Fund	274,762.54	219,948.05	54,814.49
Convention Fund	78,064.69	171,667.16	(93,602.47)
Building Fund	486,665.24	500,397.13	(13,731.89)
Legal Defense Fund	32,529.48	40,489.22	(7,959.74)
Pension Fund	26,940.74	22,202.47	4,738.27
Total	$1,112,801.80	$1,231,261.99	$ (118,460.19)

Inventory values were based on estimated figures determined from your records.

Since the examination was confined to receipts and disbursements, amounts due from local unions or other sources, and any unpaid bills, for services and supplies, were not considered in the compilation of this report.

In our opinion, subject to the above comments, the accompanying balance sheet and operating statement present fairly the financial position of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union at December 31, 1964 and the results of its operations for the year then ended on a cash basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Yours very truly,

Drastic Job Changes In Last 55 Years

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Drastic changes in the over-all job picture during the last 55 years are outlined in a new statistical report, showing a half-century of economic growth, which has just been made public by Sec. of Labor W. Willard Wirtz.

In 1909, it shows, nearly half the non-farm jobs were in goods-producing industries, such as manufacturing, mining and construction. But last year less than one-third of the non-farm jobs fell into the category.

"THE INQUIRY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

I WOULD like to call your attention to page 12 where there appears the announcement of the election of Jeremiah (Jerry) Burns as President of the New York City Building Trades Employers Association. We received this news too late for publication in the March Issue of the Lather. Therefore belated, but nonetheless sincere, we congratulate Jerry on this newly elected position and extend best wishes for a constructive tenure as President of the Association.

The newly revised L.I.U. Constitution is in the process of being printed and we hope to have copies available within two or three weeks. The revisions of the L.I.U. Constitution were made in accordance with the actions taken at the Twenty Fifth Convention of the L.I.U. in September, 1964, and the L.I.U. Executive Council Meeting held in February 1965.

The Sample Constitution and By-laws for guidance in drawing up new Local Constitution and By-laws, or for revising Local Constitution and By-laws, and the Sample Working Agreement for guidance in negotiating new Working Agreements are also being revised to comply with the new L.I.U. Constitution. These will also be available to you as soon as we have completed the necessary changes therein. As soon as these documents are available I urge that you immediately take the necessary steps to have your local union Constitution and By-laws brought up to date, and when you negotiate a new working agreement for your local union you should follow the sample working agreement as closely as possible.

Please read the article on page 6 of this issue of the Lather with reference to the new Bill recently presented to Congress. This Bill, if passed, will have a great effect on the NLRB Ruling on "job-site picketing." We shall keep you fully informed on the progress of this Bill.

We have kept you advised of the progress being made on the reactivation of the National Bureau for the Promotion of Lath and Plaster. At the present time I am making arrangements to attend a meeting of the Board of Governors of the National Bureau which has been called in conjunction with the Western Conference of the Contracting Plasterers' and Lathers' International Association which convenes March 24, 1965.

Mr. Gene Scheid, the newly appointed Executive Director, is doing a splendid job but he needs the full support and cooperation of everyone concerned. At the present time there are three sponsoring organizations of the National Bureau. They are the Operative Plasterers and Cement Masons International Association, the Contracting Plasterers' and Lathers' International Association and the Wood, Wire & Metal Lathers International Union. A picture of President Leonard of the Operative Plasterers, Mr. George Bruggeman, President of the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association and myself with Mr. Scheid at the meeting held in January, 1965, is on page 12 of this issue of the Lather.

We are all aware of the necessity for promoting our industry, and we must make every effort to see that the National Bureau is a success. In view of this, I am again asking you to make sure that all agreements contain the clause providing for payments to be made to the National Bureau.

Sincerely and fraternally.

SAL MASO,
General President.

Symbolic both of the welcome Spring season, and the celebration of Easter, is the opening of the first brave blossoms. With an inviting path like this, who can resist the temptation to slip away, even momentarily, from the job to reflect on better things to come?

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

IN THE PLASTERING INDUSTRIES monthly publication there recently appeared a very interesting article on plastering in Germany. In the North of Germany they favor the modernistic design of building and plastering. In the South, the article contends, there is a considerable amount of ornamental plastering. Both types, I am sure, should involve a certain amount of lathing. Of course, as in our Country, automation has been introduced. They are using spraying and pumping methods for about 75 to 80 percent of their operations.

Ornamental plastering has been somewhat forgotten by architects and designers in recent years in this Country. Any ornamental plastering involved has been mostly confined to an occasional new church or smaller auditorium. However, in Germany ornamental plastering is being revised and promoted in the renovation of old churches, fireplaces and fancy ceilings in many homes. According to one plastering contractor in Germany, people are fast realizing that the beauty and value of plaster is worth having.

Tribute to Pension Pioneers

Ken Mitchell, Secretary of Local No. 82, South Bend, Ind., is a great advocate of the General Pension Plan. He recently reminded us of the importance of the plan, and the great honor which belongs to those who made it possible.

On January 1st, 1963, there was established a new hope for all members of small locals—a Pension Plan. A life line of hope, created by Local No. 85 of the Wood Wire and Metal Lathers International Union, and the T. J. McGlone and Co., Inc., when both these parties entered into a collective bargaining agreement. The Pension Plan was a part of this agreement. A small local union and a big man with love in his heart for his fellow man, gave all of us from small locals, with only a handful of members, this new hope—our Pension Plan.

I was most interested however, and I am sure that lathers and plasterers everywhere should be equally interested, to note that plaster acoustical tile ceilings have been in use for some time now in Germany. This plaster tile can be made in a variety of kinds, styles, and sizes. They are molded, grooved and perforated as desired. As well as being decorative, they are made of soundproof acoustical material and plaster. In my opinion, this tile has a distinct advantage inasmuch as it will not burn or rot, is clean, will not absorb dust and can be painted and repainted without losing its acoustical properties.

Plaster acoustical tile may be erected by the same methods being used today, such as in suspended ceilings, etc.

In view of the many advantages these tiles have, and inasmuch as acoustical tile ceilings are quite popular in this Country, plastering contractors here should seriously consider promoting plaster acoustical tile ceilings. On the opposite page, we have a picture of various types of plaster acoustical tile. Right interesting, I think.

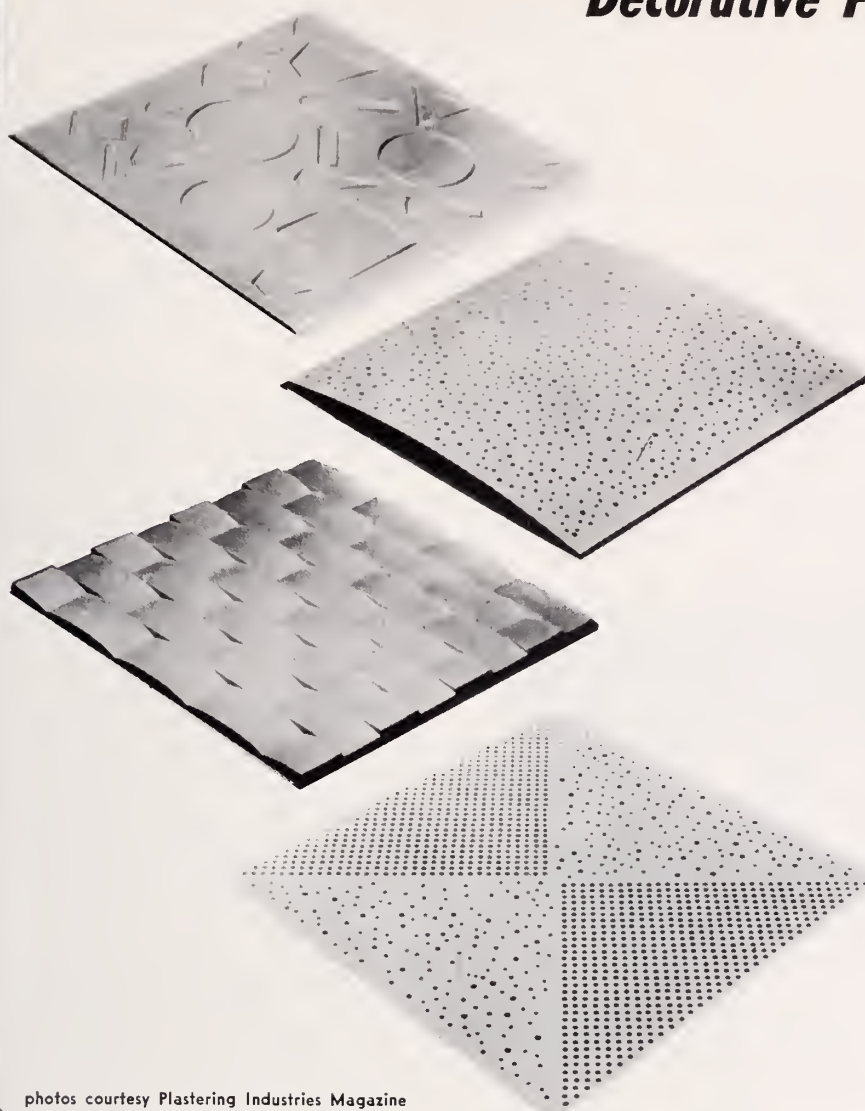

Because of inquiries regarding the extra per capita tax for our Legal Defense Fund, I would like to advise all secretaries of local unions that only tax exempt members and holders of regular withdrawal cards are exempt from payment thereof.

In answer to inquiries why we do not publish transfers in our monthly journal, please note that this practice was eliminated by Convention action in 1958.

Sincerely and fraternally,

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General Secretary-Treasurer

Decorative Plaster Ceiling Tile

These new acoustical plaster ornamental ceiling tiles, in use in Germany, point up the possibilities of plaster as a decorative, and sound absorbing, construction material. Usually, they have a metal foil backing and a rock wool sound absorbing base behind the plaster of Paris. Face designs vary greatly, from single smooth tiles to perforated, grooved or molded designs. A little over an inch thick, and one or two feet square, the tiles are put up by a variety of methods, depending on the ceiling construction. They can be nailed, screwed or used in suspended ceilings. Unlike ceiling tiles now in common use, plaster tiles won't burn, rot, or absorb dust. They can be painted without losing their acoustical properties.

DECISIONS OF THE GENERAL PRESIDENT

John L. Weeks, No. 59693, vs. Local 214—Brother John L. Weeks appealed against the action of Local 214 in fining him $100 for violation of Section 107 of the LIU Constitution. After carefully considering all the evidence submitted to Headquarters, the General President found this brother guilty but due to extenuating circumstances reduced the fine to $25.

Harlon A. Wood, No. 44947, vs. Local 513—Brother Harlon A. Wood appealed against the action of Local 513 in fining him $100 for violation of Section 17 of the LIU Constitution and the by-laws of Local 513. After carefully considering all the evidence submitted to Headquarters, the General President rescinded this fine.

Recent Developments

The tide of action against section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act—the single most noxious thorn in the side of responsible unionism and free collective bargaining—has begun to flow.

Indiana's rapid action in repealing its 8-year-old so-called "right to work" bill last January was quickly followed by rejection of a "right-to-work" proposal in New Mexico. In stark contrast to a vote of 17 to 15 in favor of the compulsory open shop Wyoming, Utah, Indiana and Pennsylvania." The Council also notes a similar development in many of the industrial states.

The labor vote turnout on the "work" issue was especially heavy in industrial states. Indiana, which had supported Nixon in 1960, went heavily democratic. This was also the case in Pennsylvania, where a "right-to-work" law has been pushed hard by the National Right to Work Committee for two years; in Ohio, which defeated a "right-to-work" law in 1958 by a million votes, and in industrial Michigan.

Action in Indiana, New Mexico, and Montana has set the pace for state action, where a successful fight for the right to collective bargaining must be fought until section 14(b) is repealed by Congress.

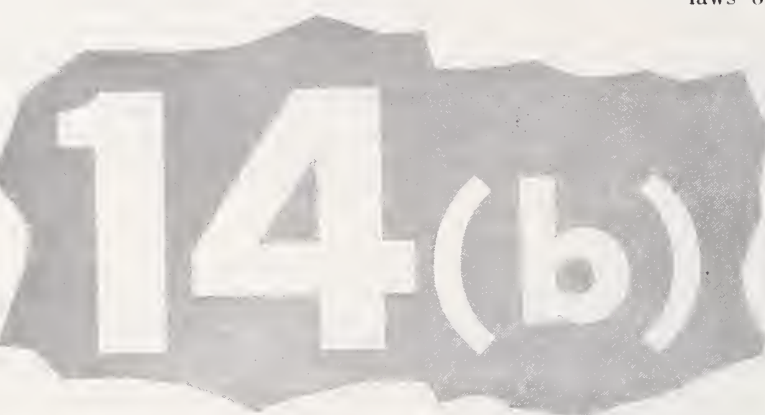

At the present time, 19 states have "right-to-work" laws on the books: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Kansas, Mississippi, Nebraska, Nevada, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia and Wyoming.

Although section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act has had the effect of encouraging passage of these restrictive state laws, it does not, in itself, make the open shop compulsory under Federal Law. The states pass the restrictive legislation.

What section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley law says, in effect, is that the law does not require membership in a labor organization as a condition of employment in any states which prohibit the union shop by law.

Paradoxically, other sections of the Taft-Hartley law specifically permit restricted forms of union security—the same security which is denied to employees in those states with "right-to-work" laws. There are serious questions about the constitutionality of this aspect of Taft-Hartley.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council, during its recent Miami meetings, issued a statement on the constitutional issue. "Section 14(b)," the Council wrote, "is a unique anomaly in the whole body of Federal Legislation and affronts the basic concepts of the Constitution. In 1935, the Congress preempted for the Federal Government jurisdiction over labor-management relations in interstate commerce. That decision was upheld by the Supreme Court. Yet in 1947 the Congress yielded to the states one corner of that jurisdiction—the right to limit union security agreements more severely than the Federal statute itself. There is no comparable provision in any Federal law; for 14(b) flies in the face of the original constitutional declaration that on matters where the Federal government has assumed jurisdiction, federal law shall be superior to state law."

STATUS REPORT

just two years ago—before the November election—the New Mexico Senate recently affirmed its belief in free choice by a margin of 18 to 14. Subsequently, the New Mexico House of Representatives likewise turned thumbs down on "right-to-work."

In Montana, the legislature urged the National Congress to repeal section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley law. Both houses passed a joint resolution requesting Congress to undo this anti-union provision.

These recent state actions illustrate the direct effect of organized labor's political activity during the 1964 election campaign. The National Council for Industrial Peace, which has analyzed the results of the election, points out that in Montana, "the issue (repeal of 14(b))—brought about a revolution in the control of the Montana Senate and House of Representatives. The same was true in New Mexico, Taft-Hartley is, then, a most curious law, which permits the states to take away what the Federal government has given, in an area where the Federal government clearly has supreme authority. Repeal of section 14(b) of the Act will restore to the Federal government its preeminent jurisdiction, and, since the Federal government recognizes union shop contracts, the states would be barred from passing laws that prohibit them.

Rights and Freedom

In addition to the constitutional issues, labor's case against 14(b)—and the state "right-to-work" laws which it permits—rests upon basic principles of Democracy. The compulsory open shop has the effect of denying rights to both employers and workers. "It denies the majority of employees," the AFL-CIO Executive Council stated, "the right to seek the kind of contract they want." This denial has been justified on the basis of "minority rights."

What is really at issue is not the rights of the minority, but the will of a minority, according to the AFL-CIO. Traditional worker rights—dissent, opposition, organization of opposition groups—are protected by both trade union regulations and Federal law. A compulsory open shop dilutes these majority rights—in effect giving the minority will a priority over the will of the majority.

The boosters of the compulsory open shop claim "worker benefit" and "freedom of choice." Often, they have received aid from some of the most rabid anti-labor and right-wing groups in the country. What their brand of "freedom" normally means, however, is the opportunity to work for substandard wages. In most of the states with right-to-work laws, the state-wide wage scales are below the national average. The incidence of poverty is higher. Economic growth is stifled.

Completely overlooked by the disciples of the compulsory open shop are the worker freedoms guaranteed by Federal law within the union shop. It is possible for a worker to cross a picket line and help break a strike in his own union, yet remain on the job as long as he pays his union dues. The union is powerless to remove a dues-paying member from his job, except in exceptional circumstances.

Employer Support

A number of responsible employers, operating successful high-wage and high-prosperity businesses, recognize the value of the union shop and have spoken out in its favor. One of these, Milton J. Shapp, who is President and Chairman of the Board of Jerrold Electronics Corp., Philadelphia, says, "I

COMMENTARY: Stud Jurisdiction

This timely editorial from the March, 1965 issue of Plastering Industries magazine puts some solid thoughts about the lathers' jurisdiction squarely on the line.

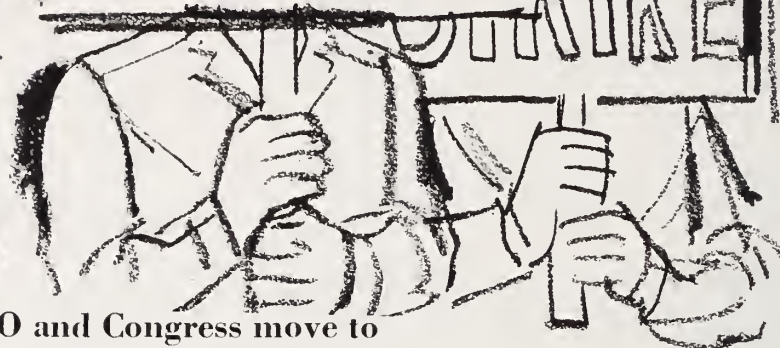

It is a compliment to us that because, in our December issue, we urged Lathers and their Contractors to resist attempts of the Carpenters to wrest away work the Lathers have historically done, that the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America has reproduced our editorial in full in a bulletin to its local unions, district and provincial councils urging Carpenters everywhere to "fight fire with fire."

Not too long ago it was metal casings and beads the Carpenters wanted, probably because this good product of lathing and plastering was being accepted as a modern finish around doors and windows; now, because in some instances materials other than lath and plaster are being installed over steel studs — the Carpenters want and are trying desperately to sign agreements giving them the studs. It would be as logical for our industry to claim wood studs if they are to receive lath and plaster.

The Carpenters are correct when they say our industry is resorting to the courts and the NLRB for relief and we hope all Lathers' business representatives and all Lathing and Plastering Contractors will maintain the eager vigilance we know we can expect from the Carpenters. But, it's still hard to understand, in the interest of harmony and good-will as claimed, why the Carpenters can't find new ideas of their own to promote and let other crafts promote theirs — and especially, do the work they promote. We were not aware, until this all started, that steel studs were an item in the Carpenter's tool box.

COMMON SITUS

PICKETING

AFL-CIO and Congress move to restore traditional construction site picketing rights.

Shortly after the AFL-CIO Building and Construction trades and Industrial Union Departments agreed on proposed situs picketing legislation and union machinery for arbitrating disputes, a Bill to implement the move was introduced in Congress.

Rep. Frank Thompson, Jr., (D-N. J.) has proposed legislation (H.R. 6363) which would amend the portion of the Taft-Hartley Act which prohibits construction site picketing. Introduced March 16, the measure, if passed, would return to the construction unions effective site picketing tools which had been considered traditional until enactment of Taft-Hartley, and the Denver Building Site Decision of the NLRB.

The AFL-CIO agreement, signed in February by Walter Reuther, for the Industrial Union Department, and C. J. Haggerty, for the Building and Construction Trades Department, is aimed both at making it possible for construction site workers from one building trades union to respect the picket line of another, and at establishing union policy for handling disputes.

Agreement had been delayed for a number of months by failure of the IUD and the BCTD to iron out differences over the issue of construction union picketing of in-plant construction work by IUD employees. To get over this hurdle, the new agreement does not cover any strike resulting from work assignment disputes between IUD and BCTD organizations.

The signatories to the AFL-CIO agreement, in a joint statement, instructed the AFL-CIO Department of Legislation to begin work immediately on efforts to get a picketing bill through Congress. They noted that both parties in Congress are pledged to enactment of such legislation.

A joint statement of principle was signed, which affirms:

1. The obligation of all affiliates to refuse to perform struck work.

2. The obligation of all union members to refuse, as far as the law allows, to cross picket lines of another union.

3. The resolve of affiliated organizations to refrain from any action which could adversely affect the position of a union on strike.

The grievance machinery requires submission of complaints first to the presidents of the International Unions involved, and if there is no agreement at that point, then to AFL-CIO President George Meany, BCTD President Haggerty and IUD President Reuther. They will jointly examine the disputes and recommend a solution.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council called the agreement a "major accomplishment in our continuing endeavors to promote the principle of trade union solidarity. Enactment of the situs picketing bill will correct a long-standing injustice and contribute greatly to the objectives of a united labor movement." At the press conference where the agreement was signed, it was pointed out that a situs picketing bill will be of great help in organization of the construction industry.

It was the NLRB Denver Building Site Decision in 1951 which really clamped the lid on construction site picketing. Back in 1947, a general contractor awarded the subcontract for electrical work to a non-union employer, and his men were the only non-union men on the entire job. After the Denver Building Trades Council picketed the job, all of the other workers walked off the job. The general contractor told the electrical subcontractor to put union men on the job, but the sub refused, and filed charges with the NLRB of unfair secondary strike, as defined by the Taft-Hartley law. The NLRB ruled for the sub.

Despite many attempts to undo the damage of this decision, and the sympathy of a number of Congressmen and recent presidents, any attempt to get remedial legislation through Congress has failed. This year, with a Democratic-liberal Congress, chances are far better.

President Eisenhower several times pushed remedial legislation—in 1954, 1955, 1958 and 1959, with no luck in Congress. President Kennedy introduced a bill to amend the law in 1959, but it failed after support of some of the industrial unions was withdrawn.

Representative Thompson has himself tried legislation twice before—once in 1959 when he co-sponsored Kennedy's proposal, and once more in 1961.

TOM WHITE OF KANKAKEE, ILL., is the kind of guy who doesn't have too much to say. But in distant, tropical Sierra Leone, they're still talking about Tom and the school he helped them fashion from the mud of Laia.

But getting Tom to tell you about his Peace Corps days is about as easy as threading a needle with a clothesline. He's content to shrug off his 20 months in the West African nation as "an interesting experience."

"Interesting" is hardly the word to describe a young American's adventure which resulted in:

1. The first school ever built in the village of Laia, put together with home-made bricks.

2. The construction of four reinforced concrete bridges which enabled farmers to cart their produce to market for the first time in their lives.

3. The installation of one gravity flow water supply system and repair of another which now guarantee something villagers had never before known—plenty of drinking water 12 months a year.

The remarkable thing about Tom White's "interesting experience" as a Peace Corps Volunteer is that he had never before in his 25 years built schools or bridges or devised water supply systems.

When he went into the Peace Corps in 1962, Tom was as much of an engineer as he was a museum curator. But like many of the 10,000 volunteers now serving in 46 countries, he soon discovered that to be successful in his Peace Corps mission, he would have to become overnight a planner, builder, organizer, diplomat, woodsman, psychologist, bricklayer and brick maker, salesman, mechanic, foreman, first aid specialist, carpenter, surveyor and tree cutter—among other things.

Tom pulled out of his $4-per-hour job as a journeyman lather to join the Peace Corps. He said he "wanted to see a little bit of the world and help other people anyway I could."

The young man from Kankakee did both.

There weren't any elephants stampeding over the hot lands of Laia. Tom didn't encounter any man-eating lions. What he did find were a few more than 200 villagers who had been talking for years about building a school for their youngsters who couldn't afford to attend the nearest one 20 miles away.

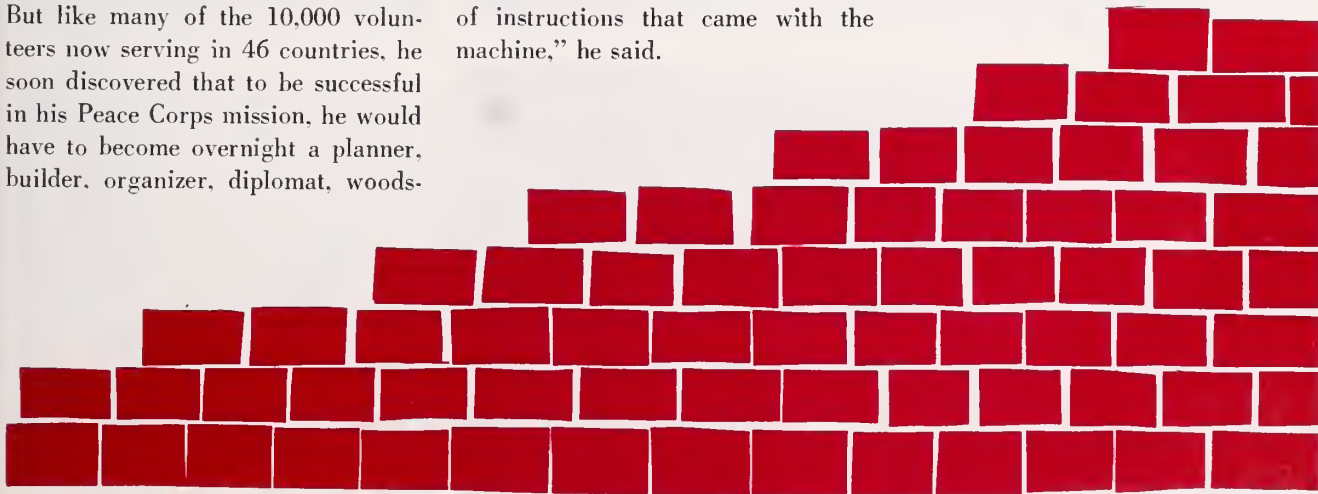

Tom huddled with members of the American Wesleyan Mission, some of the village leaders, and government officials. Before long the residents of Laia were doing more than talking about the school they wanted. They were building it.

The government forked over 400 pounds, a little more than $1100. CARE supplied the tools and the all-important brick making machine. The villagers formed a labor pool. Tom directed the operation, and once he had mastered the strange looking brick-maker, things went pretty smoothly.

"It's a good thing there was a book of instructions that came with the machine," he said.

PEACE CORPS LATHER

Back in 1962, Lather Tom White left Chicago Heights, Illinois, where he was working in Local 103, for a two-year stint of deprivation, hardship, and exceptional challenge in the Peace Corps. Sent among the people of Sierra Leone, an emerging African nation on the bulging Atlantic coastline, he put his skill and intuition to work to help the Sierra Leones bring themselves some of the basic rudiments of civilization—a school, a road and water. Now back home, Tom has resumed the trade, is a journeyman of Local 110, in his home town of Kankakee, Ill.

Call for Volunteers

Because the emerging nations are in most dire need of the most fundamental facilities of life—irrigation ditches, gravity-flow water systems, simple bridges—the skills which are most needed are often found on construction sites. The Peace Corps recently has called for more volunteers who can help build, repair, and make-do for the emerging nations.

A special committee has been set up by the AFL-CIO to work with the Peace Corps in stimulating interest. Guaranteed re-employment rights and formal leave-of-absence policies, pension and seniority rights for all workers who volunteer for the Peace Corps have been agreed upon.

He had to test various types of soil before deciding which would make the best kind of brick.

"You moisten the soil, add six per cent cement, put it in the hopper and compress it," Tom explained. "We didn't get the best bricks in the world but they weren't bad."

The school turned out to be 54 feet long and 21 feet wide. It is a two-room structure. About 100 villagers worked on the school "off and on" and Tom had to teach them the needed skills as soon as he got the hang of them himself. The job took six months to complete.

The American Wesleyan Mission supplied the furniture, found a teacher and when Tom moved on to another task, 97 children were enrolled in the Laia school.

Tom, whose Sierra Leone home was a mud hut with a corrugated roof, took a round-about route to help African farmers in another area increase their production of precious foods.

He learned that they were planting only half of their fields because they had no efficient means of getting their crops to market. Most of the bananas, rice, cassava, palm kernels, palm oil, oranges, pineapples and peanuts rotted before they could reach the market place. Families struggled through the high grass and across treacherous streams carrying heavy loads of produce to meet the market truck some two miles away. During the rainy season this trek was extremely difficult.

One solution to this problem became readily evident to Tom White. Bridges. Tom followed the system similar to the one he used in building the Laia school. He involved villagers, the government, CARE and anybody else who would listen. By "trial and error," Tom and his crew erected four reinforced concrete bridges.

"Mostly by trial and error," he admitted.

But trial overcame error and the villagers gained more direct routes to the market and are now able to produce and sell more produce.

In sweltering west coastal Africa, Tom White's bridge progresses across a muddy creek.

In still another village, Tom came upon despair and suffering among the African families whose wells often ran dry during the long, hot season, despite the fact that there was a small stream bubbling out of the ground only a few thousand feet away.

Tom's imagination went to work and when all the gears and wheels in his mind finally came to a halt, he figured he had the answer in two words—gravity flow. Again capturing the interest of officials, he masterminded a gravity flow system utilizing hydrants and plastic piping. Villagers provided the manpower and helped end an agonizing water shortage.

"I don't know, I just did it," was Tom's answer when asked how he managed to supervise a project so foreign to his own skills.

Tom's "interesting experience" in Sierra Leone is not an isolated one. The resourcefulness of Peace Corps Volunteers has turned out to be the rule rather than the exception. One observer noted:

"They have gone backwards in time. In lands short of supplies that we take for granted, they have become mechanics of a put-it-together-with-chewing-gum-and-bailing-wire genre. We had thought that such resourcefulness had been thinned out of their blood for lack of use in their homeland of push-button conveniences."

Button pushing is the talent least used by Peace Corps Volunteers simply because there are usually no buttons around to push. Unless it's the one located somewhere inside the human machine which people forget about until the chips are really down.

LARGE GYPSUM LATH for THIN-COAT PLASTER

Members of Local 507, San Luis Obispo, California, recently handled a big job putting in large gypsum board as a base for thin-coat plaster. About 45,000 yards of thin wall finish went over the Gypsum. This method of plastering is increasingly popular, because of construction speed combined with the traditional benefits of lath and plaster construction.

am opposed, and violently opposed, to a "right-to-work" law in Pennsylvania or anywhere in the United States. "Right-to-work" laws do the very opposite to what their sponsors claim. They do not increase job opportunities, but they would drag Pennsylvania back to the 19th Century, and Lord knows we are close enough to that as it is."

John B. Kelly, Jr., President of the John B. Kelly Company which specializes in masonry construction work, says, "I have probably a different reason than most for being against "right-to-work" laws. In the Philadelphia area we occasionally have to compete against non-union contractors, where very few, if any, benefits go to the workers. The contractors who do this type of work observe very few safety regulations and cut every possible corner. If non-union work becomes prevalent, it will create chaos, and force union contractors to compromise their standards, which would jeopardize the quality of construction, as well as the safety of employees.

"We deal with a great many unions throughout the eastern part of the United States. Most of them are reasonable and responsible, and I would hate to see any of these good unions undermined by the passage of 'right-to-work.'"

Despite the fact the economics, law, principles of democratic freedom and justice overwhelmingly tilt the moral balance against the compulsory open shop, and despite the fact that rapid and beneficial action has already begun in several states as a result of the last election, restoration of the right to union security in all 50 states is far from assured.

There are powerful forces of anti-labor businessmen, as well as right-wing extremists, who are actively working against last November's mandate at the polls.

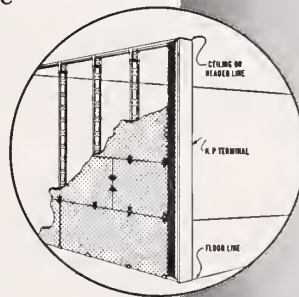

"This must not happen," the AFL-CIO Executive Council declared. "We call upon the Congress to act promptly and favorably on the repeal of 14(b), and we urge every affiliated national union, every state and local central body and every union member to join in a campaign to that end."

Presidents of the three sponsoring organizations of the National Bureau for the Promotion of Lath and Plaster met with new Bureau Executive Director Gene Sheid in Washington, January 28, and promised continued full support of plasterers, lathers and contractors for the National Bureau.

The three: Sal Maso, General President of the Lathers International Union; Edward G. Leonard, President of the Operative Plasterers and Cement Masons International Association, and George H. Brueggeman, President of the Bureau as well as the Contracting Plasterers and Lather International Association, endorsed the Bureau program and restated the need to promote and sell the industry.

The program, representatives felt, is off to an excellent start. The National Bureau clause should be negotiated into all new contracts, and steps should be taken immediately to renegotiate the Bureau Clause in present wage agreements that do not now have them.

NYC Employers Elect Jeremiah Burns

Jeremiah J. Burns, Co-Chairman of the Joint Industry Apprenticeship Committee of the Lathing Industry and president of Jeremiah Burns, Inc., New York, was elected president of the New York City Building Trades Employers' Association at its February 16 annual meeting. Sal Maso, General President of the L.I.U. is the other co-Chairman.

The B.T.E.A. is comprised of approximately 1,000 general and specialty contractors who do more than 30 per cent of New York City's annual $1.25 billion construction program.

Mr. Burns, a native New Yorker, succeeds Jack W. Zucker, president of the Shatz Painting Company, Inc. He started as an apprentice lather in 1922 after attending Cathedral College, and founded the metal furring and lathing firm bearing his name in 1945. In 1947 he was elected to B.T.E.A.'s board of governors; in 1949, to the executive committee. For the past three years he has been a vice president of the association.

He has been secretary of the New York Building Congress since 1961, after serving as vice president during the four previous years.

President of the Employing Metallic Furring and Lathing Association of New York since 1949, Mr. Burns is a past president of the General Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen; a director of the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association and a member of the executive committee of the Building Industry Employers of New York State.

Jeremiah J. Burns

James Downey Elected

James J. Downey, Jr., who started in the construction industry as a member of Local 46, LIU, was recently elected president of William J. Scully, Inc. and William J. Scully Acoustics Corp. The firms specialize in metal furring and lathing, and accoustical work.

A native of Philadelphia, Mr. Downey started working for the Scully firm in 1923 as an apprentice lather and worked his way up through the ranks. At the same time, he attended Mechanics Institute in New York City and successfully completed a course in architectural drafting, plan reading and estimating. He became a vice president at Scully in 1947.

The Scully firm has worked on a number of New York's better-known buildings, among them One Wall Street, the Seagram Building and the R.C.A. Building.

It was the largest conference held since the Council was organized on September 13, 1925. Every local in the state was represented at this meeting, with many visitors in attendance. Local 197 of Rock Island gave a banquet to the delegates and visitors and their wives. This was by far the greatest meeting of the Council, both in attendance and in business.

The following officers were elected: Floyd Borden, President; P. J. Hickey, Vice-President; Geo. T. Moore, Secretary-Treasurer; Wm. Corbett, Sergeant-at-Arms; Wm. F. Betz, Trustee; Geo. F. Michael, Trustee; H. W. O'Neill, Trustee; Geo. F. Michael, Delegate to Illinois State Federation of Labor Convention.

1965 Elections Will Have Double-Barrelled Importance

THEY may not pack the wallop of the Johnson-Goldwater contest of 1964, but the city, county and state elections of 1965 have their own special importance.

Elections are scheduled this year in more than 1,000 cities of 10,000-and-over population in 43 states. In addition to these municipal elections, state and county elections will be held in nine states: Connecticut, Illinois, Kentucky, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Wisconsin.

The officials who will be elected by the people will make decisions that vitally affect the communities you live in, and your personal welfare and security. Industrial safety, local tax laws, schools and roads, street lighting and even garbage collection . . . decisions on all these and other important issues are made by the officials who conduct the affairs of your town, your county and your state.

So working people and their families have a vital stake in this year's elections.

But there is another point about the 1965 elections. As National COPE Director Alexander E. Barkan points out, city, county and state elections are not only important in themselves but they are "equally important because of their potential effect on state and national elections in 1966."

"The 1965 elections," Barkan said, "afford a splendid opportunity to maintain and improve existing COPE machinery, to train new recruits and to provide additional activities to those who did such a good job in the COPE program in 1964."

He urged union members to regard this year's elections "not only in the light of their own very real significance, but as an opportunity to broaden all aspects of our political education program."

This Vote Vital, Too

From THE ADVANCE, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America

"Although the elections of 1965 do not compare in over-all significance with those of the past year, it is nevertheless important that all Amalgamated members and their families register and vote. Of course, voting for the President of the United States, for Senators and Representatives, for Governors—all these are glamorous and exciting. But many day-to-day, bread-and-butter issues are settled in your home town, and if you're not registered, you can't vote, and if you don't vote, you're out in the cold.

"In the year of 1965, many local problems of immediate and direct concern to the people will be voted on in municipal elections. More than 1,000 such elections are scheduled for voters in cities of over 10,000 population, in 43 states. Besides their consequence in each locality, each is also important because of their potential effect on state and national elections in 1966.

"In addition to municipal elections, state and county elections will take place in Connecticut, Illinois, Kentucky, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Wisconsin. Some states will also have special balloting on reapportionment.

"So, as you can see, voting in 1965 is important. And don't forget voluntary contributions. . . ."

RIB-TICKLERS

A well dressed salesman was hurrying to catch a train when he was accosted by a panhandler who asked for a dollar.

"A dollar!" sputtered the salesman. "I never heard of such a thing! If you want to ask for money, ask for a dime or a quarter, but not a dollar."

"Listen, mister," said the bum, "give me a dollar or don't give me a dollar, but don't tell me how to run my business!"

"Why are you so sure there is no life on Mars?"

"Well, for one thing, they have never asked the United States for a loan."

Doctor: "Why do you have BF-76552 tattooed on your back?"

Patient: "That's not tattooed, doctor. That's where my wife ran into me with the car when I was opening the garage."

My uncle was a clever human being. He died last month, and a few weeks later all of us relatives gathered for the reading of his will. "Being of sound mind," my uncle's lawyer read from the will, "I spent every last cent before I died."

"How do you like my new evening gown?" asked the wife.

"Pretty, but confusing," was the reply.

"How do you mean confusing?"

"Well," said the husband, "I can't decide whether you're on the inside trying to get out, or on the outside trying to get in."

On the first day of school the teacher explained that if anyone had to go to the bathroom he should hold up two fingers. One puzzled little pupil asked plaintively:

"How's that going to help?"

When the condensed version was submitted the social note mentioned was recorded as follows: "During the first three months the mission was in the field 2 percent of the men married 50 percent of the women."

The people that economists used to say were underprivileged are now described as overfinanced.

The bachelor hired man on a farm in Indiana approached his employer one afternoon in November and asked if he could borrow the farmer's automobile on January 15th.

"I suppose it will be all right," the farmer said. "What's going on?"

"I'm getting married that day," the hired man said.

"That's nice," the farmer said. "Who's the lucky girl?"

"I don't know yet," the hired man said. "I wanted to make sure I could have the car first."

Jack Parr once asked Wally Cox if he ever watched Paar's TV show.

"I watch you more than other show," was Cox's reply.

There was a pause while Paar tried to figure out whether or not this was a compliment to him.

"I should point out," Cox added in his quiet way, "that there is a syntactical pitfall in that sentence. Other shows probably don't watch your show very much."

Being transferred from civilians to Marines at Parris Island, the group were stripped of civilian clothing, given Marine haircuts, an icy shower and told to wait in a small room. They sat together on a cold tile floor, their heads bald, their bodies blue with cold, afraid to move. It was then a guy next to one victim asked in a whisper. "Who'd you used to be?"

An old gent was passing an intersection when a St. Bernard dog ran by and knocked him down. A moment later a Volkswagen skidded around the corner and inflicted more damage. A bystander helped him to his feet, and someone asked if the dog hurt him.

"Well," he answered, "the dog didn't hurt so much, but the tin can tied to his tail nearly killed me!"

The young mother was sitting in the breakfast nook shelling peas when she heard a knock at the back door. Thinking it was her daughter, she called, "Here I am darling."

Silence. Then a deep voice boomed: "This is not the regular meter reader, ma'am."

"Your reports aren't clear," the colonel told the sergeant.

"They should be written in such a manner that even the most ignorant can understand them."

"Yes, sir," replied the top kick, "and now what part is it that you don't understand?"

The Hanging Gardens of Babylon

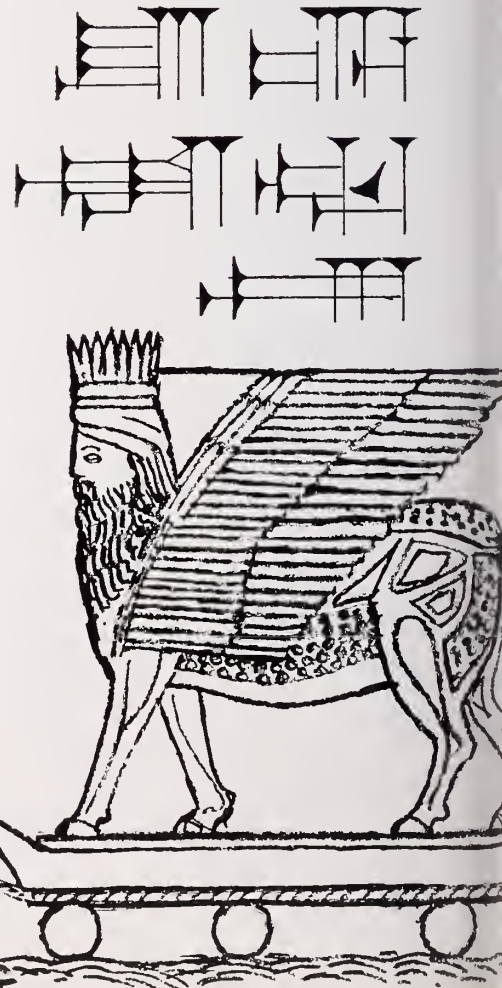

Generally considered “the second” of the ancient world’s “wonders”, the Hanging Gardens of Babylon were built by Nebuchadnezzar II about the year 600 B.C. to please his queen, Amuhia, daughter of the King of the Medes to the north, who had spent her girlhood in a mountainous region and disliked the hot Babylonian plains.

The Gardens consisted of a series of five terraces of sun-dried brick — each leveled off 50 feet above the one below — to a height of 250 feet. A winding stair led to the queen’s “paradise” on top.

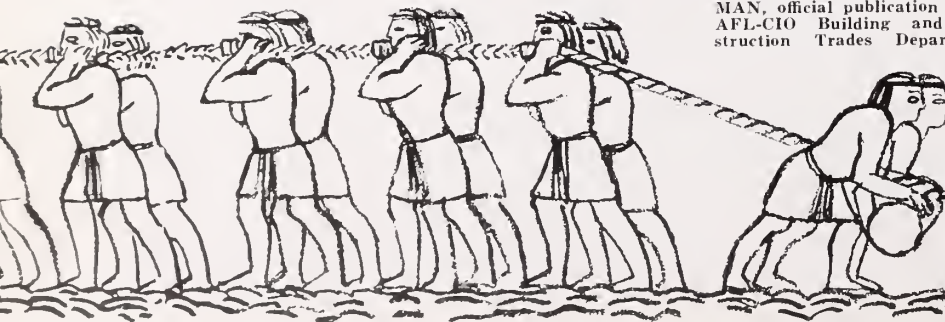

The labor of thousands of slaves was used in construction of the queen’s retreat. The terraces themselves were beautiful gardens boasting the rarest and most beautiful plants obtainable from the then known world. Luxuriant trees provided shade. There were flowery fountains. Tame animals disported themselves at ease through the meadows.

No record of the width and breadth of the Gardens has yet been discovered. Remains of irrigation works indicate that a long vaulted building, enclosing a screw-type installation for raising water to the terraces from the Euphrates River, was built to keep the Gardens fresh and green. This is the first known case in recorded history of the practical use of the vaulting construction technique — apart from its use in tombs.

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

You have been fully informed in the past about all events with reference to the National Joint Board, and at this time I shall bring you up to date on this matter.

Under date of March 17, 1965, we received notification from Mr. William J. Cour, Chairman of the National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes, that President Hutcheson of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America had requested decisions on several jobs where our members were employed.

We directed a wire to Chairman Cour under date of March 23, 1965, and again March 24, 1965, asking him to advise us of any changes in the status of organizations in noncompliance with the Board. We also requested that all cases involving lathers be postponed. Under date of March 29, 1965, Mr. Cour stated in a letter that at a meeting of March 25, 1965, the Joint Board declared the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners to be in compliance with its procedural rules and voted to resume hearings and rendering of decisions in cases submitted by that International Union as of April 1, 1965, including those cases about which we had been notified the week before and on which we had requested postponement. The letter further advised that these cases in question, with the exception of two appeals for reconsideration from the decisions of the Joint Conference Board of Chicago, would be considered by the Joint Board at its meeting of April 1, 1965.

The two appeals for reconsideration from decisions of the Joint Conference Board of Chicago were considered by the Joint Board at their meeting of March 25, 1965. At that time they voted that, inasmuch as both International Unions were in noncompliance with the procedural rules of the National Joint Board at the time the decisions of the Joint Conference Board of Chicago were rendered, these cases were not properly before the National Joint Board. These two cases are as follows. In both instances the work was awarded to the Lathers by the Joint Conference Board of Chicago.

1. Medical Building, Berwyn, Illinois, A. V. Viren & Son, Inc., General Contractor, Jim Belsan Plastering Company, Subcontractor; over erection of Grid Ceiling on corridor ceilings and room ceilings.

2. Job located at 223 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Illinois; James Lyons Company, Contractor, over installation of rocklath to receive acoustical tile.

We received a telegram dated April 1, 1965, from Chairman Cour of the Joint Board stating that as of April 1, 1965, all affiliated International Unions of the Building and Construction Trades Department and all participating National Contractors' Associations would be considered to be in compliance with the procedural rules of the National Joint Board unless and until they are found to be in noncompliance in a specific case after April 1, 1965.

There were six cases where the Carpenters had filed against us for job decisions in line for consideration by the Joint Board. Five were on the agenda for the April 1, 1965 meeting of the Joint Board. In all of these cases the Lathers had the assignment and were performing the work. Three involved the erection of screwable metal studs, including wall and ceiling and floor runners to receive drywall, and were awarded to the Carpenters. One involved the installation of acoustical grid ceiling system inserts, hangers, wall angles and channels being performed by Lathers. The Joint Board voted there was no basis to change the contractors assignment. Another case was not considered, because of some question as to the type of work involved.

In accordance with the procedural rules of the National Joint Board, we then had a choice of three courses to take with respect to these decisions. We could (1) request from the National Joint Board reconsideration of the decisions by submitting additional written evidence; (2) request an oral hearing by the National Joint Board, provided that the job decision had been accepted and put into effect by the affected parties and remained in effect until reconsidered or the oral hearing was held by the Joint Board; or (3) submit an appeal of the decision to the Appeals Board.

We decided to submit appeals on the three adverse decisions to the Appeals Board, and under the date of April 13, 1965, we directed a letter to John T. Dunlop, Chairman, appealing these decisions. The appeal against the decision in one instance, which was the Launch Operations Complex, Mila Area, Merritt Island, Florida, was accepted, and set for hearing on April 22, 1965; the other two appeals were refused by the Appeals Board.

As of this writing we have approximately 30 cases filed with the National Joint Board to be considered. However, in several instances we have been informed by the Board that the cases are not "properly before the board." In these cases there was a discrepancy in the information submitted. This could be the description of the work, if the contractor notified the Joint Board that the description of work is not correct. It could mean that the Joint Board has been informed that there was no attempt to settle the existing dispute on the local level. We have been notified on several occasions that the National Joint Board received communications from the Contractor stating that he is not aware of any dispute on his job.

Any discrepancy in filing with the Joint Board delays consideration of the case. Therefore, we must receive complete and accurate information on each and every case we submit in order to avoid any delay. You must follow the proper procedure on the local level before submitting the information to Headquarters. The following information must be provided.

1. Names and Addresses of the Contractors and Subcontractors
2. Names and Location of the project
3. Disputing trades involved
4. Full account of events leading to the dispute
5. Assignment of work made (a) to whom and (b) by whom
6. Steps already taken to adjust the dispute (give names of parties present when attempts to settle dispute were made, dates of meetings and results)
7. A full and detailed description of the disputed work, including pictures, prints and drawings whenever possible.

When a dispute is submitted to the National Joint Board, the members must remain on the job and not cause a stoppage of work or hold up the job, or processing of a request for a decision will not start until the members are returned to work.

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

IN 1959, THERE WAS A BILL PASSED in Congress known as the Landrum-Griffin Act, or the Public Disclosure Law. One of the provisions was a very strong requirement for the bonding of labor union officials "for the faithful discharge of his duties".

Now, this would appear to be very simple language, but it has caused considerable controversy in interpretation, and most of all has caused bonding companies to charge outlandish prices for bonds, if they elect to furnish a bond. Should they elect to refuse a bond, regardless of the fact their refusal was not justified, this would really be a black mark against the person's record.

Labor, from the outset, was not opposed to the mandatory provision calling for financial officers to be bonded, as most labor organizations have provisions in their Constitutions requiring that their financial officers be bonded. But labor certainly opposed that portion of the Bill which made the bonding of labor union officials a very lucrative business. Labor certainly was not in favor of making millionaire corporations of the bonding companies at the expense of trade labor unions.

Because of these excessive charges, if my memory serves me correctly, the AFL-CIO, since the enactment of the Landrum-Griffin Act, has strenuously objected to the high premium rates charged by bonding companies. A survey was conducted by the AFL-CIO for the express purpose of determining the reason for such high bonding rates.

Were labor officials such a great risk? I say no. The results of the survey revealed that labor officials were not great risks. As a matter of fact, the percentage of labor officials considered a poor risk was infinitesimal. On the basis of facts revealed in the survey, the AFL-CIO was in a position to negotiate for a reduction in premium rates, and were successful in obtaining a small reduction. However, applicants are still subject to that controversial provision "for the faithful discharge of his duties".

After living with this law since 1959, we now have a very able Congressman from Illinois—Congressman Roman C. Pucinski—who has introduced a Bill in Congress known as H.R. 5883. It provides for the elimination of the controversial quote—"for the faithful discharge of his duties"—and offers as a substitute a provision calling for a strong honesty bond. Premiums under these terms should be greatly reduced.

This Bill, H.R. 5883, has been reported out of the House Education and Labor Committee and is now pending before the Rules Committee. There is a possibility that this Bill will be brought before the House before this magazine goes to press. If this should happen, we have no way of knowing how much debate or opposition there will be to it. We certainly hope for its passage. However, it would be well if all local union secretaries keep posted on this particular Bill, as local union secretaries likewise have to be bonded.

May I again advise secretaries of all local unions that only tax-exempt members and holders of regular withdrawal cards are exempt from payment of extra per capita tax for our Legal Defense Fund.

Sincerely and fraternally,

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

Report from the General President

When a request for a decision is submitted to the National Joint Board by an International Union, it is promptly sent by the Chairman of the Board to the other International Union involved in the dispute. When the request for decision is submitted by a contractor, it is promptly sent by the Chairman of the Board to both (all) International Unions directly involved in the dispute.

The International Unions are allowed five business days in which to state their position to the Joint Board. The affected contractor or contractors are notified to furnish a full description of the disputed work.

Upon receipt of the information requested by the Joint Board, the request for decision is placed on the agenda for consideration of the members of the Joint Board at their next regular meeting. Regular meetings of the Joint Board are held weekly.

When a decision is rendered by the National Joint Board and any International Organization feels such decision is rendered by the Board in error, it is then privileged to follow the procedures outlined previously in this report, which are also set forth in the Procedural Rules of the National Joint Board.

In the event of either a reconsideration or an oral hearing, the decision rendered by the Joint Board must be put into effect and remain in continuous effect until either the reconsideration or the oral hearing is held. In the event of an appeal to the Appeals Board, the original assignment of work remains until such time as the Appeals Board has acted. If the original decision or interpretation is modified or reversed, such modification or reversal must be complied with immediately.

The Appeals Board was set up when the machinery for the settlement of jurisdictional disputes in the Building and Construction Industry was revised, which was made effective as of April 1, 1965. The Appeals Board is empowered to review and decide any appeal from a decision or ruling of the National Joint Board or a Local Board recognized under Article IV, (New York, Chicago, Boston) and when a decision is rendered by the Appeals Board it shall be final. An appeal to the Appeals Board must be made within two working days after the date of the decision of the Joint Board or the recognized local board.

This gives you a picture of the operation of the National Joint Board and the Appeals Board and also gives you the procedures which must be followed to obtain these job decisions. I cannot stress too strongly the necessity of providing complete and accurate information. We must have your full cooperation to properly execute our cases before the Board and in so doing protect our Trade jurisdiction.

We have available at Headquarters the newly revised Green Book and Procedural Rules which went into effect April 1, 1965. There are changes in both of these documents, and I urge each and every local union to see that their representative is furnished with a set. The charge per set is 50 cents. They will be listed in the LATHER in the supply list.

Also, in view of a number of inquiries for the names of the members of the National Joint Board, we have listed them here, with their affiliation. Also listed are the names and affiliation of the members of the Appeals Board.

We shall keep you informed with respect to the National Joint Board and the Appeals Board, and the cases in which we are involved and which are considered by the Board. You can readily see from this report how essential and important it is that all of our members give their full cooperation to all of our officers, both national and local, so that we may be in position to adjudicate these cases in the proper manner.

In keeping you up to date on legislation being processed through the House and Senate, we want to bring your attention to the following Bills which have been introduced. We ask that you write to your U. S. Congressman and Senators urging them to support these Bills as they move through the legislative process. They are very important measures to the labor movement as a whole.

(1) These Bills, if passed, favor bilateral administration of Promotional Bureaus:

- H.R. 4411, Roman Pucinski of Illinois

- H.R. 1153, James Roosevelt of California

They are identical with one exception. The Roosevelt Bill has a clause which states that bargaining to establish promotional bureaus shall not be mandatory. The Pucinski Bill provides that bargaining shall be mandatory.

(2) The following Bills, if passed, would repeal Section 14(h) of the Taft-Hartley Act, which affirms the authority of states to enact Right-to-Work Laws:

- H.R. 77, the primary Bill introduced by Representative Frank Thompson, Jr., of New Jersey.

- S-256, introduced by Senator McNamara of Michigan, and Senator Morris of Oregon.

We shall keep you informed of the progress of these Bills. In the meantime, be sure to contact your Representatives with respect to their support of these Bills.

Sincerely and fraternally,

Sal Maso

Brother Pinzone Appointed Deputy International Representative

During the Tenth National AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Conference May 3-6 in Washington, ILU General President Sal Maso announced the appointment of Charles R. Pinzone as Deputy International Representative. Brother Pinzone is presently Business Representative of Local 2, Cleveland, Ohio, and was elected to the post to succeed J. Earl Ferguson, present General Secretary-Treasurer of the LIU.

Brother Pinzone has been a journeyman lather since 1947, and held every office in Local 2 since 1951, except that of president and recording secretary. His family includes his wife Doris, and 8 children—four boys and four girls.

Expanded Medicare Wins by Lopsided Vote in House

WASHINGTON (PAI) — The House of Representatives wrote legislative history when it passed the expanded, labor-supported Medicare bill by the one-sided count of 313 to 115.

It was the first time that medical legislation of this kind had ever reached the floor of the House for a vote. And the fight for this protection first started in 1934.

Now the spotlight turns to the Senate which, only last year, voted for Medicare. Prospects for passage of the broadened bill in the Senate could not be brighter. By June, the Administration expects to have the bill ready for President Johnson's signature.

The House bill not only provides for Medicare—hospital and nursing home care—but also doctor bill insurance and vastly increased Social Security benefits for the aged.

The measure has one of the top legislative priority ratings by both the Administration and organized labor.

On the final roll call 65 Republicans, close to half the House GOP membership, joined 248 Democrats in support of the measure.

The result was such a foregone conclusion, even before the vote, that the two-day debate produced little drama and no new information. Most of the speeches trod familiar ground and were for the record.

Leading the House fight for the legislation was Rep. Wilbur Mills (D. Ark.) chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. It was Mills, through the last half-dozen years, who represented opposition to the medical legislation.

The White House, obviously pleased by the decisive outcome of the vote, issued this victory statement:

"This is a landmark in the historic evolution of our Social Security System. The overwhelming vote demonstrates once again the vitality of our democratic system in responding to the will of the people.

"In 1935 the passage of the original Social Security Act opened up a new era of expanding income security for our older citizen. Now in 1965 we are moving once again to open still another frontier: that of health security. Access to the best doctors, hospitals and other providers of medical service have to offer is his most urgent need."

The President congratulated the House leadership as well as the members on the result of the vote. He then noted that Senator Harry Byrd (D. Va.), no friend of Medicare, has promised to hold early hearings in his Senate Finance Committee.

John W. Edelman, president of the two-million-member National Council of Senior Citizens, which spearheaded a national program to mobilize public support for the Medicare bill over the past four years issued the following statement after the House vote:

"The old folks of America have provided the human drama and the enthusiasm which has kept this issue before Congress and the public. However, the 13½ million members of organized labor have stood solidly behind us and without their support—and the support of church and social groups of all ages—it may have taken much longer to convince Congress of the need for urgent legislative action."

Meanwhile, more than 200 witnesses have already signed up to testify on the measure before the Senate Finance Committee.

Senator Clinton P. Anderson (D. N. M.), Senator sponsor of the King-Anderson Medicare bill was optimistic about Senate prospects. He predicted that the House bill would get through the Senate "without any fundamental changes."

Senator Paul Douglas (D. Ill.) praised the House-passed measure but said he would fight a secondary measure which has aroused the ire of the American Hospital Association. This is that expenses for such specialists as pathologists and radiologists would be covered by the voluntary system. Douglas will move to place it under Medicare where it was in the original House proposal.

TEMPUS FUGIT

WASHINGTON (PAI)—For more than seven years many members of Congress backed by organized labor and numerous other groups have devoted countless hours to achieving Medicare.

Yet, when the House of Representatives passed the measure on April 8, Dr. Donovan F. Ward, president of the American Medical Association, said the House action was "characterized by unrestrained haste."

General President Wins Public Acclaim

In a recent trip to the west, to sound out lather needs at the local level and to discuss industry problems with lathing contractors, LIU General President Sal Maso made a lasting impression on the Phoenix, Arizona, press.

Following a March 31 stop there, the Phoenix Gazette reported General President Maso's exhortation to lathers to "cooperate with employers and not price themselves out of the market." Urging establishment of apprenticeship schools at the local level, President Maso was quoted by the paper as saying, "If you want to survive, you must keep in time with innovations and give a day's work for a day's pay."

He also urged union members at the bargaining table to "be reasonable, sensible, and come to a workable agreement—fair to the employer, yourselves and to the public."

The comments became the subject of a follow-up editorial which appears in the Saturday, April 3, issue of the paper. Headed, "A Union Leader Talks Sense," the editorial (at right) praised the General President's common sense.

SATURDAY, APRIL 3, 1965

A Union Leader Talks Sense

If all of organized labor displayed the common sense exhibited by Sal Maso, president of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union, working men would share in an increased national prosperity.

Maso, on a tour of locals in the West, warned Phoenix area members that they must be careful not to price themselves out of the market. He exhorted them to "give a day's work for a day's pay" and, in bargaining, to "be reasonable, sensible and come to a workable agreement — fair to the employer, yourselves and the public."

Those are excellent guidelines for all of the labor movement. Unfortunately, not all unions are blessed with such enlightened leadership, as evidenced by the recent dock strikes that senselessly damaged the economy to the tune of perhaps $1 billion, and the prolonged featherbedding practices of the rail unions — to cite but two examples of many.

When a union becomes greedy and unfair, it hurts a lot of people, but its own members ultimately suffer the most. Craftsmen have been put out of work on not a few occasions because unreasonable demands by their unions have forced businesses into bankruptcy. Often, employers are forced to use substitute materials or techniques, perhaps inferior, as answer to unwise unions. The alternatives frequently mean fewer jobs and poorer products for the consumer, including, of course, working men.

A working man deserves a fair share of the profits and prosperity he helps to create — no more and no less. That, apparently, is what Maso proposes that his union members demand. What a glorious thing it would be, not only for labor but for the entire populace, if all union leaders adopted "Fairness To All Concerned" as a motto.

THINCOAT PLASTER

The significant new material is forcing architects, owners and contractors to reconsider lath and plaster as a modern, versatile and economical technique

IN A CLASSIC DEMONSTRATION of the advantages of the thincoat plaster system recently, lathers and plasterers moved into an office for a complete remodeling project one evening, just as the office workers were leaving. The time was 5:00 p. m. By 8:00 a. m. the following morning, when people began to arrive back at the office, the lath and plaster work was finished and dry, and furniture was back in place for business as usual. Only the beauty and efficiency of the surroundings had changed.

Thincoat plaster is one of the most significant industry improvements in the past ten years. It offers high density, high strength and the advantage of going on fast and setting and curing rapidly.

As long as 15 years ago, the industry began searching for an interior wall system which would provide the strength and appearance of conventional lath and plaster, yet offer savings in construction time. Research led to the conclusion that a heavier lath base was necessary, with a thinner plaster coat capable of rapid setting.

The answer was large size gypsum lath, over which is applied a rapid-setting, extra-strong plaster. Ingredients of the coating are plaster and water, with a special catalyst for setting.

In addition to installation speed, the system provides an exceptionally hard surface. Manufacturer's compression tests have indicated surface hardness as high as 6000 psi, capable of taking hard abuse. Systems are offered with both one and two hour fire ratings.

During construction, sheets of large-size lath are placed on the joists, with care that lath joints do not fall at corners of openings, and that joints are offset. Once in place, mesh is applied over all of the joints between panels, and at internal corners. For fire-rated ceilings, asbestos tape must be placed behind the butt joints of the lath. Corner bead is applied by nailing, stapling, or the clinch-on method.

The advantages of the thincoat system is winning increasing acceptance among architects, builders, contractors, engineers and owners—especially in the last year. A large department store in Southern California recently changed plans to install a paper-covered soft wall system in favor of thincoat, and is now specifying thincoat for new branch stores in the planning stage.

A model home which is to be built soon by the students of the Los Angeles Technical College will feature thincoat systems. At the Los Angeles Trade Technical Junior College, enrollment for a special school on application of large-size lath used in thincoat plaster applications has broken all records. Lathing contractors devote major attention to the subject of thincoat lathing whenever they have meetings or conventions.

Possibly the greatest value of the new thincoat system is that it is stimulating a resurgence of interest in lath and plaster. Construction which has been using substitute materials in recent years, because of the cost and time required for conventional lath and plaster, now has a material which retains the best of lath and plaster—fire resistance, durability, beauty, design flexibility and sound resistance—at the cost of the substitutes.

WHY I SPONSORED A REPEAL BILL

by Rep. Frank Thompson, Jr. (D-N.J.)

I have introduced H.R. 77, a bill to repeal Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, for many reasons. The most obvious is that this provision is illogical and disruptive.

It is illogical to establish a national policy to promote collective bargaining and, in the very same law, undermine that policy by inviting states to restrict union security. It is disruptive because the open shop laws enacted under this provision stand as a constant threat to a union's security and so foster continual warfare between labor and management.

But the basic reason Section 14(b) should be wiped off the books is that it offends a fundamental freedom of man. In a democratic society, workers should enjoy freedom of association, the right to join together to pursue common ends. Historically, workers have joined together to form trade unions.

The process of collective bargaining which has evolved with industrialization works best when labor and management are left free to work out the details of their relationship with a minimum of government involvement.

It is federal law and public policy in the United States to encourage collective bargaining. The union shop is the form of union security permitted, with the aim of stabilizing the labor-management relationship and promoting industrial peace.

Since Section 14(b) flies in the face of this policy, since the so-called right-to-work laws promote war rather than peace, since the open shop situation pits worker against worker in cruel competition, I trust and hope H.R. 77 will be quickly enacted.

by Sen. Pat McNamara (D-Mich.)

I was pleased to introduce in this session S. 256, a bill which will repeal Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act and eliminate the vicious "right-to-work" laws.

It is about time that the attempted sabotage of industrial states is stopped.

Some open shop states have not been bashful about offering cheap labor in an effort to entice industry to their areas.

Such states usually find in due time that run-away industry is not good industry.

Employers who prefer cheap labor are not stable employers and they serve simply to hold back the progress of the state in which they locate.

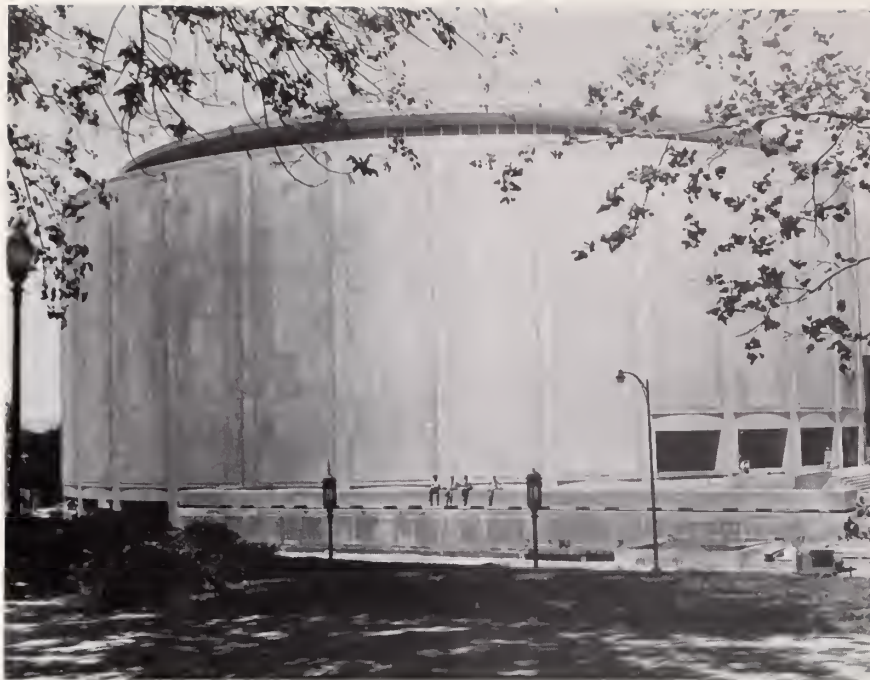

Michigan knows the value of strong unions, strong industry and high wage levels.

Union security in the automobile and other industries has produced high income, paid vacations and holidays, health care protection and a more stable state economy.

The repeal of the "right-to-work" laws by striking Section 14(b) off the law books would clearly serve two purposes.

It would protect industrial states in their labor-management achievements and economic progress. And, secondly, it would compel open shop states to recognize that the soundest progress comes from letting secure unions bargain for economic gains which enhance the welfare of the entire state.

Labor and management must be free to work out the relationship under which they can then proceed with the challenge of producing goods and services efficiently and sharing the benefits equitably. This is the aim of S. 256.

The William Penn Memorial Museum occupies a five-acre site, adjacent to Pennsylvania's State Capitol Building. Metal lath and stucco fasciae of entryways and of the domed roof blend with the lime stone finish of the building's exterior. The building is occupied by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission.

WILLIAM PENN MUSEUM

Contributing to the serene and timeless beauty of the museum section of the William Penn Memorial Museum and Archives Building, Harrisburg, Pa., are flawless walls, ceilings and curving dioramas made of lathing accessories, metal lath and plaster. The Museum, which opened last winter, is housed in a circular, six-story, limestone clad building having a 100-ft. radius. A set-back sixth story, of 78-ft. radius, is glass walled and roofed with a shallow dome. It is situated on a five-acre site in the State Capital Group.

Foreman lather on this unusual lathing job was Local 429 Business Agent Donald McGee, from Harrisburg.

The museum visitor's initial impression is a dramatic one: From the entrance doorways, he steps first into Memorial Hall, the three-story high center portion, at the back of which stands an 18-ft. tall statue of William Penn. Behind the statue is a mural, on a curving partition built with steel furring, metal lath and gypsum-wood fiber plaster. The background partition is a 180 deg. arc, formed on a 28-ft. 6-in. radius from the building center. It extends upward 30-ft., to the ceiling of the third floor.

Ceilings throughout much of the structure are of metal lath and plaster, suspended by hanger wires. The suspended ceiling of Memorial Hall is formed of 2 in.

and 3/4 in. channels, metal lath and acoustical plaster. Lighting coves, recessed into this ceiling, were formed of cold rolled channels, metal lath and plaster.

Elsewhere in the building, dioramas present realistic three dimensional displays. Each of the dioramas is formed of prefabricated 4-in. steel studs, attached at floor and ceiling to snap-in track, and covered with 3.4 pound diamond mesh metal lath and plaster.

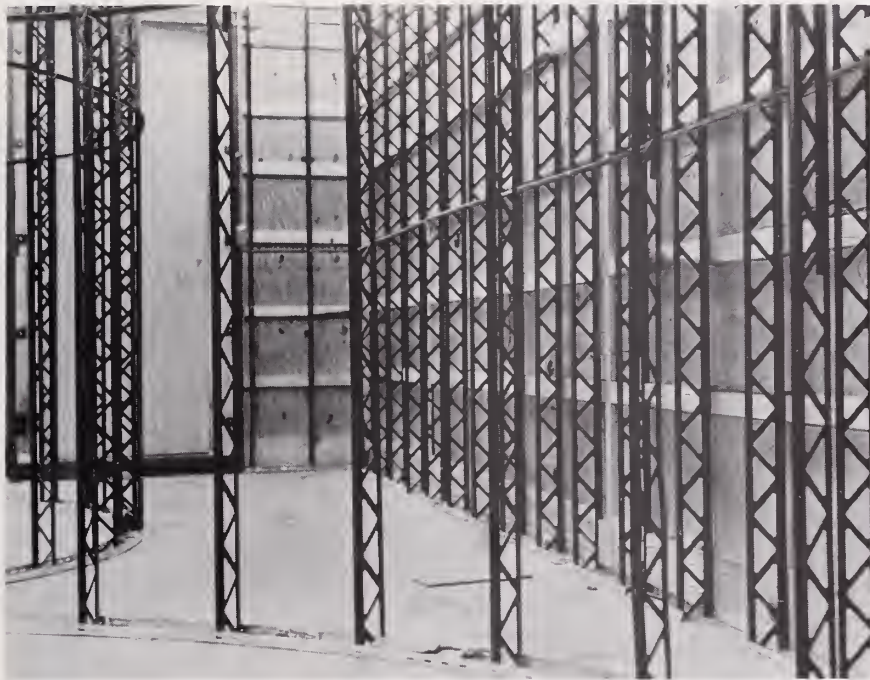

The exterior wall of the building was furred with 4-in. and 6-in. metal studs, to which were wire-tied three rows of picture mold, cut and installed to fit the curvature of the wall. These rows of picture-molds provided accurate bases for screeding of the finish coat, and will allow the affixing of displays without marring wall surfaces. Diamond mesh metal lath, also wire-tied to the studs, provided the base for three-coat gypsum plaster.

The soffit which shades the glass-walled sixth floor of the museum, and the soffits over the entryways, were formed of 3.4 galvanized diamond mesh expanded metal lath and stucco.

The building was designed by architects Lawrie and Green, Harrisburg, and erected by the Pennsylvania General State Authority, for occupancy by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission. The lathing and plastering contract was executed by Novinger's, Inc. of Harrisburg, while the general contractor was John McShain, Inc. of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

The three-story-high Memorial Hall, in the center of the Museum, has a suspended ceiling of channels, metal lath and acoustical plaster. Recesses of cold rolled channels, metal lath and plaster are essential components of the effective and dramatic lighting design. Each lighting fixture has two 150-watt PAR flood lamps, providing both upward, indirect, general illumination and shielded, downward emphasis lighting. At the upper rear of each of the foreground recesses there is visible a segment of the square casing bead that, formed into a circle, supports the metal lath and plaster domed tops of the recesses.

Display bays for the Museum's dioramas were formed with steel studs set in snap-in tracks attached to floor and ceiling. Metal lath was wire-tied to these studs to provide the base for three-coat plaster, thereby producing durable, precisely controlled finished surfaces with savings in labor time. Elsewhere, wood furring, 1 in. x 3 in., was wire-tied to the steel studs and to it was nailed construction grade 3/8 in. plywood; to this base was glued walnut-faced, random plank 1/4 in. thick plywood.

States Push Labor Bills

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz praised those State legislatures who have passed constructive labor laws fostering economic growth and reducing poverty.

Referring to labor bills as "gains for the American worker," Secretary Wirtz reported on legislative action in specific States, as follows:

—Delaware and Indiana have adopted new minimum wage laws; Maryland's new minimum wage measure has passed both houses and awaits gubernatorial action; North Dakota extended its wage law to men, in addition to women and minors; and New Mexico and Wyoming raised their statutory wage rates.

—Montana, Utah, and Wyoming have passed fair employment practice acts prohibiting discrimination in employment because of race, creed, color, or national origin. This action brought to 28 States, plus Puerto Rico, the number of jurisdictions having such mandatory laws; Idaho and North Dakota passed mandatory anti-age discrimination laws this year, bringing to 19 the number of States having such acts.

—Five States—Indiana, North Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, and Wyoming—increased workmen's compensation benefits. For example, maximum weekly indemnity benefits for a worker and dependents were raised to $60—an increase of $5.75—in Utah.

—Indiana repealed its right-to-work law and New Mexico enacted prohibition against debt-pooling to protect workers against excessive charges and fees.

—North Dakota also enacted an equal pay law, a wage payment and collection act, and established a "separate" labor department. Formerly performed by the Labor Division of the Departments of Agriculture and Labor, newly expanded State functions include labor relations, child labor, minimum wage, and wage payment and collection, will be administered by the Commissioner in his own Department of Labor.

"The gains made in these many States," the Secretary of Labor declared, "point the way toward economic progress, reduction in poverty, and increased job opportunities for all our people."

ingenuity and know-how turn the trick

From Sketch To

DRESS SHOP

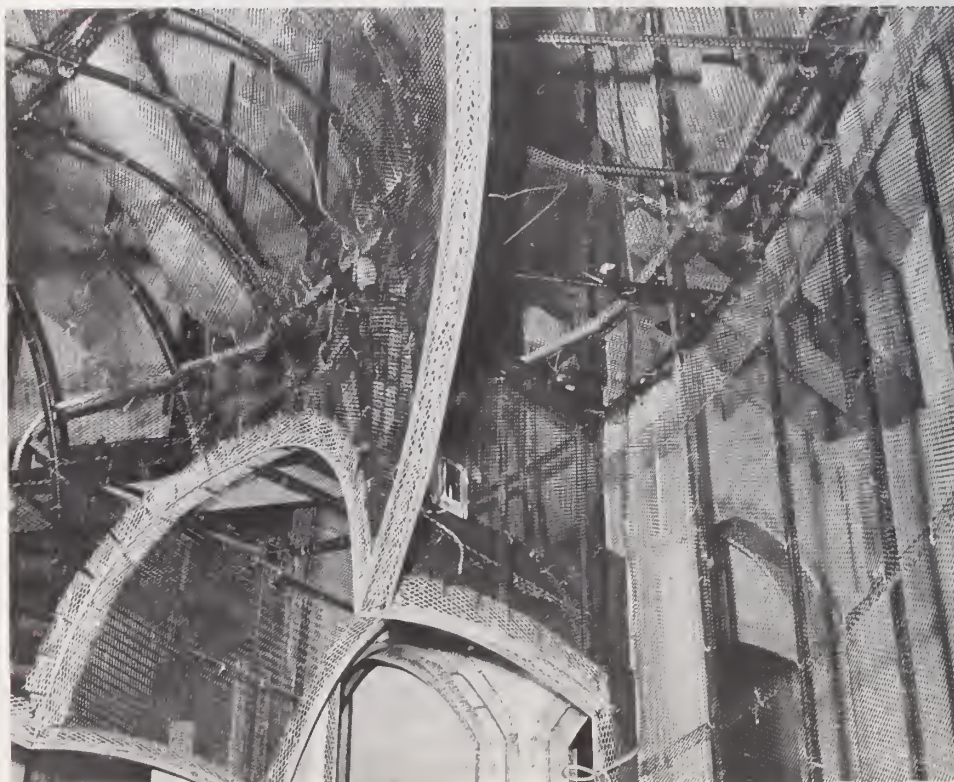

Working out all of the critical details of lathing on the job; a group of lathers from Local 104, Seattle, Wash., turned a set of designer's sketches into intricate domed and arched "harems" which have fashionable ladies buzzing about the new dress shops. The success of the first prompted the owner to construct a second, just like it, in another Seattle shopping center.

The ideas of designer Enola Jensen demanded the free-form magic of lath and plaster construction. Catering to the increasing requirement in retail merchandising for style and atmosphere, she conjured up a snug little retreat from the cares of daily life, which has hardly a straight surface in it.

Although her designs have eye-catching appeal, they presented a real challenge to lather foreman Jack McBride, and lathing superintendent Robert Smith and assistant Karl Greniger, of Berg Plastering—the plastering contractor on the job. There were no plans to take off contours and measurements, so the entire assembly went together by intuition and skill. Judging from the pictures, it came off exceptionally well.

One of the most difficult problems was locating suitable attachments for hangars, brackets and other furring devices to support the lathing contours. In some cases, holes had to be cut into the existing plaster ceiling to expose enough lathing to tie support wire to.

On The Job

In both of the existing shops, about 200 square yards of channel, metal lath and plaster were used. Just about every surface is curved, scalloped and domed.

Finish for most of the lathing was a smooth, troweled putty coat. The decor was also extended to the entrance areas, where portland cement plaster, with a trinity white finish, was used to complement the interior design.

The results have proved the powerful appeal of lath and plaster for specialty shops. The shops' owner, Peter G. Best, is a solid supporter of lathing and plastering now, and is so happy with the new business that he is scouting the Seattle area for other places to build his unique shops.

EACH year, 10,000 Americans lose their lives in home fires. That's 27 people every single day or better than one each hour. A startling figure. But even for those homes which have not already been constructed with fireproof advantages of lath and plaster construction, there is a way to provide a better measure of fire protection.

Some deaths occur, of course, even in homes which have been well-built, out of fire-resistant lath and plaster materials. The factors which conspire to cause death by fire are too varied to hope that they will ever be eliminated entirely. But there is little doubt that many of those lost in home fires would have had a better chance of survival if they had lived in the security of lath and plaster.

There are very few materials which have the insulating qualities of gypsum—the main ingredient in most plaster constructions today. Not only is it fire resistant itself—will not burn—it also has the fortunate ability to release water when it is subjected to high heat. A built-in sprinkler system, of sorts.

Locked up in the chemicals of a normal plaster wall, is a tremendous quantity of water. A pound chunk of gypsum contains about half a pound.

Under heat of 212 degrees—the boiling point of water—liquid held in the crystals of gypsum “melt” out, and quickly become steam which repels the fire and soaks up great quantities of heat. One of the single most important fireproofing qualities of any material is this ability to absorb heat, and water is one of the best available.

With the boiling out of water, the gypsum undergoes a change, leaving a chalky white material on the surface to further insulate against the flame. This process is called calcination.

A typical lath and gypsum plaster wall, for example, is converted to a depth of about one-quarter inch for every 15 minutes of intense heat. And because the temperature of free water cannot go above 212 degrees without changing to steam, the temperature of the material behind the exposed area is never much hotter than this, protecting the contents—or the inhabitants—of a room behind the one where a fire is located.

In one Underwriter's Laboratories test of a thick gypsum plaster panel, after two hours' exposure to 1900-degree temperatures, the first two inches had been changed to the chalky, no water form. Even in this calcined material, one inch deep, the temperature was down to 950 degrees. At the depth where intact gypsum remained, the temperature was 220 degrees, and two inches deeper the temperature was down to 180 degrees.

Even a wood wall structure is saved from burning as long as it is covered with plaster, because wood doesn't begin to burn until it reaches a temperature around 350-450 degrees—from 138 to 238 degrees hotter than boiling water. Steel doesn't begin to weaken until it heats up to around 350 degrees.

Depending on the structural material behind the plaster wall, and the thickness of the plaster, fire-resistant ratings can be assigned to wall structures. A steel column protected by two inches of plaster will hold up for about four hours. A plaster coating seven-eighths of an inch thick on wood studs is rated at one hour.

The basic purpose of protecting the structural members is to prevent collapse of the wall, and the passage of fire and smoke to adjoining rooms. As long as it is contained, fire is much less of a hazard than if it begins to run wild through a structure.

Many of the newer homes built today, of course, offer a very minimum of safety. Anything short of plaster walls, reinforced with metal lath, cannot be considered the best protection available. But even in existing homes with inadequate protection, something can be done to improve family safety, and at the same time make the home quieter and more beautiful. The solution is lath and plaster remodelling.

In most cases, metal lath can simply be nailed to existing joists or studs, over present ceilings and walls, and plaster then applied to the lath.

From the safety standpoint, there are several home hazard areas which should receive first consideration. A large percentage of basement fires start in the heating plant or fuel storage areas. Many of these fires, which turned into disasters, could have been avoided by installing a plaster and metal lath panel over the furnace.

A connecting garage is another area which should be insulated against fire. Although having it close to the house is a great convenience for homeowners, it can be a very real fire hazard. It's an easy matter to nail lath to each side of the existing wall and plaster over the lath.

To make homeowners conscious of this possibility for improving the safety of their residence, and to stress the many benefits of lath and plaster for home remodelling, the Lath and Plaster Institute has recently launched a nationwide promotion program. Stories have been sent to over 4,000 newspaper editors throughout the country, and promotional material has been sent to the editors of publications in the construction field.

Why don't you pitch in with your own personal campaign? Talk about the problem with your friends and neighbors. You'll help generate new business in the lath and plastering trades—and at the same time help cut the tragic toll of national death from home fires.

Phony 'Federal Analogy' Clouds Redistricting Issue

A DRIVE IS UNDER WAY to undermine the Supreme Court "one man, one vote" ruling requiring both houses of state legislatures to be apportioned on the basis of population. Opponents of the Court's decision are pushing for a constitutional amendment to permit one house of a state legislature to be apportioned on a basis other than population. The effect would be the same legislative stalemate that now afflicts many states. Liberal Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) is one of the leaders supporting the Court decision and fighting its opponents. Following are excerpts from his testimony on proposed amendments to upset the court ruling. He testified before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee:

"In the debates last fall on apportionment we found that there were few citizens of the United States whose rights to equal representation had not been severely diluted by the failures of state legislatures to reapportion themselves to take account of the great shift of our population from rural areas to the cities and suburbs over the past half century.

"There are 33 upper houses and 32 lower houses in which a majority is elected by less than 45 per cent of the people.

"The proposed constitutional amendments before the subcommittee, one must admit, are deceptively, attractive. At the heart of this deceptive appeal it's the proposition that apportionment of one house on the basis of 'other' factors would have to be 'submitted to a vote of the people.'

"Among the many faults of the proposed amendment there is, for example, no protection against the 'other' basis permitting de facto discrimination on the basis of race, religion or national origin. As Senators know, districting by area can easily be used as a vehicle to deny effective representation to racial or religious groups which tend to live in segregated areas.

"There is no guarantee that where an "other" basis is adopted there can easily be periodic review by the people, so we may face greater and greater malapportionment with future population changes and have no remedy.

"There is no guarantee that an initiative to reconsider this question will be possible, practically speaking. To affect an initiative when, for example, 10 per cent of 2,000,000 voters must sign the petition, the cost would be about $1,600,000 in the first instance. Without provision for automatic review, control of apportionment would be permanently in the hands of the wealthy.

"The purpose of all the amendments before the subcommittee is simply to block the fair apportionment of one of the houses of the legislature. Having failed to block the fair apportionment of both houses of the state legislatures last fall, there is now an attempt to forever block the reapportionment of one house.

"It is true that the Senate of the United States is apportioned by states without regard to population. But it is not in any way true that there is a proper analogy between this constitutional compromise which was necessary to produce the union and the formation of state legislatures."

New Pension Plan Approved

The Canadian Parliament approved a new national pension plan which will take effect January 1, 1966. To get the plan in motion, the government set up collection machinery which will begin a year before benefits are to be paid. Workers and employers will each contribute 1.8 per cent of the annual wage, up to $5,000, for every employee earning over $600.

By January 1, 1967, the first payments will be made from the fund, starting at 2.5 per cent per month of the average wage, up to as much as $12.50 a month, for the first year. Each year thereafter the payments will be increased another 2.5 per cent until a top benefit of $104 a month is reached. This will take 10 years.

In a major amendment to the pension program, the Canadian Government agreed to lower the age at which the basic universal old-age pension of $75 a month begins from age 70 to 65. This move was viewed as a Government response to earlier Canadian Labor Congress criticism that the benefits under the new pension plan were too low, especially in comparison with the universal social assistance program, and that the new pension plan contribution burden rested most heavily on the lower income brackets.

Announcement of the amendment came as a surprise, following a rejection of other amendments which would have increased the universal benefits to $100. Like the new pension benefits, the universal assistance payments will be adjusted in successive steps—going to those 69 by January 1966, and stepping down to age 65 by 1970. It is estimated that there will be 1.6 million receiving the basic pension by 1970.

Also, the income inequities of the earlier pension proposal have been reduced by plans for a gradual elimination of the current personal income tax deduction of $500 from age 65. The elimination would be complete by 1970.

At the same time, the present federal-provincial cost-sharing scheme for old age assistance, which helps needy senior citizens to bring total retirement income up to $75 a month, will be withdrawn.

Maps 5-Year Growth Needs

The first report of the new Economic Council of Canada has established rough guidelines for the next five years of national growth. Although this initial work of the Council has been called "a disappointment to anyone who believed that the establishment of the Economic Council marked the arrival of economic planning in Canada" by Russell Irvine, Associate Director for the CLC Research department, he concluded that it does represent a significant step forward. The cooperation among labor, management, education and farm leaders, shown by the work of Council, would have been impossible not very many years ago.

What the report says is that there is a major need for 1.5 million new jobs in the next five years: that Canada's production must rise at a rate of 5.5 per cent each year; and that unemployment should be kept to a "realistic objective" of 3 per cent of the labor force.

To achieve this kind of growth, the report says, it will be necessary for Canada to prosper faster than any other western industrialized nation—more than double the rate of progress during the 1956-63 period. Unemployment would have to be chopped in half. Right now, Canada's unemployment does not compare favorably with the U. S., where March figures showed unemployment at 4.7 per cent—the lowest rate in seven years.

The report makes no legislative recommendations.

Canadian Health Bill Pushed

The Hall Commission on Health Services recently strengthened its arguments for a national health service plan with part two of its report, urging a universal, publicly-financed program, and dealing with a number of objections to the plan which had been voiced after publication of the first part.

The major new recommendations were for: splitting the functions of Federal Department of Health and Welfare into two new organizations; adding to medical research expenditures recommended in the first part of the report; and aiding health care in the sparsely settled Yukon and Northwest Territories through such devices as a flying health service, better communications and regular medical visits.

Alternative private health care plans, paid for partly by federal subsidies, and opposed by Canadian labor, are being planned in Ontario.

Minimum Labor Standards Act Passed House of Commons

The Canadian House of Commons has passed a bill, which is to become effective July 1, setting more liberal labor standards for about half a million workers. It provides for a $1.25 hourly minimum wage, an eight-hour day and 40-hour work week; two weeks' paid annual vacation, and eight paid statutory holidays.

A small U. S. tanker was operating off the coast of Korea during the Korean conflict one foggy morning when it was reported to the bridge that the silhouette of a ship could vaguely be seen in the distance. A message was sent to the unidentified ship: "Identify yourself or be blown out of the water." The tanker received in reply: "This is the U.S.S. Missouri. Fire when ready."

A city boy on a night hike in the Rocky Mountains inquired of the guide, "Is it true, a grizzly won't attack you if you're carrying a flashlight?"

"That depends," said the guide, "on how fast you're carrying it."

Graphic charts and imposing statistics are coming more and more into use—perhaps because they not only convey facts but also discourage arguments. Who dares to question complicated graphs? Who has the temerity to differ with rigid statistics?

On occasion, however, facts thus presented can be more confusing than enlightening.

An educational mission composed of 100 men and four women was sent to one of the underdeveloped nations. Soon after their arrival two of the women were married to two of the men. . . . This item was duly noted in one of the progress reports, and when the report reached Washington it was turned over to a clerk with instructions to boil it down into statistics before it went to the project director.

This was the terse result: "Two per cent of the mission men married 50 per cent of the women."

A motorcycle policeman stopped a man who was driving along in his car at 90 miles an hour. The man said, "What's the matter, officer . . . was I driving too fast?"

And the officer said "No . . . you were flying too low."

Delegate, the morning after the convention: "Quiet! And make that fool cat quit stamping on the rug."

• • •

"What's Caroline so mad about?"

BUREAU OF LABOR CREATED IN THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT—1884

Organized labor leaders in the early days of the union movement realized that facts and figures and information about working people, their wages, hours and conditions, were important. They sought to have the United States Government give some recognition, through establishment of a Federal agency.

In 1884 a Bureau of Labor was established in the Department of the Interior. This bureau later developed into a Department of Labor without cabinet rank, and subsequently was returned to the status of a Bureau as part of the Department of Commerce & Labor which was created in 1903. There it remained until the present day Department of Labor was established in 1903.

The Department, as we know it today, however, had its origin in the small Bureau which was destined to have its place in labor history — a landmark of labor in terms of Federal recognition of the role of working people.

The Temple of Artemis at Ephesus

Few actual construction details have come down to us about the Artemision — the Temple of Artemis (Diana) at Ephesus in Asia Minor — but it is known that the most imposing of the edifices built to her was the fifth one on the same site. It was begun after its predecessor had been destroyed in 356 B. C. by a spitefully set fire, and was completed by the end of that century with the help of Alexander the Great — who legend says was born that very October night of the fire in 356.

The great Greek sculptor Praxiteles is believed to have created the new 220-ft.-wide temple's main altar. The building's porticoed columns were 60 feet high — all of dazzling white marble elaborately adorned with gold. The interior of the shrine was filled with art treasures.

Since other Greek temples had colonnades just as high and were of equal or greater area, it has been suggested that the Ephesian temple had some distinct element of grandiosity no longer known to us — perhaps a lofty sculptured parapet or some imposing podium.

After a prosperous history, the Goths destroyed both the temple and Ephesus itself in 262 A. D. Although the city revived, and the cult of Artemis continued in spite of the spread of Christianity, neither ever recovered its former splendor.

Later on the Artemision, plundered and ruined after serving as a quarry for local builders, was covered deep with mud by the local river or one of its tributaries. For a thousand years the exact location of the former Fourth Wonder of the World remained unknown — until uncovered by British excavations in 1869.

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

The Tenth National Legislative Conference of the Building and Construction Trades Department was held May 2-6, 1965. The meetings were very interesting and should bring results beneficial to every labor organization and member thereof.

Lyndon B. Johnson, President of the United States, addressed the approximate 4,000 delegates to the Legislative Conference. His appearance was a delightful climax to the close of Monday's opening session at which speeches had been made by outstanding leaders from Labor, Congress, and the Administration, including Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. The President intimated in his remarks that the expression of complete support for his policy in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic by the delegates (of which he had been advised by wire earlier in the day) was one of the main factors which actually caused him to take time from his schedule to drop in on the meetings. "So", President Johnson stated, "I have stolen these few minutes to come over here just to say thank you. Thank you for saying to the world that this Nation of ours, the United States of America, speaks in unity with one voice from one heart."

Interrupted numerous times by thunderous applause, the President told the delegates, "You must be proud of the fact that you are the builders of America. You know what it is to make something rise with toil and sweat and effort. And the product of your labor is not just buildings, and not just homes, and not just monuments. The product of your labor is the fact of America itself throughout the World."

The President said that the three branches of government—legislative, executive and judicial—have never gotten along better and that "never in the history of the Republic has there been more cooperation with the President" from business, labor and other segments of the Nation.

There was a fifteen point legislative program announced to the delegates, which is set forth briefly here:

1. Taft-Hartley Amendments
 - a. Repeal Section 14(b) (Right-to-Work Laws)
 - b. Situs Picketing
 - c. Legalize Joint Labor-Management Trade Promotion Funds
2. Landrum-Griffin Act Amendments — Provide for alternate bonding of Union Officers, Agents and Representatives of Unions who handle Union Funds

3. Davis-Bacon Act Amendments
 - a. Extend Coverage to lease option agreements
 - b. Extend Coverage to maintenance of Federal Installations
4. Fair Labor Standards Act Amendments
5. Social Security Act Amendments (including Medicare)
6. Federal Standards for Unemployment Compensation
7. Taxes—The elimination of excise taxes on goods and services
8. Civil Rights—Voting Rights Amendment
9. Public Works Programs
10. Military Construction
11. Health Facilities Construction
12. Housing
13. Education
14. National Capital Transportation Act of 1965
15. Small Business Act (Set-Aside Amendment)

Of course, as you know, it takes the support of all of us to see that the legislation is acted upon favorably when it is presented for consideration and vote by both the United States House of Representatives and the United States Senate. This can be accomplished only by each of us directing letters to our individual Senators and Congressmen urging their support of favorable legislation.

On Saturday evening, April 24, 1965, Father Joseph L. Donahue, C.S.V., Chaplain of the Chicago and Cook County Building and Construction Trades Council for the past twenty-five years was honored on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination, by a Testimonial Dinner arranged by the Chicago Building Trades Council. Father Donahue, who was a lather by trade with LIU Number 34679, before entering the seminary, was issued a gold card of life-time membership in Local Union 74 in 1940.

Aside from the many public tributes this event engendered, the Council presented Father Donahue with airplane tickets to the Eternal City, Rome. To help defray his personal expenses on this trip, some of his close friends sent cheeks as personal gifts to be presented to him also on this occasion.

I know that you all join us in extending our thanks and best wishes to Father Donahue for a quarter century of dedicated service and for his time and energies so generously given to Labor. See story and picture on page 12.

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

AT THE PRESENT TIME, there is a bill pending before the House Rules Committee which would make possible joint industry-labor promotion of lathing and plastering. You may recall that back in January the presidents of the Lathers International Union and the Operative Plasterers met with George H. Brueggeman, President of the National Bureau for the Promotion of Lath and Plaster, and Gene Scheid, its Executive Director, to formulate plans for implementing joint promotional work.

This kind of work is, of course, extremely important to the continuing growth of the lathing and plastering industry, on which rides future job opportunities. Pending further developments on the legislation, which will make possible joint participation in promotional funds, each local should make serious and active efforts to have the National Bureau promotional clause written into contracts. Further, every contractor should be urged to give his full support to the Bureau, now that it has been reorganized.

The pending legislation—H.R. 1153—has received the blessing of the appropriate House committee, but must win approval from the Rules Committee before it can be forwarded to the House floor for a vote. There is too much other important labor legislation, as well as many other “must” items in the president’s legislative program, to look forward to passage of promotion legislation before the end of the year. The repeal of Section 14(b) of the National Labor Relations Act, the section which makes it legal for the states to enact compulsory open shop laws must, of course, take preference.

The president very recently announced his support of action to “ensure uniform application of our national labor relations act.” Although no specific legislation to this effect was sent by the President to Congress, the President noted that bills for this purpose have already been introduced.

In addition, Congress has before it proposals to return to the construction unions their traditional rights to picket construction sites. This is the Situs Picketing Legislation which was recently made possible by industrial construction union agreement on terms of the desired law and related union arbitration machinery. Progress on this legislation was examined in the April issue of THE LATHER (see page 6).

The bill to legalize joint industry-union participation in promotional funds will be further delayed by the need for Senate action, and no steps have been taken yet in this direction.

SENATORS CASE (D-N. J.) and Randolph (D-W. Va.) have jointly sponsored another interesting legislative proposal. It would extend the prevailing Bacon-Davis wage provisions to all construction work performed for the Federal Government, including new construction, modification, alteration, repair and decoration. In requesting prompt action on the bill, Senator Case pointed out that an increasing amount of Government building activity is not subject to Bacon-Davis provisions.

The proposed legislation would protect local union members and contractors from unfair competition by contractors who base their bids on wage levels below those which actually prevail in the area where the construction is being performed.

During hearings in the Senate Subcommittee on Buildings and Grounds, which is headed by Senator Randolph, numerous witnesses supported the measure, including Walter J. Mason, Director of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the AFL-CIO.

Opposing all important labor legislation, of course, are well-financed and well-organized anti-labor groups. They have clearly and emphatically declared legislative war on labor’s platform, from this moment on, and the only way in which the opposition can be overcome is to keep hammering away in a campaign that reaches all the way from the local union to the United States Capitol.

Sincerely and fraternally,

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General Secretary-Treasurer

You have been informed that committees were appointed by President M. A. Hutcheson of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and myself to represent our respective organizations for the purpose of meeting to try to resolve our disputes on ceiling and nailable and screwable metal studs to receive drywall. President Hutcheson and I also agreed that our positions on both items would remain status quo pending the outcome of these discussions.

In the event you were not advised, the names of members appointed to the two committees are: Representing Lathers, John Sheehan, Chairman, Robert A. Georgine, and Kenneth Edwards; representing Carpenters, William Sidell, Chairman, Charles Johnson, Jr., and Raleigh Rajoppi. It was also agreed that the Chairmen of the two committees would set up the arrangements as to the date, time, and place for the meetings to be held. You will be kept fully informed with reference to this matter.

There have been a number of inquiries as to the interpretation of the 50-50 law and its application. When a contractor or solicitor goes into another Local Union's jurisdiction to do work he shall, at the start of the job, man the job or jobs with at least fifty percent (50%) of the men required being referred to him by the Local Union in whose jurisdiction the job or jobs is located. The installation of hangers and floor lath shall not constitute the start of the job; provided, however, that the fifty percent (50%) principle as above defined shall apply.

I had the pleasure of attending the Southern California District Council Meeting in Las Vegas, Nevada, on April 24, 1965. This was a very constructive meeting and very well attended. Pictures taken during the meeting appear on page 10 of this Journal.

Putting the Damper on NOISE

There's increasing concern today with making new buildings sound-proof. Tenants are asking for it, owners find rental insurance in it, and their concern signals renewed interest in lath and plaster construction.

Above is one of the two gypsum lath and plaster partition systems recently tested for sound transmission by an independent testing laboratory. One system was rated at 49, and the other at 50—a sound transmission rating which effectively blocks radio, TV or loud conversational noise from adjacent rooms. The lower rating was accomplished with staggered stud construction. Both of the partition systems were mounted on 2½-inch metal studs, 16-inch on center, with a two-inch mineral fiber blanket stapled to the lath. The lath on one side of the partition was mounted with resilient clips, the other on regular clips. Both sides were ⅜-inch perforated gypsum lath under an 11/16-inch gypsum plaster (sanded 1:2) base coat and a 1/16-inch gypsum gauging plaster—lime putty finish coat.

A HARRIED PATENT ATTORNEY in a downtown Washington, D.C. office tries to concentrate on his work, but the din of pneumatic drills, the clang of hammers on steel beams and the hubbub of renovation work in the building across the alley finally wins the day. He gives up in disgust, goes home and makes his decision to move to another office.

Tenants of a large apartment building in Los Angeles make headlines with their revolt against the rattle of modern high-density apartment living. "A rising tide of complaints by apartment house dwellers and office building tenants for the first time is producing serious concern," the newspaper article states.

Those who build and buy property—particularly multi-unit property such as apartments, offices, motels and schools—are increasingly concerned about noise. Some of the larger insurance companies, who commit huge investment sums to multi-story building projects, are writing their own standards for noise control. They fear that their investment will wind up only partly rented if adequate sound control is not built into the structure. In many larger cities, brand-new structures are showing alarming vacancy rates and tenant turnover, at least partly because of noise.

There was a time when few people even thought about the noise-control features of a building until they moved in. Then began the traditional complaints of apartment dwellers about their neighbors. For years, like the weather, noise was just talked about. Finally, residents began to realize that apartments didn't have to be noisy, and that there were proven construction methods and materials which could give them, if they demanded it, protection from noise.

The culprit is elusive. What's noise to a sharp-eared country dweller may not seem as bad to a factory hand who has become adjusted to noise—the clatter of his surroundings. The television set which is competing with a howling air conditioner unit may be turned to a higher “comfortable” listening level than one sitting in the living room of that contented dweller of the farmland quiet. Beyond the psychological hazards of a constant nerve-wracking background of assorted noises, there is a possibility of hearing loss. Normally, the amount of noise required is not reached until you near the roar of heavy industry, heavy construction, or the local airport. But the danger of hearing loss is greater from long exposure to lower-level sounds than it is from occasional bouts with a cannon blast or sonic boom.

In an effort to establish a yardstick to measure noise, scientists invented the decibel—an arbitrary unit of measure. One of them is equal to the smallest difference in noise level detectable to the human ear. Measured against this yardstick, ordinary conversation is about 60 decibels, and a quiet whisper 10.

Years of constant exposure to a fairly low-pitched 85 decibel sound will eventually result in some loss of hearing. This amount of noise is generated by no more monstrous a source than loud conversation. At the top of one measured danger scale—and past the point where the human ear can tell when sound is getting even louder—is the volcanic churning of a jet engine with afterburner. The German V-2 rocket—a small fry by today's standards—is said to have sounded as loud seven miles up as it did just lifting off the pad.

Unfortunately, the job of measuring the disruptive and harmful effects of sound is not as simple as adding up decibels. Very high-pitched sounds may be more annoying than low-pitched rumbles, even though the loudness is about the same. A deaf man may be oblivious to surroundings that would drive his hearing friends batty.

No matter how it is measured, the noise in our society is getting worse. With improvements in the standard of living has come an increase in the number of personal noise-makers. Electric shavers, washing machines, dehumidifiers, air conditioners, television and radio sets—including the portable variety which always seem turned to full blast volume. Clothes dryers, electric pencil sharpeners, photocopy machines and garbage disposals. Turn them all on at once and you've got a real problem—if not a blown fuse as well.

We can't force all apartment or office dwellers to throw away all of their conveniences, which would be one way to stop the noise. But we can look forward to—even demand—better standards of structural noise control in residential, commercial and institutional buildings.

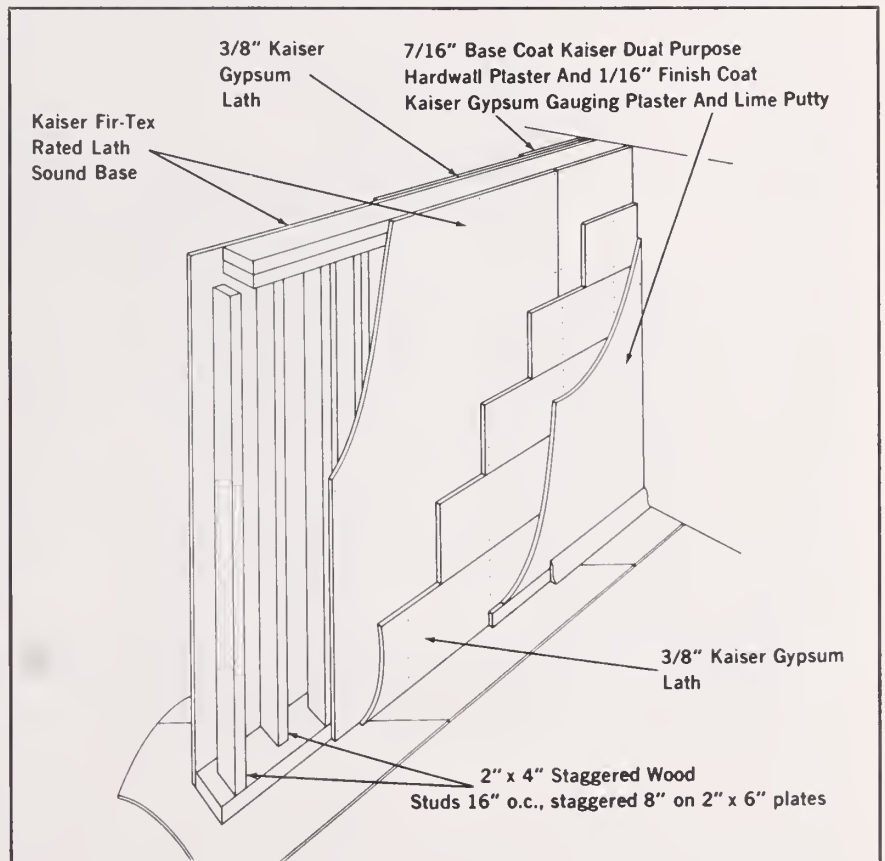

A little later we examined several modern apartment buildings which have been built with noise very much in mind. With the right kind of forethought and construction, even the most crowded apartment or office can give quiet.

California seems to be the focus of interest in modern building methods and construction today, and it's no surprise, therefore, that many projects on the west coast illustrate the best of noise control principles. Contractors there realize the value of foresight, and find that it pays off.

The Paloma Imperial Apartments in Long Beach, California, for example, were constructed with gypsum lath and plaster carefully calculated to cut down on noise transmitted through partitions. The buzzes, hums and other noxious sounds generated inside our own rooms can be, to a certain extent, controlled. Heavy drapery, soft, thick carpeting, and intelligent location and use of noise-makers helps a lot. Furthermore, we usually turn off our own noise-makers when we want quiet. It's the vibrations from outside that annoy most.

Therefore, the builders of Imperial apartments, aware that today's prospective clients are looking for peace and quiet, invested in gypsum lath and plaster for the interior walls. The builder said that durable soundproofing was his main consideration in using lath and plaster. On this job, the lathing work was done by members of local 172, Long Beach, working for Long Beach Lathing, the contractor.

Another important soundproofing feature was the separation built-in between the floors of one apartment and the ceiling of another. The floor joist is separated from the ceiling joist, with two feet of space between each floor and ceiling. Additional benefits are provided by the combined effects of carpeting, hardwood, Celotex and Douglas Fir plywood, which make up the floor sandwich.

The construction is a text-book illustration of how three basic characteristics of any wall, floor or ceiling which control noise—mass, separation and resiliency are put to work.

The heavier a structure is (the more mass it has) the more it absorbs sound. There is plenty of mass in the Paloma Imperial Apartments. Where wall facings are separated structurally—independently supported—there is less sound transmission. The staggered wall studs are one way to accomplish this. Resiliency can be in a soft, fluffy carpet on the floor, or in metal clips used on walls and to suspend ceilings, as in the Long Beach project.

There is a fourth basic structural characteristic affecting sound transmission, which is a relatively new discovery. Called dampening, it is improved with the use of different kinds of materials. If, for example, a wall uses wood and steel for the basic structure, instead of all steel, sound transmission characteristics will be better.

Another fine California example of noise control is an $8 million luxury apartment project called Franklin West. When builder Jack Bendat started planning his spectacular units, with three complete levels of penthouse suites designed to rent for $1500 a month, he knew his prospective tenants would be looking for more subtle assurances of privacy than full-time door attendants and private elevator keys.

Although dwellers of the more-than-comfortable 17-story complex will get just about all of the traditional high-rent apartment trimmings, they're also going to get interior walls constructed of lath and plaster to meet the new standards of noise control.

Scheduled for completion this month, Franklin West Apartments boast an interior partition sound rating among the best of buildings today. A sound transmission rating of 50—enough to stop loud conversation in the next room—is being built into all corridor walls and walls shared by separate apartments.

The partitions inside individual apartments will be even more proof against noise. Their sound rating will be about 36, enough to stop even the normal sounds of energetic living.

Basic structural work done, the luxury Franklin West apartment (above) is latticed with scaffolding for the exterior lathing. Note, at right, the K-lath used as a foundation for the stucco coat. A complete lath-and-plaster job from the ground level to the penthouse suites 17 stories up.

To keep the level of sound transmission low and consistent within the building, a variety of wall designs in varying thicknesses was required. Where electrical and mechanical equipment is installed, greater soundproofing is required. Each apartment is fully equipped with air conditioning and other luxury appointments. Whether apartments have one, two or three bedrooms, they have two baths. It's likely, too, that the kind of tenants who can afford to inhabit $1500 a month penthouses will bring with them even more labor-saving and comfort devices which add to noise.

All told, about 35 variations on two basic wall system designs were required, making Franklin West a challenge to the skill of the Lathers of Local 42, Los Angeles, who performed the critical work. Contractor was the George M. Raymond Company, which handled both lath and plaster construction. Because of the size of the job, there were two lather foremen. Norm Donnelly kept a sharp eye peeled on the work in the front of two main building structures, and Ed Belfontaine was in charge of the rear structure.

One of the two basic wall designs is the low noise-transmission structure for apartment interior walls. It is a stud wall, constructed in varying thicknesses out of gypsum lath and plaster. The other, for corridors and party walls, is made up of $\frac{3}{4}$ inch channel, spaced out with right-angle channel to form separate lath bases up to $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches part. Gypsum lath and sanded plaster went over this.

For some special areas, walls were built up on two studs on separate steel runners, also spaced out up to $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide.

Some concept of the amount of lathing required is provided by the statistics. Thirty thousand yards of 3.4 expanded metal lath, and 500,000 linear feet of stud for the perimeter alone. A mighty big lathing project.

But because of the soundproofing features of the lath and plaster construction, Franklin West is a lot more than just a mammoth job with impressive statistics. It's a pace-setter in a field where noise control has suddenly become extremely important.

So interesting is the project, from the apartment-dweller's standpoint, that a complete replica of one of Franklin West's apartments was built in the Los Angeles Sports arena for a recent home show. One of the star attractions of the show, the model apartment was constructed at white-hot speed by Local 42 lathers. Moving into the arena at 6:00 AM, they had the project completed by 3:30 AM the next day. Five truckloads of materials, men and equipment were required. Because of its speed of application, thincoat, high-strength veneer plaster—one of the hottest new materials of the industry—was used for the interior walls of the model apartment. Exterior walls were given three full coats of portland cement plaster.

Directors of the Los Angeles Home Show Board were so impressed that they awarded the apartment honors for outstanding construction and design. Another award was presented by the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power.

Franklin West should be welcoming some of its first occupants about now, and it's a safe bet that with the rental security offered by soundproofed construction—in addition to all of this luxury—the owner isn't biting his nails about vacancy rates.

Recently, the American Society for Testing Materials has established sound transmission ratings (STC) for various wall systems. In the language of abstract numbers best understood by engineers, they tell how much sound is absorbed by the walls. A structure with a rating of 50, for example, meets the FHA standards for home construction.

Construction cost records show that soundproofing is not a luxury. In apartment buildings, the additional expense required to insure privacy and peace is usually less than the price of one month's rent. When spread out over the useful lifetime of a building, this is indeed a worthwhile expenditure.

Building Trades Legislative Conference

LIU delegates join a record number of building and construction trades representatives in Washington to outline legislative efforts for the coming year.

An unexpected guest, President Johnson spoke with vigor.

Close to 100 LIU delegates attending the annual AFL-CIO Building Trades legislative conference May 3-6 heard President Johnson praise labor for supporting his foreign policy, and pledge that "trouble ahead will never divert us from the task of building the Great Society at home." The president's appearance at the conference was a dramatic, unscheduled event, which highlighted four days of discussions by the nation's outstanding legislative leaders.

There were over 4500 building trades delegates at the sessions, which overflowed the immense 4200-seat main ballroom of the new Washington Hilton Hotel which involved, incidentally, an extensive amount of intricate lathing work (see THE LATHER, Dec. 1964, pg. 2).

The largest conference ever held by the AFL-CIO Building Trades Department, this year's meeting came at a time when the climate of Congress is more favorable to many of labor's legislative goals than in recent history. AFL-CIO President George Meany said that the outlook is good for such items as repeal of section 14(b) of Taft-Hartley, and passage of a jobsite picketing bill. But he and other speakers at the legislative conference warned against any letup in effort. Meany asked the delegates to carry on their legislative work when they return to their home communities, "because that is where the member of Congress is most responsive."

Building and Construction Trades Department head C. J. Haggerty told the delegates, who represented 3.5 million members of the 18 construction industry unions, that agreement with industrial unions on details of a jobsite picketing bill has opened the door to Congressional action. "There is no reason for Congress to wait because a 1951 Supreme Court decision held picketing of a construction job-site in a dispute with the subcontractor to be an illegal secondary boycott under the Taft-Hartley act," he said. Other legislative goals discussed by Haggerty included a correction "without compromise" of the "terrible inequity" of the denial of the vote to Negroes; a need for a higher minimum wage; broader coverage under the Fair Labor Standards Act; overtime improvements and a shorter workweek. Also urged was a new Cabinet-level Department of Housing and Urban Affairs, which has been under consideration since the Kennedy campaign of 1960. It is "urgently necessary if we are to plan properly in order to build wisely," Haggerty declared.

Repeal of 14(b), Meany said, would help raise the living standards in the so-called "right-to-work" states which now show the lowest per capita income, the worse schools, the least contribution to Federal taxes and a greater share of Federal help than any of the states in the union.

On the third day of the conference, Lather delegates met for a breakfast in the Georgetown East room of the Statler Hilton to plan their visits with individual congressmen. The entire day was reserved for this important "grass roots" campaign, which brought home to the congressmen just what is wanted by their constituents.

In other highlights of the Building Trades Legislative Conference:

- Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey praised the cooperation of building trades unions in working towards equal employment opportunities, and declared that the Federal government "has no intention of seeking to abolish established union hiring procedures which are based on merit and qualifications."

- House Speaker John W. McCormack (Mass.) voiced "complete support" of labor's legislative program, predicting that most of it will be enacted. McCormack warned that repeal of 14(b) "might be won or lost by 10 votes," but said that with effective "teamwork" and coordination of efforts, the repeal bill stands a good chance of passing this year.

- Labor Sec. Wirtz told the delegates that the "consensus" that Pres. Johnson seeks is not "a consensus of complacency." To illustrate, he told of the telephone call he made to give the President the good news that the unemployment rate had dropped to 4.7 percent.

"I got silence for an answer," Wirtz related.

"It is the lowest since October 1957," Wirtz told the President.

Johnson replied: "I want to know what is the lowest it has ever been. . . . How many unemployed people does that still leave in this country?"

- Two liberal Republican senators—Thomas H. Kuchel (Calif.) and Jacob K. Javits (N.Y.)—joined in calling for repeal of Sec. 14(b) and passage of the on-site picketing bill.

- Two Democratic senators—Pat McNamara (Mich.) and Jennings Randolph (W.Va.)—voiced support for expanded public works development under a regional concept. Both noted the legislative advances of recent years and stressed the need to keep up the progress.

- Rep. Frank Thompson (D-N.J.), sponsor of H.R. 77, the Sec. 14(b) repeal bill, announced that "immediately following" action on 14(b) his House Labor subcommittee will start hearings on the jobsite picketing bill.

- Rep. Gerald R. Ford (Mich.), the House Republican leader, affirmed bipartisan support of the President's actions in the Dominican Republic. He extended an "open door" invitation to labor on behalf of the Republican Party.

McGlone Joins National Bureau

During a nine-day lathing and plastering industry conference in Palm Springs, California, Thomas J. McGlone, of Rahway, New Jersey, was named Assistant President of the National Bureau for the Promotion of Lathing and Plastering, Inc. The addition of Mr. McGlone to the staff will greatly aid joint union-industry efforts to promote the trade.

The industry meetings, some of which were attended by LIU General President Sal Maso, produced a number of important decisions which should have an important impact on the future of lathing and plastering.

A resolution was adopted by the Western Conference of the CPLIA to request a system of basic sound control requirements on jobs being performed under the direction of Federal Agencies. The standards, according to the resolution, should be based on performance tests, and should upgrade sound control assemblies involving lath and plaster. The CPLIA, which meets in national convention in October, will be asked by the Western Conference to urge manufacturers to coordinate improved sound control ratings as well as fire rating tests, and to consider offering a wider range of wall assembly systems to the industry.

The cooperation of the LIU in the lathing training program was praised by Jeremiah Burns, New York City lathing contractor. He pointed out that there are now 17 areas participating in the apprenticeship fund-raising program, with contributions totalling more than $300,000. However, Burns said the apprenticeship effort still falls far short of what is necessary for a truly effective program.

The new assistant president of the National Bureau, was chosen at a special Sunday meeting of the group called in Palm Springs. Mr. McGlone is a lathing and plastering contractor in Rahway, and a prominent member of the industry. Tom earlier served the E. J. Carley Company, and Morell-Brown, Inc. He is one of the Employer Trustees of the Lathers' Pension Fund.

62 Years in the Trade

Brother Van De Bogert

A hale and hearty 76, Brother Matt Van De Bogert, who is called the Dean of Wisconsin Lathers, commutes 120 miles each day from his home in Delavan to his current work site. He's pushing hard to rack up a total of 66 years of continuous work, thereby matching the record of his father, before he retires. This gives Brother Van De Bogert just four more years to go, and his chances seem uncommonly good of making it.

With this much hard work and skill already behind him, Brother Van De Bogert, a member of Local 264, has seen some impressive changes in the industry. In 1906, shortly after he became a member of the International, a day's wages totaled 25 cents, and most of it was earned nailing wood lath.

The trade came naturally enough to him. Brother Van De Bogert's father, a sturdy 4-year veteran of the Civil War, began work as a carpenter, plasterer and lather three years after the war was over.

At the close of World War II,

Matt took a long look ahead into the future of the construction industry. He decided bigger things were coming, and that a Lathers' Union was necessary to cope with them. He organized Local No. 264, beginning with 6 members. For 18 years, Matt served as business agent of the Local, and was a delegate to the national conventions in 1952, 1955 and 1961.

Brother Van De Bogert has rarely lost time from work, and should be a sure bet to make—if not better—that 66-year work record of his father.

Ed. Note: General President Sal Maso and General Secretary J. Earl Ferguson of the LIU extended their congratulations to Brother Van De Bogert on his record of accomplishment, and wished him Godspeed in his reaching his goal.

JOHNSON'S LABOR LAW PROGRAM

Following closely on the heels of his appearance at the Building Trades Legislative Conference, the President's labor law statement bolsters hopes for fast action.

WASHINGTON, (PAI)—In a long-awaited labor message, President Johnson has called on Congress to repeal Taft-Hartley Section 14(b) which makes State "right-to-work" laws possible.

The President said that he did so "with hope of reducing conflicts in our national labor policy that for several years have divided Americans in various states."

The recommendation follows through on a long-standing Presidential promise to organized labor which has made repeal of 14(b) a top priority. AFL-CIO President George Meany has publicly expressed his confidence that there are sufficient votes in both bodies of Congress to knock out the anti-union provision which now bars union shop clauses in 19 states, most of them in the South.

The President's message also called for amending the Fair Labor Standards Act as follows:

- Extend its protection to an additional 4,500,000 workers who do not now have minimum wage overtime protection.
- Restrict excessive overtime work through the payment of double time.
- Strengthen the unemployment insurance program through a program of Federal standards, a boost in employer taxes, and further Federal aid through matching grants for high cost states.

Although the AFL-CIO has estimated that there are some 10,000,000 workers not now covered by the minimum wage, the President limited his proposals to coverage for about 4,500,000 workers. He would include about 1,000,000 retail stores and service groups, widen protection in laundries and dry cleaning plants, widen protection for certain agricultural processing plants, including cotton ginning, and add certain categories of hotel, motel and restaurant workers, hospital workers, taxicab drivers, service station attendants and loggers. Protection for the latter groups represents a major breakthrough.

In his message, the President noted that there have been proposals for an increase in the present $1.25 minimum wage. (The AFL-CIO has asked for a $2.00 minimum.) He agreed with the need for an increase but said that it was a question of "when and how much."

He therefore left the door open, urging Congress to "consider carefully the effects of higher minimum wage rates on the incomes of those employed, and also costs and prices, and on job opportunities—particularly for the flood of teen-agers now entering our labor force."

The President also spoke of proposals to reduce the statutory work week (The AFL-CIO has called for a 35-hour week.) "I do not think the time for change in the law has come," the President said, "except with respect to excessive overtime."

He added, however, that "careful attention" to the question was "appropriate and desirable" and said that he was requesting the National Committee on Technology, Automation and Economic Progress to study the matter.

Lather Priest Honored

OVER 800 ADMIRERS of the Rev. Joseph L. Donahue, C.S.V., attended his Silver Jubilee dinner this April 24, to applaud his long and remarkable service to labor organizations and union members. At the ceremony, which commemorated Father Joe's 25th anniversary as a priest, the sentiments of his admirers were echoed by Chicago Building Trades Council President Earl J. McMahon, who said:

"Father 'Joe' is a labor priest for he probably has serviced more labor organizations and union members than any other member of the cloth in our modern times. This service extends to every segment of organized labor, locally and nationally as well. Even our parent AFL-CIO has invited him to conventions to address the delegates on matters of labor and morality.

"Father 'Joe' was an apprentice and journeyman Lather before he became a Catholic priest. He acquired a sense of unionism which is remarkable. His father's trade was boiler-making, and the ideals and goals acquired in a home where unionism was practiced and taught have left deeply engrained the knowledge that unions are good for the worker.

"Since the very first he sought to become a helper of men. He received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Loyola University and then entered Kenrick Seminary at Webster Groves, Missouri.

"After his ordination, he was assigned to the Working Boys' Home here in Chicago and entered the graduate school at Loyola and received a Master's Degree in social work.

"Father 'Joe's' variety of assignments since then have given him a vast experience in dealing with people and their problems. With a labor and skilled tradesman background he became a priest who could understand the needs and goals of the worker, and he is sought after by leaders of labor everywhere.

"He has a quiet dignity which brings calmness to troubled and emotionally distressed persons and always seeks to help everyone who is in need of the Donahue brand of spiritual guidance and counsel.

The Building Trades everywhere, and particularly here in Chicago, have been closest to Father 'Joe.' Each year since his ordination he has set aside a special day to honor our deceased members by celebrating a memorial labor Mass—an event so fine and unique that it is a major event for labor in Chicago and Illinois."

Father Donahue, in his response, declared:

"I am grateful to God for the privilege of serving Him. I am indebted to the great trade union movement of America for permitting me to meet and talk with its leaders and members. Most of all, I appreciate the loyalty of Earl McMahon and all of the Building Trades through the years. I will remember you in my prayers—always."

Speakers included the Very Reverend Eugene J. Sullivan, assistant provincial, Clerics of St. Viator; John F. McCarthy, president, Illinois Bankers Association, and Maurice J. Walsh, attorney. McCarthy and Walsh are long-time friends of Father Donahue. The invocation and benediction were offered by the Rev. Francis Czerwionka, C.S.V.

Dirksen Amendment Roadblock to Progress

One of the most dangerous legislative proposals confronting Congress is the Dirksen amendment to overturn the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling that state legislatures must be apportioned on the basis of population. The proposal by Sen. Everett Dirksen (R-Ill.), Senate minority leader, would permit one house of a state legislature to be apportioned on a basis other than population. In effect, it would perpetuate the hammer-lock rural conservative interests have on state legislatures.

The AFL-CIO and other liberal groups strongly oppose the Dirksen amendment. Many thoughtful conservatives also oppose it. Following are excerpts from a column by moderate conservative columnist Roscoe Drummond in the Washington Post, May 2, 1965:

"The Dirksen Amendment to mute the Supreme Court decision that state legislatures be apportioned on a population basis seems to me an unwise and backward step.

"Sen. Dirksen's plan would permit a majority in a state to give some citizens enlarged and others reduced voting power in one House. This would be the effect of apportioning one House on the basis of 'factors other than population.'"

"Further—and worse—the Dirksen Amendment would make it impossible for a majority of the voters of a state ever to change the situation.

"Two questions go to the heart of the matter. What is the one political trend which all conservatives, most moderates and many others want to see arrested and reversed? Answer: The massive and mounting trend to center more and more political power in Washington. Is there anything which will stop this trend? Answer: one thing—more representative, more responsive, more modern legislatures prepared to deal with the social, economic and urban problems which have caused cities to turn to Wash-

Charles S. Rhyne, past president of the American Bar Association and a specialist in legislative reapportionment, puts the case accurately when he says:

"State legislatures have shirked their responsibilities in meeting the social, economic and political needs of the people. For the past 30 years and more the people have bypassed legislatures and have turned to Washington for solutions to one problem after another: housing, mass transportation, public works, health, airports, highways, crime prevention, education, poverty and on ad infinitum. States today are largely administrative provinces of the Federal Government in carrying out Federal aid programs.

The central reason why state legislatures have been unresponsive to public needs is because they have been unrepresentative of the electorate—the fewest voters have elected the most legislators.

The Dirksen Amendment, therefore, would arrest the most needed political reform in the United States—that of the egregiously malapportioned legislatures.

Anti-Labor Law Withdrawn In Saskatchewan

To meet demands from employers, who have strongly opposed, since 1944, the labor legislation brought in by the former CCF government, the Saskatchewan government has indicated that it intends to amend the province's Trade Union Act.

In the last stages of Saskatchewan's 1965 legislative session the Liberal administration introduced a bill to amend the trade union act in such a way that it would seriously threaten labor's present bargaining position. But it immediately met with such a vigorous protest from the ranks of the trade unions that Premier Thatcher decided to step more gingerly and withdrew the proposed bill. He said an opportunity would be given for representatives of management and labor to sit down with the government to review the whole field of labor-management relationship.

He suggested that after such a discussion the government would undertake to introduce amendments to the Trade Union Act at the next session of the legislature.

Commenting on the bill prior to its withdrawal, W. G. Gilbey, president of the Saskatchewan Federation of Labor, said that "unions and their individual members were apparently being made subject to fines and damages in line with the worst labor legislation in Canada."

"It also appeared," he said, "that new certification procedures would cripple union organization and bargaining units by dragging out and complicating certification proceedings. One amendment in particular appeared to go further than any other province in Canada except P.E.I. by opening the door to the most mischievous kind of interventions," he said.

"Another, designed to reduce labor representation, appears to be a carbon copy of a backward U. S. Taft-Hartley Amendment," Mr. Gilbey said. He observed that "on the whole the amendments would inspire rather than reduce industrial conflict and were clearly opposed to the public interest." He said, "There is no demonstrated need whatever for such legislation."

Canadian Economy Looks Good for 1965

An encouraging report of the state of Canada's economy, and the nation's finances, has been released by Finance Minister Walter Gordon. He predicted that things will be fairly good in the year ahead.

The news came in the minister's pre-budget white paper — a stage-setter for the annual budget that includes a financial accounting, a report on the economy for 1964 and an outlook for 1965. It showed the economy was brighter than the experts predicted, and the budget deficit for 1964 was trimmed to about $83 million, the lowest since 1958. It was originally expected to be about $445 million.

The best news in the white paper was that the nation's gross national product—the value of all goods and services produced—increased by 8.9 percent during 1964, far above earlier predictions.

CLC Secretary-Treasurer Comments on Mobility Plan

Donald MacDonald, Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Labour Congress, recently criticized the Mobility Program for lack of a coordinated approach.

"The government's new program to assist in the mobility of labour," he stated, "is a welcome break-through but suffers from several very serious weaknesses. In the absence of an over-all manpower policy, the effectiveness of any mobility program is necessarily going to be very limited. A coordinated program involving all phases of manpower should be given top priority.

"The present program is based mainly on loans. We are opposed to the loan principle. This assistance should be in the form of outright grants. The money will be expended in a way that will effect savings on what would otherwise be charges on the government. It seems most unreasonable to expect that a family, faced with the necessity of moving and making various adjustments, can repay the principal and meet interest charges of up to 6 per cent.

"The program offers grants, rather than loans, only to particular categories of workers such as those unemployed for four or more of the preceding six months. But the purpose of a mobility program must surely be to encourage mobility—not provide relief for particular groups of disadvantaged workers. The grants, therefore, should be made available to all workers—the employed as well as the unemployed. Moreover, these grants should cover not only the expenses of the single worker but also the costs of moving his family and belongings.

RIB-TICKLERS

A radical is a person who insists on convincing us, instead of letting us convince him.

Personnel manager to stenographic applicant: "Just as a simple test of your spelling ability, how do you spell 'Mississippi'?"

The girl paused, then inquired cautiously, "The river or the state?"

"I hope there are no barking dogs in any of the adjoining flats," said a woman to the rental agent.

"Oh, no," he reassured her.

"Then I'll take the place. You see, I've got two dogs of my own that bark a fearful lot, and I really could not stand any more."

Glamour girl to clerk at perfume counter: "I'd like something that will bring out the mink in a man without disturbing the wolf."

The difference between gossip and news depends upon whether you heard it or told it.

"I always encourage my husband to recline in an easy chair and put his feet on the table."

"Why?"

"When he goes to bed there is usually some small change left in the chair."

A little boy came home from school and, as he arrived at the door, his mother asked him if he had been a good boy. He replied: "Sure I was good in school today! How much trouble can you get into standing in a corner?"

The dignified old lady, pillar of the church, shook hands with the minister after the service. "Wonderful sermon — wonderful!" she said. "Everything you said applies to someone I know."

Mother: "Doctor, doctor, my little Alice has been eating sand! What shall I do?"

Doctor: "Just be careful and don't feed her any cement!"

"George," said the driver's wife, "I wish you wouldn't drive so fast. There's a policeman on a motorcycle behind us who can't get by."

The proud mother was exhibiting her baby to her friends.

"He is doing just fine," she said. "He's eating solids now—newspapers, pencils, keys. . . ."

You can say this for those ready mixes. The next generation isn't going to have any trouble making cakes like mother used to make.

"Lady," wearily replied the male after the crash, "your arm was out, I'll admit, but first it was up, then down, then into circles, then straight out. That's a left turn signal?"

"Silly," she retorted, "the first two might have been wrong but didn't you see me erase them and give you the correct sign?"

Occasionally you will come across a concrete mind — permanently set and all mixed up.

"Getting to the moon shouldn't be too tough. There isn't a single stop light, and hardly any traffic."

When the small boy was presented with a huge German shepherd for his birthday, he gazed at it in awe and said, "Daddy . . . is he for me, or am I for him?"

"Why are you rolling the trash can around, Willie?"

"To amuse little Betty."

"And where is Betty?"

"In the trash can."

Wife to husband leaving on a trip: "Be sure to write, dear, even if it's only a check."

Officer: "Hey lady, you can't park by that hydrant."

Lady: "Why not? The sign says: 'Fine for Parking'."

The time had come for the young man to start feeling his oats. He approached his father and said, "Dad, I'm leaving home. I'm going to find fame, adventure, fortune, beautiful women. Don't try to stop me, Dad, my mind's made up."

The old man jumped from his chair. "Who's trying to stop you," he exclaimed. "I'm going with you!"

"We put in a lot of work on the lawn this spring. And it still doesn't look as good as it did covered with snow."

The modern parent has to spare the rod . . . so Junior can ride around in it!

"I sneaked into a Union meeting to heckle them, but I was ruled out of order by the chair!"

Passage in 1885 of the ALIEN CONTRACT LABOR LAW

After the Civil War the American Emigrant Company was organized as "an efficient channel of intercourse between the man in America who wants help and the man in England who wants work." By a law enacted in 1864 the year's wages of an immigrant could be pledged in fulfillment of a work contract. Even though the law of 1864 was repealed four years later, contract labor continued. Native working people were strongly opposed to this practice.

In 1885 an act was put on the statute books by Congress known as the Alien Contract Labor Law which forbade importation of workers under contract. Labor unions led the fight for passage. Strengthening amendments were subsequently enacted, but the law itself was a landmark and should be remembered as such—especially the role of the trade unions in securing final enactment.

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

A MEETING OF THE COMMITTEES representing the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and our International Union was held June 10 and 11, 1965, with reference to our disputes over the installation of metal studs to receive dry wall, floor and ceiling runners and ceiling systems. They are scheduled to meet again on July 1-2, 1965. You will be fully informed of the results of these meetings.

As I said in my report in the June LATHER, General President Hutcheson of the Carpenters and I agreed on a "status quo" arrangement on the work being discussed at these meetings, which is the metal studs to receive dry wall, floor and ceiling runners and ceiling systems.

We have received many inquiries with reference to procedures to be used in processing jurisdictional disputes, many of which are fully explained in the newly revised edition of the "Green Book" and "Procedural Rules." Each Local Union should have copies of these books in their possession, to refer to for information and guidance. They are available through this office at 50 cents per set (Green Book and Procedural Rules) and I again urge each and every local union that does not already have a set of these books to immediately arrange for a set.

WE JUST RECEIVED two decisions rendered by the NLRB in favor of the Lathers in Omaha, Nebraska. The work in dispute consisted of metal studs to receive dry wall finish and the erection of suspended ceilings consisting of installation of hangers, 1½ inch channel iron and furring channel.

Secretary Treasurer J. Earl Ferguson gives you a complete and detailed report in this issue of the Lather on the importance of apprenticeship training, and I join him in urging you to see that apprentices are trained in accordance with the LIU Constitution.

We, here at Headquarters, are doing everything possible to assist in building up our membership. In many areas the Local Unions have sponsored organizing drives to bring new members into their locals and also to reinstate members who have been suspended. In many instances, under the authority vested in me as General President by the LIU Constitution, I have granted special dispensations for both the new members and reinstating members for these special organizing drives. It is absolutely necessary that we build up our membership to a sufficient number of qualified lathers to supply the necessary manpower for our contractors on all phases of our work. This is our only guarantee for protecting our trade jurisdiction properly.

The new revised LIU Constitution has been received from the printer and copies are being mailed to each local union in the same number as they receive journals. Every Journeyman and Apprentice Lather should have a copy of the LIU Constitution for his information and guidance.

WE HAVE INFORMED YOU on numerous occasions of the importance and necessity of having our entire trade jurisdiction set forth in your collective bargaining agreements. It is imperative that our trade jurisdiction in its entirety, as it is written in the LIU Constitution, Section 3, is included in all collective bargaining agreements with your employers. Therefore, when negotiating your new agreements, be sure this is done. If you need the assistance of the International Representative with your negotiations, or have any problem having our trade jurisdiction included, be sure to either contact him direct or contact me and I will see that you receive assistance.

I recently had the pleasure of meeting with our members in the St. Louis, Missouri, and East St. Louis, Illinois, area. Pictures and more details appear on page 9 of this issue.

Sincerely and fraternally,

SAL MASO,
General President.

Thousands of fingers of sparkling fireworks and a battery of searchlights illuminate the Washington Monument and its surrounding area, during the traditional July 4th celebration. REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

In a recent conversation with Mr. Leo Schultz, Director of our National Apprentice Training program, I learned of his great concern with the lack of cooperation on the part of the employers and local unions regarding their participation in our apprentice training program. Therefore, this month I would like to comment (I might say quite frankly) on this subject of apprentice training and the lack of cooperation. I might add that frankness quite often is somewhat critical.

Not too long ago, General President Maso advised our membership that apprentice training is the lifeblood of our International Union, and if we are to retain our identity in the building trades industry and keep pace or near pace with the number of lathers needed in the next few years as projected by the Labor Department (see page 4), we certainly must indenture and train apprentices.

Your National Apprenticeship Committee, in cooperation with Mr. Schultz, has gone to great lengths in preparing what we feel is an adequate program. It includes various textbooks for apprentice training. But this program cannot progress without the support of our employers as well as our local unions, and I can only say, quite frankly, that in my opinion it is deserving of full support by all.

Being Secretary-Treasurer of the Apprentice Committee, I can verify that compiling information, preparing and printing it, etc., costs money. This cost should be borne by all, not just a handful. At our recent Convention, a resolution was adopted that called for each local union to negotiate a one cent per man-hour payment by the employer to our National Fund. Further, the Committee on Education in their report to the Convention stressed and emphasized the fact if we are to have qualified mechanics to protect and service the work rightfully coming under the jurisdiction of the lather, we must have an apprentice training program. The employers are as well aware of this as we are. Certainly, we know, on some occasions the employers would like to have two men for every job, but this is not at all necessary. It is also not necessary that there should be three or four jobs for only one man.

Our Constitution provides, I think, a very fair formula or ratio regarding the indenture of apprentices. This gives all local unions plenty of latitude regarding the indenture of apprentices, but apparently not enough local unions take advantage of it. Most local unions live under the misapprehension that apprentices are necessary only when there is an avalanche or an abundance of work. This, indeed, is a false idea. Indenture and training of apprentices should be a well planned cooperative effort by the local union and its contractors.

One important factor our local unions seem to ignore is the fact that death and retirement of unions should at least replace with apprentices our members are ever with us. Therefore, all local those who pass away or retire. All local unions should insist that their agreements provide for employer participations in our apprentice training program. We also are well aware and appreciate the fact that when an area lacks work, local unions are reluctant to indenture apprentices.

By the same token, deliberate restricting or limiting membership in a local union, with the thought in mind that such action would insure the continuity of employment for the immediate membership, certainly is not conducive to the best interest of said local union or to the membership of the L.I.U.

This sort of selfish attitude usually acts to the detriment of all. Limiting manpower creates substitutes for our work. Manpower shortage in an area gives the architect or builder a perfect alibi to his client to reduce or completely eliminate the work of the lather. Further, contractors who have employed our members for many years are somewhat reluctant in many instances to figure all phases of our work by virtue of the fact they know they would be unable to get sufficient manpower to service it.

Certainly, no local union should flood the roster with apprentices, but we do think that every local union should have an adequate amount of apprentices, at least enough to replace those who drop out of the trade via death, etc.

As officers of your International Union, President Maso and myself feel it is our obligation to look out for the best interests of the membership of our organization. We feel when we have an adequate amount of man-power to service the work which rightfully belongs to us, we can go a long way toward reducing some of the jurisdictional problems we have today.

The ratio of apprentices, according to our Constitution, can be one to five. However, at the present writing, we are nowhere near one to five. Therefore, it is my firm and sincere opinion that the officers and members of those local unions not participating should give serious consideration to this important problem. You should make every possible effort, not only to indenture and train apprentices, but also to insist that employers in your areas support our national program.

Sincerely and fraternally,

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

The GHOSTS of Good Intentions

YEARs ago union members used to know each other a lot better than they do today. Union meetings were social occasions, when a bunch of the boys would whoop it up out in the lobby for a while and then go into the hall for the serious business of organizing and planning contract strategy. Labor temples were pointed to with pride. Labor Day was an occasion for parades and speeches.

About all a union member could afford for entertainment in those days was a bucket of beer and a nickel cigar. There were no V-8's with overdrive, no television or no hobby kits.

The union was a fraternity of men . . . and sometimes women . . . with mutual working problems and goals.

Today, largely because of this same union, we can afford many more activities than the old timers could. The wife's out with the Cub Scouts. The big fights on TV. Or maybe Sophia Loren is floating around in her houseboat at the local movie house.

The union—bless its hard-working business agent and the checkoff system—is something which need only be supported next time it starts knocking heads with the boss over a new contract. In some big electronic installations you're not apt to know any union brothers outside your own department.

When you attend a union meeting, the empty chairs and echoing rafters of the hall make you wonder why you bothered. The ghosts of good intentions rise up to haunt you. This big hall which was built with the hard-earned dues money of every member was dedicated to a greater labor movement in your city and to a better life for every member and his family. Here is a wonderful meeting place, well lighted by IBEW-label fixtures, well aired by heating and air conditioning equipment installed by union plumbers. Capable union officers whom you helped to elect—either by voting or failing to vote—are conducting the vital business of the organization. And where are all your union brothers?

Every union has faced the problem of poor turn-outs at union meetings. It's a problem that's common to every type of organization—business meetings of the church, PTA meetings, even political rallies.

Why don't members come to the meetings?

- A lot of members either never got the habit or got out of the habit of attending meetings.

- Those who attend regularly do most of the talking at any meeting, because they know what is going on. The newcomer isn't familiar with the business before the meeting, doesn't know many of the members, and, as a result, loses interest.

- Some meeting halls are drab and unattractive in spite of what we said above. (This fact never discouraged the old timers, by the way.)

- Thirty years ago union members were apt to live within easy trolley ride of the union hall. Today many live 10, 20 or even 30 miles from the meeting place.

Whatever the reasons, few of us get to union meetings as often as we should. We know less about the union and its program, and the union is handicapped in what it can accomplish.

What can be done to rebuild attendance? Should we look for other ways to conduct our business and spread the word?

This is a serious problem, and, as we face another year of activity, we should resolve to do something about it. The best way to start is to attend the next one yourself . . . and take a brother with you.

Jobsite Picketing—One Step Ahead

Further evidence of the quickening pace of Congress on vital labor legislation came at the end of June from the jobsite picketing quarter. The House Labor subcommittee opened hearings on legislation introduced by Rep. Frank Thompson (D-N. J.) which would restore to the construction unions their traditional right to jobsite picketing.

Among the leadoff witnesses testifying on the need for amending the Taft-Hartley Act, were U. S. Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz and AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department head C. J. Haggerty. They both spoke strongly for eradicating the picketing prohibition.

Since the Denver Building Site decision by the NLRB in 1951, which said jobsite picketing was unfair secondary boycotting, illegal under the Taft-Hartley Act, construction trade unions have been unable to effectively enforce their contracts.

The decision, which set the precedent for any subsequent NLRB decisions on jobsite picketing, is "a denial of the right to strike and picket" at multi-employer construction sites, Wirtz told the subcommittee. Action is "urgent", he said, to correct the "very unfair" restriction which has resulted.

The original purpose of the secondary boycott wording in the Taft-Hartley Act, he said, was to "protect 'neutrals and innocent bystanders,' from becoming involved in a labor dispute," but that there really are no "neutrals" among employers working together on a construction job site.

Labor Secretary Wirtz also pointed out that the proposed remedial legislation would apply only to construction sites disputes and picketing against construction site employers.

In urging passage of Rep. Thompson's bill, Building & Construction Trades Department head Haggerty pointed out that the effect of the Denver Building Site decision has been a "serious deterioration of union conditions in many areas of the country." Although Congress has considered the problem many times, he said, there has been no action. "The time has come, in our judgment, when the petition of the Building & Construction Trades workers to redress their grievances with regard to the Denver Building Trades rule should be answered by the Congress."

"There now is no longer any reason for the Congress to fail to enact the situs picketing bill," Haggerty said. The leaders of Congress, from both parties, are pledged to the enactment of this legislation and we look forward to its early passage.

In addition to the testimony of Wirtz and Haggerty, which was presented personally during the opening hearings, strong support came by mail from AFL-CIO President George Meany and Industrial Relations Department head Walter Reuther. Meany, in a letter to Representative Thompson, outlined the history of efforts to get remedial legislation through the Congress, and the damaging effect of earlier Construction-Industrial union disagreement over how the situs picketing roadblock should be eliminated. The issue involved was construction union picketing of in-plant construction work.

Meany explained that the dispute has now been settled, under terms of an agreement signed by representatives of the Industrial and Construction Trades unions in February.

At the time they signed the agreement, the Industrial Union Department and the Building & Construction Trades Department also jointly approved the Thompson legislation as a jobsite picketing remedy.

In a statement filed with the House Labor subcommittee, IUD head Walter Reuther wrote, "the very basic right to strike by construction workers is here at stake." The Denver decision, he pointed out, "has adversely affected the growth of unions, impeded stable labor-management relations, and made fair competition in the construction industry more difficult."

Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training

In a recent speech before the Eastern Seaboard Conference, the Administrator of the U.S. Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training told why apprenticeship is essential to national survival in the atomic and space age. In answer to the critics, he points out that apprenticeship is the backbone of our capacity to produce. Excerpts from his speech follow:

Apprenticeship has played an important role in the growth of the United States to the position of world eminence it enjoys today. Without the highly skilled American worker, not a rocket would have been launched, not to mention the less spectacular but important human needs which the trained journeyman produces and services routinely.

Yet, 28 years after the enactment of legislation to permit the Federal government to promote apprenticeship in the United States, questions about the effectiveness and even the need for apprenticeship are bobbing up like ducks in a shooting gallery.

The task has been complicated by a fog of misinformation and misinterpretation.

Important voices are asking whether apprenticeship has outlived its usefulness. They are asking whether there is any further need to promote a system which seems to have become an anachronism in its time: producing more skilled workers than are needed or not enough, depending on the viewpoint.

They are asking whether the system is truly capable of keeping up with the increased tempo of change in techniques and processes; with the new materials of production, and the exotic alloys and artificial substances which are as strange to us today as a jet plane would have been to Columbus.

Well, of course, they are wrong. How else would our highly skilled craftsmen be trained? In schools? Some schooling or related classroom work is essential to any apprenticeship course, but there has been nothing new in the history of mankind which has been able to replace the basic method of learning a complicated and broad skill on-the-job.

The stakes in preserving apprenticeship are high. Apprenticeship is the backbone of our industrial capacity to produce. In our ability to produce is our ability to survive in this atomic and space age.

There really is no question of preserving apprenticeship. No one would or could abolish it. But apprenticeship could die a natural and quiet death if it did not keep pace with time and change.

With this in mind, the Federal Committee approved the establishment of a far-reaching study into the entire system and structure of apprenticeship. The study will be conducted for 12 months beginning next month. The results will be published. If important facts are gleaned before the study is completed, the Federal Committee and the Bureau will make the information public. The Manpower Administration of the Department of Labor considers this study one of the most important to be undertaken in recent years and the results could have a large bearing on our future direction.

While this study is in progress, the Bureau has several other programs and studies underway or ready for completion.

We will have completed shortly a study of apprenticeship standards in the electrical industry and how they differ by geographical areas within this industry.

We are currently in a three-phased study of the painting and decorating industry, with the joint cooperation of the painting and decorators' union and the contractors' association.

We have completed a study of 12 apprenticeable occupations, comparing the number of apprentices they had in 1950 with the number in 1960 and drawing some very interesting conclusions from the statistics.

All of these studies and programs of research and education are aimed to give those of us vitally concerned in apprenticeship and the nation's industrial future the hard and bony facts.

Those of us in management and labor and government who have been working with apprenticeship most of our lifetimes know the right thing to do almost by instinct. But the age of the computer and the great centralization of education and training efforts will make our instinctive and reflex actions not quite quick enough if not downright old hat.

Changing times demand changing concepts. One of the time-honored concepts which has prevailed for centuries in apprenticeship here and abroad has been that of the son following in his father's footsteps. It is a fine old custom. I am a proud product of it, as is my brother. It is the same sort of tradition that has the sons of admirals and generals in Annapolis and West Point. It is the same tradition that has sons becoming physicians and lawyers as their fathers.

There are few such occupational opportunities when you compare the total number to the total number of people who have jobs. But, whether the occupation is military service, physician, or journeyman plumber, one rule of thumb must prevail: acceptance on the basis of qualifications alone.

Minority groups are well represented today or growing in representation in practically every trade, occupation and profession. Unfortunately, there are some specific industrial pockets which have been slow in adopting the concept of acceptance on the basis of qualifications alone.

But, with the increased pressure of the vast majority of the American people, and the enforcement powers of new legislation, these changes will and must come about. Those who attempt to turn back the clock or stop the clock will find themselves doing a great disservice to themselves, their colleagues and their nation.

Hiring or accepting people for training on the pure basis of qualifications alone, without regard to race, color, creed, sex, or national origin, is the finest method I know to strengthen the capability and productive capacity of our labor force.

So let us make no mistake about it. We have done exceptionally well, I believe, in assisting industry in promoting apprenticeship programs and standards. While we must not let this effort slide, we must grasp every opportunity to make the OJT program the outstanding operation it can be in the Department of Labor by pursuing every potential lead and developing every likely prospect. It is up to us, and the eyes of the Manpower Administration are upon us.

The change in industrial and occupational emphasis in our national economy is being felt at every hand, at every turn in the road towards full employment. We have the opportunity as promotional and administrative leaders to make use of these changes and forge them into positive rungs in the upward climb.

California Thincat Training

Like those in other forward-looking areas of the country, California lathers and contractors show how to build business and a future for the trade at the same time.

When new business goes begging because there aren't enough people around trained to handle it, something should give. In California, where the Lathing industry seems to be among the most progressive, it does. A full-blown industry-subsidized thinwall lathing training program has been underway for a little less than a year now, and is giving lathers opportunities for employment while it gives contractors a chance to bid thinwall systems on new construction projects.

The new thinwall techniques, while similar to traditional lath and plaster methods, were not familiar to most lathers back in August, 1964, when the Lathing Institute of Southern California got behind the training program. The Board of Trustees saw that lathing contractors were reluctant to bid the possible new work because of a shortage of lathers trained in the application of the large-size lath used. To alleviate the problem, the Board of Trustees initiated a program to subsidize the training of an initial cadre of 100 lathers.

A subsidy of $1.00 per hour was offered by the Lathing Institute for each journeyman lather sent by a contractor to participate in the program. Apprentices were allowed to participate in the program, at reduced subsidies, the amount based on the percentage pay bracket of the apprenticeship period.

In order to participate in the program, contractors were required to either have a contract on a thincat job, or be actively making a bid on one. In addition, they had to comply with all terms and conditions of the current labor agreement, and have a man on the staff who was, or would be, qualified to train lathers in applying large-size lath.

Basic purpose of the program was to establish a pool of men with preliminary classroom training, who could be then made available to the participating contractors for up to 200 subsidized hours of on-the-job training.

An enrollment of 110 men was chalked up for the first class, an impressive figure by any standards. The men underwent 12 classroom sessions, spread out for a period of six weeks in Monday and Tuesday evening classes, before they were graduated to on-the-job work. Classroom subjects included handling and application of large-size lath, tools required to cut the lath and prepare its surface and joints for the thin plaster coating, and two-man techniques of working together.

Lather attendance at the classroom session was outstanding—an average of over 80 per cent for the 6 weeks of formal training. By late fall of last year, ten of the classroom graduates had gone on to complete their 200 hours of on-the-job work, under the Lathing Institute's subsidy program, and many more have done so since.

The results have been so satisfactory, in fact, that the initial class had not yet even finished training before plans were being laid for a follow-up class. Since the first group of the Lathing Institute's thinwall lathers were sent out to the field, two more groups have completed training.

Training conducted under the subsidy program of the Lathing Institute followed several years of classroom instruction conducted by the Los Angeles Trade Technical college. They were host and co-sponsors for the classroom session of the Lath Institute's subsidized training program, and have put through a total of six formal training classes in slightly more than three years. Not including the graduates of the most recent classes, over 250 journeyman have taken part.

HOUSE COMMITTEE OKS 14(b) REPEAL

Senate begins Hearings on companion bill, in all-out effort to cancel restrictive legislation in states.

Final details for House repeal of section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act—the section which makes it legal for states to pass “right-to-work” laws—were being cleared up toward the end of April. Although the situation looked promising, with virtually all major national political leaders on record in favor of Repeal, and an atmosphere which encouraged some strongly-worded attacks on big-business backers of the “right-to-work” law during Congressional hearings, an element of caution has been injected by some observers. Alexander Barkan, National Director of the AFL-CIO’s COPE, said, “I expect that McClellan, along about June or July will start holding these hearings to try to convince the American People that the labor movement is a bunch of crooks. I’m also worried that some of our friends in Congress tell us they’re getting ten letters against us on 14(b) repeal for every one that they’re getting for us.”

The sponsor of the House repeal bill, Representative Frank Thompson (D-N.J.) said “we have the votes,” but he expected a “tough fight” in getting the repeal through Congress this session.

Shortly after Barkan made his remarks, to the Sixth Constitutional Convention of the AFL-CIO, the struggle for repeal of 14(b) received a temporary set-back. Congressman Adam Clayton Powell (D-N.Y.), Chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee which has responsibility for the legislation, announced his intentions to delay a House vote on the measure pending passage of another bill designed to protect negroes against union discrimination.

Fortunately, civil rights leaders, labor leaders and members of Powell’s own committee were able to convince him that he should drop his case for an anti-discrimination bill. As a concession, committee members agreed to sponsor a bill which would strengthen the enforcement powers of the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission.

House action on legislation to repeal section 14(b) was officially set in motion June 10, when the labor committee OK’d the bill by a vote of 21 to 10, and passed it on to the Rules Committee. Powell said he would ask the Rules Committee to get it on the floor of the House for debate and a vote soon.

Shortly afterward, the Senate Labor subcommittee opened four days of hearings on 14(b). The first witness was U. S. Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz, who affirmed complete Administration support for the repeal bill. He said it has “top priority” billing in the White House, and that the Administration will do everything in its power to get the repeal bill enacted so that unions and employers in all states may negotiate union shop agreements.

AFL-CIO Legislative Director Andrew Biemiller testified next, and pointed out the vicious way in which the 14(b) loophole has led states to battle each other for new industry by promising low wages and weak employee organization. “It is utterly wrong,” Biemiller said, “for a state to solicit business on this basis, and equally wrong for federal law to encourage it.”

Backing him up, Wirtz said that there is just one way to avoid “disruptive competition” between states, and that is to make the law covering freedom to agree on union security the same throughout the country.

Discussing the relationship between state "right-to-work" laws and anti-union management bias, Biemiller noted that it is "no coincidence" that employers who seek state laws prohibiting union security are "those who are unwilling to deal with unions at all."

Biemiller also stressed the value of strong unions to society. A union shop, he said, "serves as a sort of guarantee by the employer that he is not going to try to break the union . . . since strikes over the existence or survival of a union are the longest and bitterest, union security arrangements make for industrial peace."

During House hearings on the repeal bill, a spokesman for the National Association of Manufacturers, one of the strongest opponents of the measure, was cut down by both republican and democratic members of the labor subcommittee. In response to a charge by the spokesman that repeal of 14(b) was "un-American," the bill's sponsor, Rep. Thompson, retorted, "poppycock," and added that he would be happy to tell the NAM's representative in private what he thought of the charge, and that the language wouldn't be fit to print.

Conservative Republican subcommittee member Rep. Robert Griffin (Mich.), who wants to see a ban on union political activity as the price of 14(b) repeal, verbally refused expressions of sympathy by the NAM spokesman. Griffin said he didn't consider the NAM "a very appropriate representative to speak for the rights of the individual workers. . . ."

First of a long line of witnesses testifying on the repeal measure was Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, who echoed the President's sentiments on the issue. "I urge that the right to decide this issue (union security) be returned to the American labor and American management."

AFL-CIO President George Meany, who followed the appearance of Mr. Wirtz, said that weak unions and low wages are the real purpose of the "right-to-work" laws. Meany said repeal of 14(b) will help the labor movement and strengthen unions at the bargaining table, but what was more important, he said, is that it will help the nation.

STAND UP, SPEAK OUT!

National COPE Director Alexander Barkan's remarks to the Constitutional Convention of the AFL-CIO are so timely and unusually perceptive that we have excerpted major portions and reproduced them below.

I think we have the votes (to repeal 14(b)). The President of the United States and the Vice President said they're with us in this fight. But I can't forget 1959.

We won a good victory in '58 and we were all primed to get 14(b) repealed and then Senator McClellan went to work. Remember those hearings? They made it appear that the labor movement was just a bunch of gangsters, corrupt from top to bottom. Even Ike got into the act and went on TV.

Instead of getting 14(b) repealed, we got Landrum-Griffin. I haven't forgotten that and I can't forget that McClellan got an appropriation of some $400,000 to investigate labor pension and welfare funds. His investigators are out right now, checking union pension and welfare funds and I have no doubt that here and there they'll find a bad situation.

In this hour of labor's agony, when its slanderous enemies, looking for its destruction are going to be smearing us—television, radio, magazines, newspapers, advertisements of all kinds by the National Right to Work Committee—who's going to speak up? Who's going to defend our faith, our belief, our organization if it isn't you?

The difference between us and the NAM and the Chamber of Commerce is that we care for people. As George Meany says: 'We're the peoples lobby.'

We are doomed as an organization if we forget the poor, the unemployed, the underpaid, the underprivileged. That's what makes us different from any other organization in the country. We have a wonderful story to tell the American people. We can boast that we have helped every social advance ever made in this country: free public schools, free libraries, unemployment insurance, shorter work week, holidays with pay, overtime, old age pensions, minimum wages, child labor protection. You name it. It's the labor movement that fought and died for these programs.

Why shouldn't you boast about all that when our enemies are trying to crucify us? You men and women of faith, if your religion were under the same kind of attack that your trade union is under, nobody would have to plead and beg with you to stand up and fight.

Come to the defense of your organization! Speak out! Stand up! Tell the whole world what the labor movement has meant to you and your family, to your wages, your hours, your working conditions, your dignity as a human being. Tell that story. Then we'll get 14(b) repealed and other things enacted in this year's legislative halls. Good luck. God bless you and on to victory.

BONDING BILL PASSES HOUSE

H. R. 5883, introduced in the House by Congressman Roman C. Pucinski (D-Ill.) to eliminate the repugnant wording of the Landrum-Griffin act—that requires that a labor union official be bonded "for the faithful discharge of his duties"—was passed by the House late in May. It substitutes a provision calling for a strong honesty bond, and should greatly reduce the premiums of such bonds. This bill will be examined by the Senate labor subcommittee at the time they open hearings on repeal of 14(b).

The Need for Adaptability Stressed by President Maso

General President Sal Maso, during a discussion of the industry with lathers of Local 64, Belleville, Illinois this May, once more stressed the need for adaptability to new techniques and materials. The lathing industry, Mr. Maso said, is undergoing a revolution, just like every other phase of our society, and in order to keep up with the trends it is necessary to meet headon the challenge of new materials.

The General President told the members and officers of Local 64 at a luncheon meeting that he intends to personally visit every Lathers local union in the national jurisdiction in an effort to give them an accurate, up-to-date appraisal of the position of the speciality trade in today's construction industry picture.

Despite the fact that there is no substitute for lath and plaster walls, particularly with regard to their fire-proofing qualities, Mr. Maso said, the new materials are here to stay and are a part of the construction trade.

Also addressing the luncheon group was William Horstman, executive secretary of the Council of Southern Illinois Building and Construction Trades Business Representatives. He pointed out how the building and construction trades unions in his area have accepted some recent innovations. Among them was the initiation of the code of ethics for the Building and Construction Trades Department of the AFL-CIO. The Southern Illinois area, Horstman said, was the first to put it into effect.

In addition, tradesmen in the area have taken the initiative in seeking broader solution of the areas problems, through the organization of the Southern Illinois Business Representatives Council. There is a merger pending, he noted, of the Alton, Belleville, and East St. Louis Building Trades Councils.

These developments, Horstman said, "are a farsighted and realistic acceptance of the growth, change and impact they have upon the building and construction industry and its

LATHERS REJUVENATE a WHITE ELEPHANT

What do you do with a vacant aircraft engine factory, which they used to call "the world's biggest white elephant"? You rejuvenate it with a $20 million shot of financing, and an unusually large dose of suspended grid ceiling, installed by lathers, and make it into a shopping center with an immense, covered, climate-controlled mall.

At least that's the philosophy of Harry F. Chaddick, President of the Chicago Industrial District, Inc., which developed Ford City, the new shopping center built upon the foundation of the old Ford aircraft engine factory at 7601 S. Cicero Avenue. His foresight has already been rewarded with over 93 per cent of the available space leased, although the job is not yet finished. Eighty retail stores and 20 industrial companies have signed on the dotted line.

And now that the Ford City project is well under way, the firm is looking into the possibilities of developing a $30 million industrial park on the vacant land east of the shopping center.

Ford City's fully enclosed, climate-controlled Mall will permit shopping with comfort and convenience in all kinds of weather. The Mall will contain 100,000 square feet of grid ceiling, and upon the completion of Ford City, approximately 1,500,000 square feet of grid ceiling will have been installed.

Installation of acoustical exposed grid ceilings is being done by members of Local No. 74 of Chicago. Barbet Builders, Inc. are the general contractors and Anning-Johnson Co., Inc. are the sub-contractors.

The work on the Ford City job was awarded to Lathers Local No. 74 on March 29, 1965, by the Chicago

Many other leading lathing and plastering contractors helped to contribute to the beauty of this shopping center.

The project manager and architects were well pleased with the workmanship of the Lathers and praised them for their versatility.

J. Earl Ferguson, General Secretary-Treasurer of the LIU, was honored May 29 in Cleveland for over 20 years of service to Local 2 there. Initiated into the local in 1919, Brother Ferguson served in a number of official posts from 1927 on, and in 1949 was elected its Business Agent. Among his other accomplishments was the establishment of the original Apprentice Training Program of the local.

Over 400 of Brother Ferguson's friends and associates attended the testimonial dinner, many of them from cities far away from Cleveland.

Most of the Cleveland area labor leaders were there, and telegrams of congratulations were received from a number of national figures. William Schnitzler, Secretary-Treasurer of the AFL-CIO sent a congratulatory wire, as did the Mayor of Cleveland.

attending the testimonial dinner, shown at right, were: son-in-law Richard Shoemaker; wife, Agnes (Honey) Ferguson; daughter-in-law Mrs. James Ferguson; Grand Nephew Ernest Kickel; niece's husband, Ed Wess; niece (beside Mr. Wess); Sister, Mrs. Albert Fogel; niece Mrs. Carol Kickel; daughter-in-law Mrs. John E. Ferguson and youngest son, William Michael Ferguson. Attending the dinner but not in the photo were: Mr. and Mrs. John Little, Daughter and son-in-law; Howard James Ferguson, son; Mrs. Eleanor Shoemaker, daughter, and John E. Ferguson, son.

A commemorative plaque, which cited Brother Ferguson for "many years of service as Business Agent and officer of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers Union Local 2," was presented by LIU General President Sal Maso and Charles R. Pinzone, Business Representative of Local 2 and Deputy International Representative.

During the presentation ceremony, Mr. Maso paid homage to the dedication of the distaff side of the Ferguson family—his wife, Agnes, better known to her many friends in Local 2 as "Honey." "A lot of honor is due to Mrs. Ferguson," Brother Maso said, "for the many hours she endured alone at home while her husband was away attending to the vital affairs of the local."

Father John Crawford, of St. Mary's Parish, Zanesville, Ohio, talked of Brother Ferguson's feelings for people—a personal warmth and sincerity, which helped him to achieve his success.

Also applauding Brother Ferguson's accomplishments was U.S. Congressman Bob Sweeney (D.-Ohio).

Patrick O'Malley, President of the AFL-CIO Federation of Cleveland, said in his remarks that it was evident that Brother Ferguson was a credit to the Lathers.

Visibly moved by the praise, Mr. Ferguson said that "This testimonial dinner only humbles one more, and makes me warmly appreciative and thankful to God for the help of my friends throughout the years of my career.

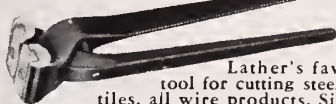

"In reflection of the years that have gone by, we all face the reality that no individual attains any success in any endeavor without aid and help from others. I have been blessed with friends—so many—and in so many places—including those present this evening—to whom I am forever grateful. My family and I will forever cherish the memory of this evening."

SUPPORT for repeal of Taft-Hartley Section 14(b) by top leaders of key Negro organizations spotlights once again the tremendous boost trade union positions and political candidates—have been given by Negro leadership and the Negro community.

Testifying before a House committee, NAACP Washington bureau director Clarence Mitchell called for repeal of 14(b). He declared, "We know after many long years of experience that so-called 'right to work' laws do not give Negro workers the right to work. These laws are of no value in ending discrimination" and those supporting such laws "have no interest in the welfare of working men and women."

"The labor movement has helped us," Mitchell said. "I would say we are allies. We have not had the assistance from employer groups that we have had from labor."

Mitchell's testimony was made on behalf of the NAACP and other Negro leaders and organizations, among them Roy Wilkins, NAACP executive director; A. Philip Randolph, president of the Negro American Labor Council and a member of the AFL-CIO Executive Council; Rev. Martin Luther King, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; James Farmer, national director of CORE.

The important testimony for 14(b) repeal by the NAACP official has been backed up time and again by Negro voters in "right to work" votes in various states.

Little more than a year ago, Negroes voted overwhelmingly against the proposed open shop law in Oklahoma. Without their help, the 25,000-vote victory for labor may not have been achieved. In Tulsa County, for example, in the 12 predominantly Negro precincts, the vote against RTW was 4301-210. In Oklahoma County (Oklahoma City), the vote in 22 Negro precincts was 7040-1105 against the open shop. In one Tulsa precinct, it went 401-3.

In 1958, when Ohio labor defeated RTW at the polls, typical Negro precincts in Cincinnati turned out votes against the open shop of 210-18, 269-9, 207-4, 227-5. In other large cities, the results in Negro precincts were similar.

More recently, in the crucial drive by Ohio labor to prevent passage of a GOP-rigged state legislative reapportionment scheme, predominantly Negro areas turned in votes as high as 4-1 against the proposal. In one area, the vote was 4302 to 1016.

In support of candidates, as well as issues, the Negro vote has been crucial time and time again, especially in the case of election of southern liberals. COPE-endorsed Charles Weltner of Georgia's 5th Congressional District (Atlanta) unseated long-time incumbent James Davis in 1962 on the strength of the Negro vote. In a run-off against Davis in the Democratic primary, Weltner drew 97.2 percent of all Negro votes cast. He defeated Davis in the Negro areas, 23,642 to 674.

When liberal Claude Pepper made a political comeback in Florida in 1962, he relied heavily on the Negro vote for victory in the Democratic primary. In Negro areas, Pepper carried as high as 8-1 over the combined total of his three opponents.

In Nashville in 1964, liberal Richard Fulton swept Negro districts overwhelmingly, one by a vote of 814-5; and Ross Bass, winning his senate primary in Tennessee last year in a three-man race, relied heavily on Negro support.

The list could go on and on. Liberal Congressmen Mackie from Georgia, and Grider from Tennessee, and many others endorsed by COPE, have won because their support in the Negro community was solid. Without it, the results would have been different.

There's a simple lesson in arithmetic here. It takes substantially more than the votes of union members for labor's endorsed candidates to win.

It takes help from other groups and individuals with common goals and interests. This help has come from the Negro community consistently in the past, and support of Negro leaders and organizations for 14(b) repeal shows it will continue to come as long as there is encouragement and as long as labor continues to fight for full equality for all Americans.

Two women were gossiping. Said one, "What I say is—give a man enough rope and he'll hang himself!"

"Oh, I don't agree," said the other. "I gave my husband enough rope and he skipped."

The old saying, "The government is the servant of the people" ought to be changed because the government, like servants, is getting too expensive for most folks.

When a well-liquored gentleman returned home late one night and tried to unlock his front door, his wife shouted from an upstairs window, "Is that you, Fred?"

"Yes," he replied shakily. "I can't get the door open."

"Do you want me to throw down a key?" she asked.

"No," the lush replied, "but could you throw me down a keyhole?"

A man who had had one drink too many saw a sign: "Please ring the bell for the caretaker." He walked up and gave the bell such a pull that it nearly came out by the roots.

In a few minutes an angry man appeared at the door. "Are you the caretaker?" asked the bell-puller.

"Yes, what do you want?"

"I saw the notice, so I rang the bell. I want to know why you can't ring it yourself."

Two eminent psychiatrists were riding down in an elevator on a hot, sticky day. One was about 30 years old. The other was approaching 70. The young psychiatrist looked really beat and done in.

He said to his older colleague, who was looking calm, cool and quite refreshed:

"I don't see how you can listen to those terrible, harrowing, heart-rending personal histories that your patients recount all day and still be so relaxed."

The elder analyst shrugged. "Who listens?"

"Pa," asked Willie, "a man's wife is his better half, isn't she?"

"Well, so we are told, my son," said father noncommittally.

"Well, then," continued Willie, "if a man marries twice, there isn't anything left of him, is there?"

A reporter from a big city newspaper stopped to visit a friend who ran a little country weekly.

He asked his friend: "How can you keep up your circulation in a town where everyone already knows what everyone else is doing?"

The editor grinned: "They know what everyone's doing, all right, but they read the paper to see who's been caught at it."

One of the mysteries of life is how the boy who wasn't good enough to marry the daughter can be the father of the smartest grandchild in the world.

Jean was anxious that her old school friend should learn to like opera, and had dragged her along to hear a touring company at the local theater.

"That woman sings with a great deal of feeling," remarked Jean.

"I hope she isn't feeling as bad as she sounds," was the bored reply.

This is a story that Sam Levinson tells. It concerns a gentleman who quarreled with his wife and moved out to a hotel. All day he brooded, but by dinner time he was hungry and sorry, so he called her.

"Hello, Sarah. What are you making for dinner?"

"Poison I'm making."

"So make only one portion. I'm not coming home."

"Of course I could care for you, Roger, and if you'd join the Union, they'd care for the both of us!"

Broad Poverty Program Launched by Labour Minister

Allan J. MacEachen, Canadian Minister of Labour, told the Canadian Club in Niagara Falls, Ontario, May 5 that the existence of pockets of poverty in a Canada more prosperous than ever before is "intolerable," and announced a new programme to fight poverty.

He pointed out that more than one of every five nonfarm families in Canada has a cash income of less than $3,000 a year, and that there were 160,000 families with less than $1,000.

One point of major impact, he pointed out, is in rural "islands of poverty"—where the majority of families in local areas have sub-standard incomes. To counteract this kind of poverty, he said there will be an expansion of the area-development programme. Tax concessions and other incentives will be offered to industries to locate in the poverty pocket, etc. Last year, the programme helped attract capital investment to 35 designated areas totaling over $500 million, providing jobs for 18,000 people.

Mr. MacEachen said that the new anti-poverty programme will be extended to areas with generally low income. Until now, the areas which have been selected by the Government for assistance have been mostly those with severe, long-term unemployment.

A new element in the programme is additional financial support for the provinces to strengthen administration of anti-poverty funds. The goal is better integration of financial aid programmes with other elements in the broad programme, including vocational training, rehabilitation and job placement, to give the workers a chance to return to jobs.

There will also be programs to improve the cities and help the urban poor. Slum removal, and assistance on an individual basis to those who cannot cope with otherwise prosperous environments are needed. One of the keystones in the program is bolstered education.

"We are going to have to rely," MacEachen said, "on a labor force which must become better and better educated, better and better trained and more and more flexible."

CLC Leader Sees Neglect of Industrialized Countries

The International Labour Organization must strengthen its structure and devote attention to industrialized as well as developing countries, Joseph Morris, executive vice president of the Canadian Labour Congress, told the 49th session of the ILO at Geneva.

Morris, Canadian workers' delegate at the Geneva meeting, said the difficulties being experienced by the United Nations made it increasingly important that the future of the ILO be safeguarded.

"I cannot refrain from expressing our apprehension at a tendency of recent years to neglect the problems of industrial workers in the so-called developed countries," he said. "If the ILO is to retain its universal character and its sphere of responsibility, its activities and actual presence must remain world-wide . . . Dividing the ILO into donor and recipient states may in the end spell the ultimate destruction of the universal character of the organization."

King Mausolus, ruler of what was then Caria in Asia Minor, died in 353 B.C. He was immortalized through a magnificent tomb erected for him by his widow, Artemisia, in Caria's capital city of Halicarnassus on the southeast shore of the Aegean Sea.

Queen Artemisia, who succeeded her husband on the throne, entrusted to architects Phileas and Satyros the work of creating her late-husband's memorial on a grand scale. When she succumbed three years later —worn out by grief and from having absorbed daily, in her drink, the ashes of her loved one — construction stopped. It was finished later with the aid of three architects, a half a dozen well-known sculptors of that day, and thousands of heretofore unsung slave workers.

The Mausoleum of Halicarnassus

The building consisted of five parts — a basement or podium, an enclosure of columns called a pteron, a pyramid, a pedestal, and a chariot group on top.

The podium was built of greenstone, encased in marble.

The columned area consisted of 36 Ionic columns, surrounding the square enclosure. Between the columns probably stood single statues. From portions of this part of the edifice recovered by British archaeologists over 100 years ago, it appears that the principal frieze above the columns represented various Greek-type combats.

Above all this rose the pyramid—atop of which were built 24 steps leading to an apex or pedestal. On the apex stood a bigger-than-life chariot with a figure of Mausolus himself, accompanied by an attendant.

The Fifth Wonder of the World is believed to have been lost to the world at the time of the devastation of Halicarnassus by Alexander the Great a few years later.

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

Throughout the United States and Canada, I have found that, in many instances, there is hesitation to specify lath and plaster because of the fact that there is at times a problem with obtaining sufficient qualified and competent lathers to perform this work. This fact makes it even more imperative that apprentices are trained by Local Unions in a number sufficient to meet the demands in their areas and, without fail, apprentices should be trained in accordance with the LIU Constitution, Section 191b, which reads:

"b. The ratio of apprentices to journeymen shall be, one (1) apprentice to each Local Union plus one (1) apprentice to each five (5) journeymen."

The National Lathing Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Program now has available a complete course for related instruction. It includes the Apprentice's Guidebook, and Instructor's Guide and Topic Tests and quizzes. It is designed so that it may be used for a 2 or 3 year course. Each Local Union, State, District and Provincial Council will be receiving complete information from the National Program concerning this material in the very near future.

Many Local Unions as they negotiate their new agreements are including the Apprenticeship Program, but this is not enough . . . every Local Union should have this clause in their agreement, because every Local Union should be training apprentices and in order to train apprentices properly the Local Union should have a regular training program set up and regular courses to carry out. This Apprenticeship Program was set up for the specific purpose of aiding and assisting our Local Unions in their Local Apprenticeship Programs, however, no such program can survive, much less progress, without support and participation from the very people it services.

When you just sit back with the idea that someone else will see that it is carried on and you will still reap the benefits, you are only fooling yourselves. If everyone were to sit back with this same idea, we would find ourselves faced with the fact that we do not have sufficient manpower to man the work and it is then performed by someone other than lathers. When it becomes necessary for you to send out a plea for lathers it is not because you have too much work . . . it is because you have not trained apprentices in sufficient number to meet the demands. There is never too much work . . . you must grow with the industry. Our Industry is growing daily. New products are coming on the market . . . we must be prepared to meet any and all demands made upon us. This applies to every local union regardless of its size at the present time.

Long hours and much effort were put into getting the National Lathing Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Program started. Long hours and much effort have been put into preparing the guide books and instructor's manuals, now ready for your use. Both Labor and Management have contributed their time and knowledge to build up this program. One in particular is Jeremiah "Jerry" Burns who is Co-Chairman with me of this program. Jerry has spent endless hours to help this program become a success and he has contributed guidance and knowledge to assist in the administration of the program. It takes people with stamina like Jerry has to initiate this type of program, but it takes the support and co-operation of everyone concerned to make it a success.

The manpower requirements for Lathers are expected to increase by more than 11,000 between 1964 and 1975—from nearly 28,000 employed in 1964 to 39,000 needed by 1975. In addition, retirements and deaths over the 11-year period will boost openings for these workers to about 5,500.

The projected increase in the need for lathers is based mainly on the expected high levels of construction activity in the target years. Moreover, there will be a growing demand for lathing work because of the increasing use of new kinds of plaster and improved methods of applying plaster. Machine plastering and fireproofing are growing in importance. Because lathing is needed when these machines are used their greater use should increase the demands for lathers. These developments are expected to more than offset the loss of lathing work resulting from the use of nonplaster (dry-wall) construction.

You can readily see from this report the vital need for our Local Unions to train apprentices and to do everything possible to increase our membership.

In many areas, the Local Unions have had organizing drives to increase their membership by bringing in new members and by reinstating suspended members, under special dispensations. Under the powers vested in me, as General President, by the LIU Constitution, I have the authority to grant special dispensations for organizing drives. Such organizing drives have been successful. Therefore, if the potential for members is good in your area, it should be beneficial to your Local Union to sponsor an organizing campaign to increase your membership. If your Local Union should decide to sponsor such an organizing drive, advise me of all the facts

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

The latest Federal Civil Rights laws—Title VI and VII of the Civil Rights act of 1964,—went into effect July 2. Although they add no new anti-discrimination provisions to the laws which have been in effect since January, 1964, they do broaden the coverage, and give the Federal Government increased enforcement powers. Therefore, it is important that all local union and apprenticeship committee secretaries be thoroughly familiar with the provisions of all these laws.

Title VI of the Civil Rights Act gives the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training the necessary enforcement tools to regulate discrimination in programs under the Manpower Development and Training Act. If there is no state or local government nondiscrimination law applicable, (and this is the case in relatively few areas of the country), the BAT will now have immediate and direct jurisdiction.

Title VII provides no additional enforcement power, but extends coverage. Now, all joint apprenticeship committees are covered by the earlier nondiscrimination laws, regardless of the number of apprentices involved.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, set up specifically to search out any infractions of the regulations, is expanding its staff to make the civil rights laws more effective.

What are the local apprentice programs required to do?

They must “publicly disseminate” information about apprenticeship openings. This means that information on the number of apprentices to be indentured, the location of the openings, and the fact that the candidates will be selected on a non-discriminatory basis, must be posted at the meeting hall, and be sent to the area employment service and all local schools. In addition, all apprenticeship programs must have a non-discrimination clause.

Although the Federal law is supreme with respect to these regulations, the states have set up their own procedures. They must be at least as comprehensive as the Federal law, but may go much farther. At least one state—Pennsylvania—has drafted procedures which would require publication of apprentice openings in the local newspapers.

The Federal regulations are designed only to provide equal opportunity for apprenticeship to all, regardless of race, color, religion, sex or national origin. They set no minimum standards whatever for apprenticeship entrance, and the standards are, therefore, entirely up to the local. However, it is important to remember that all programs registered with the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training, or with the state Apprenticeship and Training Council must include the non-discrimination clause.

The U.S. Department of Labor has notified us that it will withdraw recognition of any apprenticeship programs that do not have this clause written into them.

Every local union or joint apprenticeship committee chairman should, therefore, immediately examine local programs to make sure the program conforms to the above regulations. For detailed information on the state requirements, which are

Through a printer's error, two lines were switched in the 6th paragraph of the General Secretary-Treasurer's Report for July. The message was important to the discussion of apprenticeship, and we reproduce here in full the intended text of the paragraph:

One important factor our local unions seem to ignore is the fact that death and retirement of our members are ever with us. Therefore, all local unions should at least replace with apprentices those who pass away or retire. All local unions should insist that their agreements provide for employer participation in our apprentice training program.

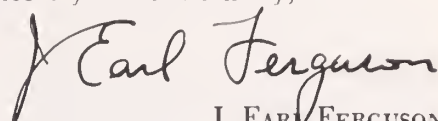

normally the ones which affect the local program, the state Apprenticeship and Training Council should be contacted.

While discussing apprenticeship, I might add another note about its relationship to the Federal Government. It has been made quite clear to me that the Department of Labor is vitally concerned with apprenticeship, in the lathing industry as in all others. If inadequate numbers of apprentices are being indentured to at least keep up with the normal attrition, there is a possibility that the Federal Government would be concerned enough to step in and create a Federally-directed apprenticeship program.

You know that both General President Maso and myself feel strongly about the need for an effective apprenticeship program. In the light of these present developments, it is even more imperative than ever before that we make certain ours is active, and in strict compliance with the laws of the land.

Sincerely and fraternally,

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

and contact the International Representative for your area so that he may also give me his recommendations for a special dispensation to be granted.

Under date of June 25, 1965, I directed a letter to all International Representatives apprising them of the aforementioned information, and instructing them to assist the Local Unions in their regions in every way possible.

A letter with a form to be filled out was sent to each Local Union, State, District and Provincial Council June 24, 1965. The information requested in this letter was, and is, of vital importance. We have not received a reply from a number of our Local Unions or Councils. A second follow up letter with another form was sent out July 16, 1965. I am now wondering if some of our Locals and Councils did not receive these mailings since it has been brought to my attention that in some instances the Officers of our Local Unions have been lax in submitting current and correct information relative to names, addresses, telephone numbers, etc. It is very important that we have accurate information for our mailing list and also for the directory listing in the monthly Journal. Therefore, I should appreciate it if you would cooperate and make every effort to be sure any and all changes in such information are submitted immediately to us, so that our records will be correct and up to date.

The Board of Trustees of the General Pension Fund and General Pension Plan held a meeting June 22, 23, 1965. A complete report cannot be given on this meeting at this time because of further reports which are forthcoming from the actuarial study which necessitated setting up a meeting for the very near future. At that time we should have a comprehensive report for you.

The General Pension Fund is growing constantly with a number of Local Unions coming into the Plan. You should make every effort to have the General Pension Fund clause included in your collective bargaining agreement, if it is not already contained therein.

The newly revised sample Working Agreement and sample Constitution and By-laws have been forwarded to the Local Unions. You should use the sample Working Agreement as a guide when negotiating your new agreement and the sample Constitution and By-laws as a guide in bringing your local Constitution and By-laws up to date. Also in using these samples as guides your Agreements and Constitution and By-laws will be in compliance with the LIU Constitution which of course is necessary for them to be approved by myself as General President.

I have just sent out a letter to all International Representatives with respect to the National Bureau Clause in your working agreements. You have been kept apprised of the progress being made in the reactivation of the National Bureau.

Every collective bargaining agreement should contain the Promotional Bureau clause in it. I call your attention to Section 123 of the LIU Constitution which makes it mandatory that this clause be included in every working agreement. Section 123, LIU Constitution provides as follows:

"In addition, agreements with employers must contain a provision or provisions therein requiring that each employer agrees to pay and contribute the sum of no less than three cents (3c) per hour for all hours worked by journeymen lathers and apprentices in the employ of the employer into the Local Bureau for lathing and plastering, hereinafter referred to as the Promotional Fund. The Promotional Fund whose main purpose is the advertising and promotion of the increased and wider use of lath and plaster with the aim of preserving and advancing the lathing and plastering industry and thus providing greater job security and opportunities for journeymen lathers to handle the anticipated and needed increase in lathing work, promote the institution of apprenticeship or other training programs and will aid and assist those who are entrusted with the operation of such instituted apprenticeship or other training programs."

As I have informed you in my previous reports, the committees from our International Union and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners have met on two occasions. The first meeting was held June 10-11, 1965, and the second meeting was held July 2-3, 1965. They are now scheduled to meet again August 3-4, 1965, and just as soon as their reports are complete, you will be informed with respect to this matter.

Sincerely and fraternally

SAL MASO,
General President

Congressional Report Card

Working fast to pass a fat parcel of liberal legislation before adjournment, Congress agrees on Medicare and Social Security increases, and the House passes 14(b) repeal.

As far as labor is concerned, this Congress is likely to get a good report card. The heavy liberal majority of Congress, elected in 1964, coupled with effective labor support and a sincere concern on Lyndon Johnson's part to get into the "great society" business with both feet, has had a noticeable effect on the legislative record to date.

Not all of the legislation which has been passed or is under serious consideration by both houses has a direct effect on the construction industry. In the long-range view, however, it will contribute much to labor's standard of living, while improving the prosperity of all Americans and thereby helping to give the construction industry an added boost.

THE CONSTRUCTION FRONT

There are, however, some important pieces of legislation with a direct bearing on construction. One of these, the situs picketing legislation which was examined in detail in the July LATHER (page 4) is waiting for hearings to start in the Senate. The house labor subcommittee concluded its hearings on the measure June 30, and heard a succession of witnesses testify in support of the measure, including Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz and Building and Construction Trades Department head C. J. Haggerty.

Congressional Quarterly, an authoritative newspaper which specializes in Congressional coverage, gives the situs picketing legislation the best chance of passage since it was first introduced way back in 1954.

The legislation would return to the construction unions the traditional right to effectively picket an entire site where there is a dispute between a single union and the contractor.

Housing

Another legislative proposal of immediate interest to the construction industry is the Omnibus Housing program, which passed the Senate July 15. A similar House measure passed that body earlier.

Both Bills provide for a variety of new and expanded urban renewal and residential construction programs for the next four years. Under terms of the Senate measure, the urban renewal program would get another $2.9 billion to help communities tear down blighted, substandard areas of residences, business and commercial structures, and erect new, planned communities.

Another $1.6 billion in home loans would be made available by the bills.

The legislation would also authorize construction of 60,000 low-rent public housing units a year, with about 35,000 of these being new construction and the remainder rehabilitated property or property leased from private owners.

A limit of 3 per cent would be placed on loans for construction to house elderly people, the handicapped and displaced persons. The legal limit is now 4 per cent.

$700 million worth of matching funds would be made available to communities to construct or improve water and sewer plants, over the next four years. To qualify for federal assistance, the communities must match every dollar with one of their own.

In addition, the housing bill would insure no-down-payment housing loans for veterans.

Area Redevelopment

Already passed in the Senate, and approved by the House Public Works Committee, are similar anti-poverty bills for generous public works construction and regional development programs in areas of heavy unemployment. The Senate measure would authorize spending of $3.3 billion over a five-year span.

"Right-to-Work" Repeal

On July 28, the House voted, 221-203, to outlaw state "right-to-work" laws. This action followed shortly House Labor Committee approval of the repeal bill. The measure would wipe out the section of the Taft-Hartley Act which makes it possible for states to pass the restrictive laws. Nineteen states now have them.

Earlier, Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Chairman of the House Labor Subcommittee, filed a 21-day petition in the House Rules Committee for the legislation. Under the terms of this rule, which was set up by the House at the start of this session of Congress, the bill can be brought up for a debate whether the rules committee gives its go-ahead or not. Before this reform, many pieces of liberal legislation had been effectively killed when the conservative-dominated Rules Committee sat on vital bills until after adjournment.

MEDICARE

On the broad social legislation front, the most significant new development was passage of medicare proposals by both the House and the Senate, and agreement by a joint House-Senate committee on changes in details of both bills to make up a compromise law. Although both houses must still vote on the new compromise proposal, it was expected to be a rubber-stamp affair, and the bill was expected to reach the President's desk for signing into law by the first of August.

Called the "most far-reaching improvement in the social security system since its enactment 30 years ago" by AFL-CIO Social Security Director Nelson H. Cruikshank, the law increases social security benefits for everyone, in addition to providing brand-new Federal medical insurance for the elderly. Under the terms of the compromise measure worked out by the joint House-Senate committee, all people now on social security benefits will get an increase of 7 per cent in cash benefits.

To finance the increased cost of the program, the social security tax base would be increased for wage-earners.

Both social security increases and medical insurance would go into effect in July, 1966.

Under the hospitalization program, insurance benefits would cover up to 90 days for any one illness. The patient would pay the first $40 of the hospital bill, and after 60 days in the hospital, would contribute $10 a day for the remaining month of coverage.

There would also be payments for up to 100 days of nursing home care following a period of hospitalization, with the patient paying $5 a day for each visit after 20. Alternately, the plan would provide up to 100 days of home care nursing visits.

Other medical expenses, including doctor bills and services of hospital specialists, would be partly paid for by a supplementary plan. This would involve a subscription fee of $3 a month for subscribers, with another $3 contributed by the government, to pay for 80 per cent of these medical costs after an initial $50 payment by the patient.

There is no change in the social security retirement age, but the limit on outside earnings for people drawing social security was raised from $1200 to $1500 a year. In addition, the ceiling was raised on outside income allowances which permit partial social security benefits. Now, anyone earning up to $2400 in outside income will lose $2 in benefits for every $1 over $1200 earned a year. Under the new law, income over the new $1500 ceiling up to $2700 a year would be treated the same way—a $2 loss in benefits for every $1 earned over $1500.

The increase in social security tax to pay for the health and retirement programs will be collected by raising the amount of annual income taxed, and increasing the tax percentage. Now, the social security payments (FICA) are made on the first \$4800 of income, at a rate of $3\frac{5}{8}$ per cent. A worker earning \$4800 or more a year (the present earning tax base for social security deductions) pays \$174. Under the new law, the taxable salary base goes up in 1966 to \$6600, and the rate to 4.2 per cent, for an annual total of \$277.20 for all workers earning over \$6600 a year. Afterward, the tax percentage would increase gradually over a 21-year period, until it reached a maximum of 5.6 per cent on each worker. At that time, the maximum deductions would be \$369 a year, for those earning \$6600 or more.

One special benefit in the new proposal is that the 7 per cent pension increase for an estimated 20 million people now drawing Federal retirement pay would be made effective back to January 1, 1965. Pensioners would get an average of about $50 each in late September, if the bill gets rapid action on the final House and Senate vote. The president's signature, without doubt, will be executed swiftly.

Kentucky R-T-W Victory

The Kentucky Court of Appeals unanimously ruled that "right-to-work" ordinances are illegal and so killed ordinances forbidding union shops in 25 cities in the state.

The methods by which the Kentucky communities had been sold on ordinances banning union security clauses rank with the classics of industrial deceit. For example, in one Kentucky town, according to Press Associates, Inc., the story went like this.

A representative for a men's clothing manufacturer promised the town that if the ordinances were passed, his company would locate a factory there, although the half-million dollar cost was to be paid for by the town. In return, the town would get the clothing operation for two years so they could "see how we like it here."

The community, in Appalachia's deep poverty belt, was hooked. They passed the ordinance.

The clothing manufacturer, or his representative, hasn't been heard from since.

Honorary Degree for Jeremiah Burns

Jeremiah Burns (L), President of the Building Trades Employers' Association of New York City, receives congratulations from Francis Cardinal Spellman (center), following Burns' receipt of an honorary Doctor of Laws Degree from Iona College. Brother Richard Power, president of the college, is at the right. The degree was conferred on Mr. Burns in June. He heads the metal furring and lathing firm which bears his name, is co-chairman of the National Joint Apprenticeship Committee of the Lathing Industry, and a director of the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association.

A CAPITOL JOB

In 1907, when things were done a little differently than they are today, the lathers above finished their honest day's work on the very top of the Cannon House Office Building, the first constructed to give members of the House of Representatives more working space. The first brick was laid July 5, 1905. By April 14, 1906, the cornerstone was laid, with President Theodore Roosevelt attending. The job was finished in January, 1908. Shown above are the "metallics", as they were then called, under Brother Jesse Mann, foreman. Standing: (L-R) William Reed, Brother Mann, Marion Baden, Charles F. Scott. Sitting: Jas. T. Lowen, Jos. Hammer, George Montooth, Edward Payne, Frank Barrish, Edward C. Purkey, Geo. Dyer, Hays Hill. Wire arches installed by the lathers show in the foreground. The Capitol is in the background, and the old Coast and Geodetic Survey building at the left. Below is a view of the job in 1906.

Lath and Plaster Cuts Costs for a

MODERN MEDICAL BUILDING

Lathers of Local 10, Milwaukee, recently demonstrated once more the versatility and economy of using metal lath and lathing accessories when they completed an unusual medical building in Waukesha, Wisconsin. The Moreland Medical building, 162 x 64 feet, was designed with eye-catching window bays and an exterior surface of stucco for exceptional appeal. The building has office and laboratory space for 16 doctors.

Leonard Cesarz was the lather foreman on the job; lathers were Oliver Holloway and Joseph Hordyk.

By using lathers for construction of both walls and ceiling systems for plastering, costs were trimmed for the owners. William G. Losch, of William Losch and Charles Haeuser Architects, who designed the building, said that "compared to precast concrete panels with stone facing, the cost was one-half less. Nor is construction time lost by this technique, since metal lath is not affected by the weather before being given its stucco cover. Also, with the plaster exposed to air on both sides rapid curing was possible. Metal lath provides the only suitable base for exterior plaster where weight is a consideration; through its use, savings in weight and cost of foundations and structures were possible. The structural steel in the building averaged 101 pounds per square foot of floor space."

The exterior walls of the steel-framed building were constructed of pre-fabricated steel studs, placed 16 in. on center. Angles were shop fabricated to produce the desired curved window surfaces when covered with galvanized 3.4 pound diamond mesh metal lath and stucco. To allow for expansion and contraction, metal expansion beads were spaced 4 ft. 0 in. o.c. in a vertical position. To the galvanized metal lath were applied three coats of portland cement, finished with quartz chips. The interior side of the metal lath assembly was back-plastered.

Prefabricated steel studs support prefabricated curved window bays, made in lathing contractor's shop. Metal lath was applied, and three coats of stucco.

"Projecting windows," Mr. Losch noted, "seemingly sculptured from the wall, were artistically and perfectly formed by the use of this flexible basing material. The economy and the versatility of this technique are significant of the great possibility that this application holds, particularly in view of the trend away from flat surfaces of exterior walls to new exciting sculptured surfaces."

The inner side of the exterior wall was finished with 3.4 pound diamond mesh expanded metal lath, wire-tied to the prefabricated steel studs and covered with three-coat gypsum-sanded plaster. The design of the exterior walls allowed use of 4 in. batt insulation, and provided convenient cavities for the running of mechanical service lines. Windows are fixed and formed from hollow metal frames. Solar bronze plate glass is used throughout with stained glass accents.

The building has individual temperature control for each room, and electric duct heaters to work in conjunction with warm air heat. Private corridors provide interconnection between the individual medical suites and to the nurses' and doctors' lounges. There are private access doors to the separate 50-car parking facility.

The roof framing consists of metal deck with steel joists framing into steel beams and columns. The upper floor has 2-1/2 in. of concrete supported by steel joists and beams. A concrete slab on grade makes up the lower level. Metal lath and plaster ceilings were installed throughout.

The lathing contract was executed by Rudy Neudek, Inc., Waukesha, Wisconsin, while the plastering was done by Kloke Plastering Inc., Elm Grove, Wisconsin. General contractor was Freiberg Bros. Inc., New Berlin, Wisconsin.

Lath and Plaster Weathers Sonic Booms

A recent program in Oklahoma City put Lath and Plaster to a new test—the shock of booms generated by a brand-new generation of super speed aircraft that will soon be rumbling across our skies. The results show traditional wall systems unaffected. Substitute materials may be in for a rough supersonic ride.

When the supersonic airliners arrive, to loft passengers at speeds undreamed of a short generation ago, they will bring with them one of modern man's most nagging problems. The sonic boom. Like an unwanted sucker fish on a shark, the sonic boom is a nuisance, not really hazardous, yet refusing to be shaken. It comes with the plane.

Although the average citizen has heard truly few, if any, sonic booms, the chances are that he has heard a lot about them. Among the well-publicized charges against the sonic boom is disruption of chicken's laying habits, human's sleeping habits and structural damage to dwellings. To find out exactly what the effect is on structures, as well as people, the Government last year conducted a series of sonic boom tests in Oklahoma City.

The test was the first major program for this purpose. During a period from February 3 to July 30 last year 1,235 sonic booms were generated over the Oklahoma City metropolitan area by Air Force aircraft flying under the direction of Federal Aviation Agency people.

The tentative conclusions are that there would be negligible structural damage to buildings—most likely about the same as that brought about by many other more commonplace noise and vibration-makers, such as stake driving activity in the front garden, and the rumble of heavy trucks down a nearby street. The stress generated in test buildings on the ground were well within the normal design limits of the structures.

There was just one structural area where researchers found any evidence of sonic boom damage at all, and that was in substitute wall constructions. Everything else—lath and plaster walls and ceilings, exterior construction of all kinds, mechanical and electrical systems, structural framing, floor slabs, showed "no significant discernible damage."

"However," the official engineering report of the test states, "the rate at which hairline paint cracks appeared and or extended, and the rate at which nail heads cracked the paint finish on "substitute wall materials," declined significantly at two of the primary test houses after the sonic boom period had ended. By inference, it is concluded that vibrations induced by sonic booms have accelerated hairline cracking of paint finish at corners and have accelerated the cracking of paint finish over nail heads in walls and ceilings in test houses No. 3 and 4." These were among five test houses built with substitutes.

Lath and plaster construction, on the other hand, showed no increase in the normal rate of cracking.

The structural results were perhaps more remarkable because of the age of the test houses constructed of lath and plaster walls. The newest lath-and-plaster house used in the tests was about 25 years old. The oldest substitute lath material home had been built 18 years ago, and most were much newer.

Although minor defects also appeared in the lath-and-plaster test houses, mostly "new wall (and/or ceiling) cracks," and "extension of existing wall (and/or ceiling) cracks," "these occurred at just about the same rate during the sonic boom test period at they did afterward.

The greatest increase in hairline cracking in lath and plaster houses occurred long after the sonic boom tests were over—between 10 and 11 weeks later. This was during a period when the air suddenly became very damp, then quickly dried, causing maximum change in the house structure.

To put the deterioration noticed in proper perspective, the researchers in Oklahoma City made some measurements during the other vibration-producing activity, more down to earth than the new thunder of supersonic aircraft. Stake-driving turned out to vibrate one of the test houses about as much as the sonic booms. Mild thunderstorm activity also created vibrations about equal to the booms.

As might be expected, walking around in the attic of the same test house produced greater strains on the ceiling joists of the living room and the garage than those produced by the booms.

Like any new phenomenon, the sonic boom has a hurdle of natural human resistance to overcome. Although those who are responsible for planning the development of the American supersonic transport—expected to be a better airplane than the European model now closer to production than ours—hope that the human factor won't delay the supersonic airliners' introduction, they now know that there is no serious threat of structural damage.

THINCOAT CITY

An immense community under construction in the West is solidly lath and plaster Century City, all thincoat and lath, will look like this when it's finished.

What has been called "the most ambitious undertaking of its kind in the United States"—a fully-planned, self-contained community which will eventually provide living space for 12,000 people, and working space for 20,000 is rising from the 180-acre remnants of what used to be the 20th Century Fox movie lot in Los Angeles.

Called Century City, the complex—which may take ten years to complete—is going to be a spectacular showcase for some of the building industry's latest products, and among them, in great quantity, is thin-wall aspects of Century City are all the more remarkable because the job almost fell to the substitute materials industry. Only some ingenious salesmanship on the part of the major lathing and plastering contractor saved it.

Just a few of the buildings scheduled to be ultimately constructed are now standing or under construction at Century City: Two 13-story office buildings, a 15-acre regional shopping center, twin towers, 27 stories tall, four luxury apartments, a regional office of the Automobile Club of Southern California, a two-story Pacific Telephone Co. building and a luxury 20-story hotel. When all are in place, the project will look much like the model, shown on the opposite page.

The project got its start in April, 1961, when the Aluminum Company of America, the developer, bought the entire 260-acre motion picture lot from 20th Century, cow towns, paper maché mountains, babbling brooks and all. An 80 acre chunk was leased back to the film makers, and work began on clearing away the remaining 180. Working under one of the biggest demolition contracts ever let in the West, the Cleveland Wrecking Company managed to level the property in seven full months—except for the trees. Instead of being mowed down, more than 1200 were carefully transplanted out of the way for use later in malls, parks, and along broad avenues as construction progresses.

Century City will be a model for other builders, incorporating the most scientific design principles for catering to the living and working needs of people with natural and man-made beauty. To cope with pedestrian and vehicular traffic, the master planners and architects, Welton Becket and Associates, came up with a new idea, called the "super block". It incorporates four normal city blocks in one area. Off-street and underground parking keeps the automobiles away, the size of the blocks eliminates at least one intersection per rectangle, and the heart of the city is thereby returned to the pedestrian. Engineering for the on-site improvements, such as a 236-foot-long bridge which carries the main thoroughfare over a busy Los Angeles throughway, is being handled by Daniel, Mann, Johnson and Mendenhall.

The focus of interest for inhabitants will be Century Plaza—a 15-acre shopping center which is going up over the spot where the set for the "Song of Bernadette" and the plaster systems. There are more than 350,000 square feet of thin-wall walls and ceilings already put in place in Century City, in addition to no mean portion of traditional lath and plaster.

In many of the applications, especially those such as the intricate curved korbels, sculptured ceilings, and other decorative architectural features, metal lath was the only answer.

Most of the lathing work in Century City is being done by members of Local 42, Los Angeles, and 172, Long Beach.

The spectacular lath and plaster

Two of the Century Plaza structures, recently lathed, represent the typical mixture of thincoat and traditional lath and plaster found in Century City. The Mayfair Market and the Century House restaurant will be luxurious combinations of plane and intricately curved surfaces when they are completed.

In Mayfair Market, metal lath was put to good use in the entrance area's decorative column, which serves both as a fruit display stand and a giant lighting fixture. There was also extensive metal lathing in the curved descending radius curtain wall which will appear to hang from the ceiling of the finished market.

The Restaurant lathing involved a little more ingenuity, which will be broadly suggested to diners by the exterior of the Century House. It will have a fully curved thin-shell concrete roof, something like a seashell. Inside, a French motif will be carried out through unusual fabrics, paper, and simulated wood carvings. Although the diners will likely never know it, encased in these simulated carvings will be some real monuments to the lathing skill.

The running staff mold which has been used around a recessed lighting well in one of the ceilings of the Century House restaurant revives an art which hasn't been put to much practice in thirty or forty years, and requires unusual plastering skill.

The lathing contractor for the Mayfair Market, as for much of Century

City, is the Carroll Duncan firm. Lathing foreman was Bill Fickentsher, Local 42, Los Angeles, Duncan Lathers, who have been working on Century City for almost two years now, moved from the Mayfair Market job to the 20-story 800 room Century Plaza Hotel recently, and expect to remain with the Century City project for a long while.

The Century House restaurant lathing work was contracted by the A. R. Amos Lathing Company, Inc., of Long Beach, whose lathers are members of Local 172, Long Beach. His lather foreman on the job was Ben "Blackie" Walling. The plastering contractor is Pacific States Plastering, Inc.

original stable used by Tom Mix were located.

Century Plaza is the focus of much current lathing activity, as well. The buildings there have all been built as shells, to begin with. Then, as the space was leased, and tenants provided their interior wall and finish requirements, the shells have been finished out. The choice has invariably been thin-coat plaster and lath, where possible, and metal lath and plaster where the design becomes intricate.

Major subcontractor for much of this work is Carroll Duncan Lathing and Plastering Co., of Alhambra, California. The firm gets the credit for converting Century City's management from substitute materials to thincoat system. The original specifications for the project called for substitutes, but the Duncan company erected a 20 foot sample of thincoat in one of the project buildings. After Century City officials inspected, knocked, kicked and tried to abuse the thincoat, they were convinced.

Dixie Democrats Face Moment Of Truth

RETURNS from two recent southern elections strongly indicate that a "moment of truth" is at hand for the Democratic Party in the Deep South.

The biggest change in southern political patterns since the end of the Civil War is in the making. Reapportionment is already under way and implementation of the new voting rights bill, in whatever form it finally passes, will soon put thousands of new Negro voters on the books.

The dilemma for the Democratic Party and for Democratic candidates is whether to continue the Dixiecrat pattern of ultra-conservatism plus the race issue, or to recognize that the Republican Party in the South has pre-empted that position and develop an alternative in tune with the national Democratic Party.

The June 15 special election in South Carolina's 2nd Congressional District is an example of a conservative, segregationist Republican beating a conservative, segregationist Democrat. Albert Watson, who was elected last November as a Democrat while openly supporting GOP Presidential Candidate Barry Goldwater, was stripped of his party seniority in the new Congress. He resigned to run for his old seat as a Republican and beat Democrat Preston Callison two to one. With no compelling reason for liberal voters to support Callison over Watson, substantial numbers stayed home and the Democratic vote fell off significantly more from the November balloting than did the Republican vote, particularly in labor and Negro precincts where no organizations were active on Callison's behalf.

In a special legislative election on June 16 in Georgia where reapportionment played the major role, eight Negroes were elected to the House.

More than a straw in the wind, however, was the victory of a Republican in an "at-large" race in Fulton County over a Democrat implicitly described as a segregationist by the Atlanta Constitution's political editor who called him a man who "had alienated many voters by supporting former Gov. Marvin Griffin and speaking harshly about Negro problems."

There was also an upset victory in Columbus, Ga., where a Negro Democrat defeated a white Republican in a county which went strongly for Goldwater in 1964 and which is part of the district of Georgia's only GOP congressman, Howard H. Callaway.

Goldwater's win in five Southern states last fall does not represent the birth of a genuine two-party system in the South. However sincere the former Arizona senator himself may have been in voting against the 1964 Civil Rights Act on "constitutional" grounds, his action was widely interpreted by white Southerners as support for segregation and had as much to do with his Southern victories as any brand of economic conservatism he advocated.

The fact is that ever since the Dixiecrat candidacies of Strom Thurmond and Fielding Wright failed so miserably in the 1948 presidential election, GOP candidates and party officials in the South generally have tried to provide a more conservative alternative to Southern Democrats—not a more liberal one. Southern voters generally have had a limited opportunity to express support or opposition to national Democratic Party policies and programs.

Where there has been a real choice between a liberal and a conservative to stir activity on the part of the liberal coalition, the liberal has won in recent years. Kefauver, Bass and Grider in Tennessee, and Weltner and Mackay in Georgia are examples.

The 1966 race currently causing speculation is in Alabama where Sen. John Sparkman (D) could face opposition from Democratic Gov. George Wallace in the primary or from Republican Congressman James D. Martin in the general election.

Sparkman's problem is whether to seek out labor, liberal and Negro votes, or to run as more conservative than Wallace or Martin. If this is the case, the liberal coalition could stay home and Sparkman could be defeated by default. Such a defection proved sufficient to elect GOP Sen. John Tower in Texas in 1960, and contributed to Watson's recent South Carolina win.

With the rapidly changing patterns in the South, the prospect for Democrats is shaping up as: be a liberal or be a loser.

Working Deaths in 1964

The 1964 fatality rate for workmen in Canada appears to have risen over 1963. The Department of Labour reports that there were 2.71 deaths for every 10,000 men working, based on reports received by the Department up to March, 1965.

The rate for all of 1963 was 2.67 deaths for every 10,000 men working.

As expected, the death rate in the construction industry and related trades was higher than in many others. For male construction workers, the death rate was 5.76 for every 10,000 people, compared with 5.35 in 1963. This construction rate is higher than those for agriculture (1.28 deaths per 10,000) manufacturing (1.69 deaths per 10,000), and the transportation, communications and other utility trades (4.85 deaths per 10,000).

However, some industries had a much higher death rate than construction. At the top of the list was mine, quarry and oil well workers.

There were 19.04 deaths for every 10,000 people working in these trades during 1964. In forestry, the death rate was 18.52 deaths per 10,000 workmen.

Most of the construction fatalities resulted from being hit by tools, machinery, cars, trucks, and other rolling equipment. A total of 25 per cent of fatalities in all industries were caused by this hazard, and most of these, the government reports, were in construction, forestry, mining or quarrying. The greatest hazard was from falling trees and limbs. Next greatest danger was landslides or caveins, and the third worst killer in this category was materials falling from stockpiles or loads. Next was death by automobiles or trucks.

Canadian Working Conditions

A report just released by the Canadian Department of Labour, shows an increase in shift work for non-construction workers. A total of 59 per cent of manufacturing employees, and 22 per cent of office workers, were on shifts during 1964, a greater percentage than both of them in 1959, when the last survey was made.

The report also showed that there were formal provisions for overtime in 94 per cent of the manufacturing and other non-office occupations, and 75 per cent for office. Most common rate of overtime pay was time and a half.

About 48 per cent of the plants operating on shift work paid a premium for night and evening shifts. Of these, 42 per cent paid a flat rate premium in cents per hour. In 6 per cent of the plants, the premium was calculated as a percentage of the day rate.

The majority of the workers who were paid on a cents-per-hour basis received 7 cents for the evening shift, and 10 to 14 cents for the night shift. Of those who were paid on a percentage of day rate basis, the majority earned less than 10 per cent of the day rate for both evening and night shifts.

THE HOMESTEAD LOCKOUT — 1892

For five months at Homestead, Pa., bitter strife took place between steel workers and steel manufacturers. This period was marked by attempts of a private army of 300 Pinkerton detectives to take possession of the mills and of the revolt of the workers behind barricades. Carnegie Steel which was dominant in the industry, faced the Amalgamated Association of Iron & Steel Workers, one of the most powerful of the early labor unions.

Several were killed in the clashes which marked the hectic period from July to November. Andrew Carnegie, the steelmaster, had uttered pious phrases extolling the right to organize, but his lieutenant, Henry Clay Frick, cracked down with the private army and later called on the state militia to help.

The steelmen smashed the union and weakened the will to resist, but in doing so they aroused public opinion and some members of Congress. Despite its failure, the struggle of the men of Homestead was called by one historian as an event "to take its place in the annals of labor history as one of the great battles for workers' rights....". Even though the steel industry was not to be successfully organized until decades later, the struggles at Homestead left their imprint on history as one of labor's landmarks.

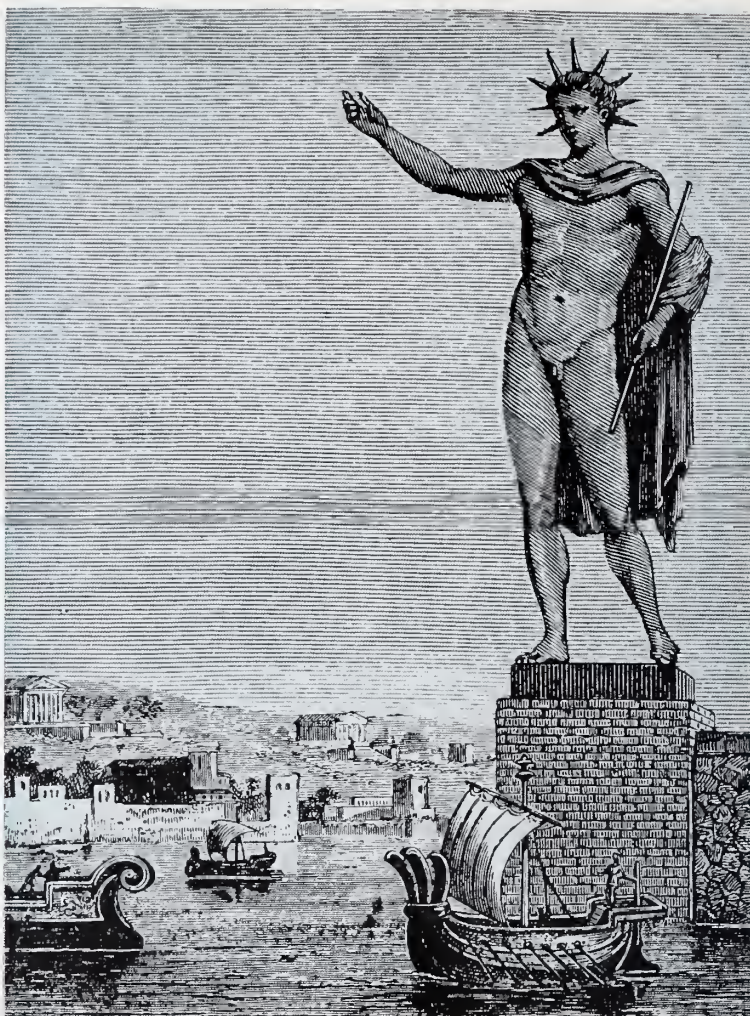

Legend peopled ancient Rhodes — the easternmost island in the Aegean Sea — with skillful workers in metal who passed their ever-developing technical proficiency down from generation to generation. Their skills culminated in the Sixth Wonder of the World.

The colossal bronze statue of Apollo (Helios, the Sun God) — about the size of our Statue of Liberty — was the work of a native sculptor, Chares, who reportedly labored for 12 years before completing it in 280 B.C. It was erected at the northern end of the island, at the entrance to the main harbor. Unfortunately, it stood for only 56 years.

Earlier, it was believed the Colossus was located astride the entrance to Rhodes' harbor, with a beacon light in its hand and with ships passing between its legs. Most archaeologists now believe it stood on the shore close to the harbor entrance — until an earthquake knocked it down in 224 B.C.

Lying unmolested for almost 900 years, its enormous fragments are mentioned by Pliny (100 A.D.) as exciting wonder to all who visited the island.

The giant pieces were not removed until 656 A.D., when Rhodes was conquered by the Saracens. The Muslims sold the remains for old metal to a Levantine dealer, who used 900 camels to carry them away. The pieces were probably reconverted into instruments of war.

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

In my report last month I advised you that copies of the new sample Working Agreement and Sample Constitution and By-laws had been sent to you for your guidance in negotiating your new agreements and in revising your local Constitution and By-laws. After these documents were in the mail we discovered a typographical error on page 8 of the sample Constitution and By-laws, in 8(c), where it reads "The LIU Constitution provides that Officers shall . . ." This should read "The LIU Convention provides that Officers should . . .". We have sent out corrected page 8 with a letter of explanation and asked that you replace the present page 8 with the corrected one.

We just received a bulletin from the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission of Washington, D. C. with reference to Section 711(a) of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 which states that "every employer, employment agency and labor organization, as the case may be, shall post and keep posted in conspicuous places upon its premises where notices to employees, applicants for employment and members are customarily posted, a notice to be prepared or approved by the Commission setting forth excerpts from, or summaries of, the pertinent provisions of this Title and information pertinent to the filing of a complaint.

"We consider that joint labor-management committees controlling apprenticeship or other training or retraining programs are agents of employers and labor organizations and therefore are also subject to the obligation to post notices under Section 711(a).

"From July 2, 1965, until July 1, 1966, this provision applies only to employers with 100 or more employees, to labor unions operating a hiring hall or with 100 or more members, to employment agencies dealing with employers covered by the Title, and to joint labor-management committees for apprenticeship or training. On July 2, 1966, the provision applies to those with 75 or more employees or members; on July 2, 1967, to those with 50 or more employees or members; and from July 2, 1968 on, to those with 25 or more employees or members."

To assist in complying with this Section, the Commission sent a suggested notice which they had prepared. We have reproduced this notice on page 5 which you may use as a guide because these notices must be posted on or before September 1, 1965.

I am sure you will recall that Labor gave a great deal of support to the enactment of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, from which the current "war on poverty" was more or less derived. We have received a communication from George Meany, President, AFL-CIO, asking our assistance in the successful implementation of this Act. He asked that every Local Union become involved in the anti-poverty program on the local level.

In the first nine months the "war on poverty" has made progress, but it needs the backing of every one of us to be a total success. In the summary of the first nine months it lists the total poor already reached directly as 1,735,000; indirectly: 2,080,000, making a total of 3,815,000. We urge that you make every effort to cooperate in making this drive a success. If you have any particular program in which your local union is involved I would appreciate it if you would give us a report thereon and set forth the part your local union is playing.

We have been very proud of the fact that through the voluntary contributions of our Local Unions to COPE (Committee on Political Education) we have been presented with the 100 percent participation award given by COPE for a number of years. Alexander E. Barkan, National Director of the Committee on Political Education advises me that our union's quota for 1965 is $2,025.00 and that as of July 31st they have received $340.00. This is of course quite short of the quota, so I am asking that you make every effort to see that your local union members are given the opportunity to contribute to COPE . . . in fact urge your local union members to contribute to COPE because it is very vital that we help in this small way, to elect to Congress those who have helped us in many ways. Listed here are some of the major highlights from a record of progress on measures supported by the AFL-CIO, which have been made possible by the 89th Congress, which has the most remarkable record of any Congress since 1933;

1. Section 14(b) repeal passed the House by a vote of 221-203.
2. Medical Care through Social Security has been enacted into law.
3. Federal Aid to education has been enacted into law.
4. A progressive new Housing program has been enacted into law (see page 6).
5. A far-sighted Appalachia rehabilitation program has been enacted into law.
6. A new voting rights bill has been enacted into law.
7. Massive new funds have been provided for an attack on poverty.
8. Situs Picketing legislation is well on the way to passage.

You can readily see from this record that contributions to COPE are important.

As I stated in my report in the August LATHER, the instructor's manual for Apprenticeship and guide books are now ready and are available through the office of the Director, Mr. Leo C. Schultz, 6401 New Hampshire Avenue, Hyattsville, (see page 9). These books are very comprehensive and should be extremely helpful to you in setting up your Apprenticeship Programs. I cannot impress upon you too much the importance of setting up apprenticeship training schools, and the importance of each and every Local Union training apprentices at least in the number set forth in the LIU Constitution. You should also make every effort to have the Apprenticeship Clause included in your collective bargaining agreement because this program is most vital to our industry. We must have qualified and competent mechanics to perform our work and we must have sufficient journeymen to man the work which comes under our jurisdiction.

I also want to call your attention again to the importance of having the General Pension Plan and General Pension Fund included in your collective Bargaining Agreements. The General Pension Fund and Plan is growing in the number of participating local unions. This will of course give the actuaries the necessary background to come up with better suggested benefits. The more we have actively participating in the Plan and Fund, the better chance we have of offering better benefits.

Sincerely and fraternally

SAL MASO,
General President

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

The enactment of the Medicare Law has received widespread publicity, and so it should. The signing of this sweeping social legislation into law July 30 was one of the most significant steps taken by the government since the whirlwind first 100 days of the New Deal. We feel that it was most appropriate that President Johnson saw fit to set the place for the signing of the bill at the Truman Library in Independence, Missouri, and invited the war horse to sit beside him while the bill was signed. To Mr. Truman must go a great measure of credit for the medicare law. It was during his stay in the White House that this kind of legislation was first formally suggested by a President.

But the publicity for the medicare bill has been so strongly focused on the medical insurance provisions that other important social security benefits have been overlooked.

Everyone now receiving social security pensions will get a 7 per cent increase in their monthly checks, with a minimum of $4.00, regardless of the size of the check. This provision of the law was made effective back to January, 1965, so that many thousands of pensioners will receive a bonus check sometime in September for back income. The regular benefit checks for October will start the 7 per cent increase. Later, benefits are scheduled to go up even more.

When all of the increases provided for in the law are in effect, the maximum individual monthly check will be up to $169, from the present figure of $127. Retired couples will get a maximum of $252, compared with $190.50 now. The new maximum family benefits will be up to $368, from $254.

In addition, the ceiling will be raised January '66 on penalty-free wages allowed. While the old law limited penalty-free outside wages (union pensions or income from investments is not counted) to $1200 a year, the new law will raise this to $1500 next year. For any outside wages over $1500 the government pension will be reduced by

$1.00 for every $2.00 earned. After the figure of $2700 outside income is reached, every dollar earned will reduce government benefits by a dollar.

The law also provides a minimum of $35 a month, beginning in September, for many persons over 72 who worked too short a time under the old social security program to earn any retirement. People in this category should check at the nearest social security office to see if they qualify.

Unmarried sons and daughters of pensioners attending school full-time will be covered now until they reach age 22. Under the old law, benefits stopped at age 18. These liberalized payments were made effective January, 1965, so that many families in this category should check with their social security office to see if they qualify for back money.

Disability benefits have been liberalized. While the old law covered only disabilities which were expected to be permanent, the new bill makes legal payments for any illness expected to last a year or longer, or result in death. Disability benefits, of course, are paid regardless of age.

Widows may now receive partial pensions at age 60, if they wish, instead of waiting for full benefits at age 62.

Our good friend, Congressman Robert E. Sweeney, Congressman-at-large from Ohio, has introduced an interesting bill in the House. The measure—H.R. 9422—would make it illegal for management to hire professional strikebreakers for labor disputes which involve interstate commerce, and this would include almost any industry of any size. It would set a maximum fine of $5,000, and two years in prison, for any person who knowingly takes the place of an employe on strike, or anyone who advertises for, recruits, arranges for employment or transports strikebreaking employes.

Members of organized labor throughout the country should make every attempt to prevail on their respective Senators and Representatives to support this bill.

The Industry Promotion Fund Bill has passed the House. The bill would make it legal for employers to contribute to promotional funds administered jointly by unions and management—including funds used for such activities as the National Bureau for the Promotion of Lath and Plaster. An amendment to the Taft-Hartley Act, this law, when finally passed by the Senate and signed into law, will kick off active promotion of lath and plaster at the national level by the National Bureau under the direction of the capable Gene Sheid, Executive Director, and Tom McGlone, Executive Secretary. The law, HR 1153, in addition to permitting joint labor-management use of promotional funds, would also allow joint funds set up for the purpose of resolving disputes that arise out of interpretations of collective bargaining agreements. The chances for Senate passage of the measure appear good for this session of Congress.

Sincerely and fraternally,

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

LABOR DAY: Symbol of a long struggle for recognition

THE first Monday in September, which was celebrated this year on the 6th of the month, has been observed as Labor Day nationally since 1894, when it was made an official United States holiday by Act of Congress. But the background and the history of Labor Day's beginnings have more importance than a weekend's drive into the mountains, or the end of a delightful summer vacation and time to get the kiddies back to school.

Labor day symbolizes the long, difficult upward struggle of American labor to gain its rights, and a recognized place as productive, valuable and important part of the social structure.

And even the apparently simple feat of getting Congress to pass that Labor Day observance law was a 12-year battle.

It was joined in 1882, when a young New York carpenter named Peter McGuire, stood before the newly-organized Central Labor Union in America's largest city and proposed the idea of a working day set aside as a holiday for the working masses.

It is easy to forget the working conditions that prevailed in those days, and the relief which just one day would afford. As late as 1909, in California, construction work meant night work, and Sunday work, doing everything from carpentry to iron work, engineering, cement work and hod carrying. The pay was $2 a day. In the New York garment sweatshops of the period, girls worked from 7 in the morning until 8 at night, with a half hour for lunch, at a wage of $6 a week "regular work." Most of them were on a piece-work basis, which could bring in as much as $11 a week during the two peak months, but normally meant $3 to $5.

The hope was that a Labor Day observance would win two goals: give the workers that day of rest, and at the same time focus public opinion on the critical needs for better treatment of the nation's working people.

McGuire's proposal for a Labor Day was received enthusiastically by delegates to the Central Labor Union meeting, and was translated into action that September 5. After a parade through the streets of New York, the workers gathered in Elm Park for a picnic. A newspaper account described the scene this way:

"Fellow workers and their families sat together, joked together and caroused together . . . Americans and English. Irish and Germans, they all hobnobbed and seemed on a friendly footing, as though the common cause has established a sense of closer brotherhood."

Gradually, Labor Day became law. In 1887, Oregon enacted the first state holiday statute. Ultimately, 23 states made Labor Day a legal holiday before Congress extended it to the entire nation in 1894.

The first Labor Day parade, depicted on the cover in a reproduction of a Currier and Ives print of the period, rallied thousands of oppressed workers from New York City and the nearby area to the center of town, and a memorable picnic. The causes of the establishment of the tradition back in 1882 are rooted in the injustice and squalor of working conditions. Today, it's easy to forget that there once was an average workweek of 75½ hours. For more, see Page 3.

New Props for Public Housing

The $7.5 billion housing legislation signed into law August 10 makes a strong bid to close the low-income housing gap

One of the strongest public housing measures ever passed, the compromise housing bill which was signed by the President in August, has placed a brand-new emphasis on getting housing units ready for low-income occupancy as fast as possible. Several new devices being tried are Federal rent subsidies for the poor, and extension of Federal loans and grants to rehabilitation of existing housing. This includes both multi-family housing projects, and single-family residences.

The private home improvement grants—a feature never before included in any Federal housing legislation—will be given to homeowners earning less than $3000 a year, for up to $1500 worth of fix-up and repair, as long as the home is located in an area designated for urban renewal by the government.

The hope of the lawmakers in adding this provision is that they can reduce the amount of family dislocation associated with low-income public housing programs of the past. Before this, virtually all urban renewal projects involved complete destruction of the old property, and construction of all-new multi-family housing.

Homeowners earning more than $3000 a year, living in urban renewal areas, are expected to seek their own loans through FHA or conventional sources.

A total of $150 million has been provided for the rent subsidy program, to be spent over the next four years. On the strength of this extra rental money available, private non-profit organizations, such as unions, churches and cooperatives, are expected to construct about 375,000 new units in the next four years. About 100,000 of these are expected to be designed specially for elderly people. No rent subsidy payments will be made to private landlords, or organizations which are operating housing projects at a profit.

To qualify for the rent subsidies, an individual must have an income below the level required for eligibility for local public housing, and be living in substandard housing or be displaced by government action. Also eligible are people over 62, and the handicapped, regardless of present living quarters, as long as their incomes are below the public-housing eligibility mark.

Government payments for these people would be all rental costs above 25 per cent of the person's income.

A total of $2.9 billion, over four years, is earmarked for urban renewal Grants, and the requirements for aid have been loosened. Before the new law was signed, communities received aid from the Federal government only if their project was in an area designated for urban renewal by the Federal government. Now, grants can be provided for communities outside of the Federally-tagged urban renewal areas, as long as work on the renewal programs is started within 8 years from the time the community plans are drafted.

About 240,000 new public housing units will be made available under the separate low-income public housing provision, and about one-fourth of these will be in the newly-eligible rehabilitation projects category. In addition, another one-sixth of the total public housing units will likely be leased.

Money was also provided for public works and community center construction projects. For small communities without sewer facilities, or for those in areas of high unemployment, the government can pay up to 90 per cent of the cost of constructing new or improved sewers. Water and sewage treatment facilities, which are covered under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, are not included in the housing bill.

Grants of up to 75 per cent of the total cost are available for community center projects in low and moderate income neighborhoods. These centers, to be located in or near housing developments, would serve as social service centers for such things as health, recreational and social activities.

Time-Tested Right To Ask Upheld by NLRB

Unionized employees have a right to inquire about the union status of electricians they saw working on a construction site, and their discharge for making the inquiry was discriminatory according to a recent NLRB decision. The NLRB disagreed with the employer's contention that the men were fired for snooping into a matter that was none of their business.

For the construction work on a housing project, the employer used unionized craftsmen. For alteration work on a completed apartment, however, he brought in nonunion employees. Two unionized electricians spotted the strangers, left their work, and demanded of the employer why he wasn't respecting his union contract. The employer answered that it was not their business and ordered the men off the construction site.

Holding the discharges unlawful, the NLRB explained that the employees were engaged in a protected activity when they sought to investigate an apparent threat to their union wages and working conditions.

STOPPING A FIRE IN ITS TRACKS

Reprinted with permission from the June, 1965 California Plasterer

Raging fires which reached temperatures as high as 2000° . . . acoustical tile ceilings reduced to ashes . . . melted and twisted aluminum window frames . . . wooden cabinets and furniture a charred mass.

Yet, because of the insistence of the Los Angeles City School District upon the superior fire-retardant qualities of metal lath and plaster for the dividing walls between classrooms, school continued in session at the Parmelee Avenue elementary school in the southern part of Los Angeles.

This despite repeated attacks by arsonists on the modern two-story school complex where—since last October—no less than five fires have been set.

The two most recent—on March 13 and 21—completely gutted the classrooms where they were started.

Adjacent classrooms suffered only smoke damage as the dividing walls of lath and plaster completely contained the roaring flames which burned on March 13 for an estimated hour and a half (according to the sheriff's arson squad) before being discovered.

"The walls of lath and plaster and the general concrete construction of the Parmelee Avenue school unquestionably confined the fires to the rooms where they were started.

"Had it not been for this retarding of flames, it is very possible that the entire school would have been destroyed."

That was the opinion of Edwin H. Stahl, principal structural engineer of the Los Angeles City Schools, visibly impressed with the manner in which these fires were restricted to their original starting areas.

The loss of the four classrooms meant—because the school was operating with a full complement of students—that double sessions had to be instituted. Bad as that is, it is better than to have lost the entire school.

Since October 16, 1964, the Parmelee Avenue school has been beset with five different fires, all started by unknown arsonists, according to the Los Angeles County Sheriff's department. In addition to the four general classrooms being totally destroyed, the physical education and administrative offices had previously been the sites of fires with extensive damage.

In the March 13 fire, practically all the combustibles in the rooms (estimated at 3,500 pounds per room) were consumed by the time the blaze was belatedly discovered by a neighbor and the firemen arrived to speedily extinguish it.

Yet, the wood blockings within the metal lath and plaster walls on steel studs, used to fasten the chalk and tack boards, had not been charred at all. They bore absolutely no evidence of fire, looked as fresh and clean as the day they had been installed behind the lath and plaster.

This is supported by a report to the Board of Education by George Earl Troxell, noted consulting engineer from the University of California who made a thorough investigation of the "safety and structural integrity" of the school following the fires.

His detailed report spelled out the construction of the back-to-back classrooms where the March 13 fire occurred. On the second floor, they had a clay brick masonry wall on the east (exterior) side, an exposed side on the balcony with a 23' x 10' opening for windows and two metal doors, the remainder of the exposure being a 3¼" steel stud partition with metal lath and plaster.

Spalling of the concrete ceiling was caused by heat and possibly by the shock of firemen's water (below), but despite the intensity of the fire, it was contained by the concrete, and by the lath and plaster wall construction, scarred but in one piece after the fire (right).

The two interior walls of each room similarly were metal lath and plaster partitions on steel studs, rated for one-hour fire retardance on one side.

The combustibles in each room before the fire started included vinyl-asbestos floor tile, 5/8" Class C slow-burning acoustical tile on the ceiling (Troxell's report states, "The acoustical ceiling tile fastened directly to the concrete ceiling probably fell soon after the fires started, as in some rooms the tile had fallen even before the fire"), wooden cabinets and furniture.

Half of the large (6' x 2' x 20') wooden cabinet was used for storage of miscellaneous papers, while the other half was normally used to store students' coats so was empty at the time (around midnight) of the fire.

Indicative of the fierceness of the fire and the duration before its discovery was the condition of the solid core wooden door dividing the two rooms. This door, 1¾" thick, was burned ¾" from each side . . . one of the clues upon which the sheriff's arson expert based his opinion of the length of time the fire had burned.

As reported by Troxell, to give a typical picture of one of the rooms after the fire had been extinguished, here is a brief description:

Acoustical ceiling tiles had fallen. In the center of the floor a 3-foot diameter area had spalled to a depth of about ¾", probably the spot where some highly inflammable petroleum product had been placed by the arsonist to start the fire.

The upper five feet of the aluminum window frames were melted out (they had a melting range of 1140° to 1205°). Steel door frames were severely distorted. A copper wire hanging from a ceiling outlet was fused over part of its length, indicating a temperature of about 1950°. This fusion was not due to a short circuit as no power was connected.

A sink was damaged, cabinets burned, chair seats and table tops likewise burned, distorted steel lighting fixtures had fallen to the floor. The concrete ceiling slab had spalled (this also probably was caused by thermal shock when water was applied by the firemen).

Following the March 21 fire, one teacher expressed great surprise that the large supply of phonograph records stored in the cabinet built on the common wall between her classroom and the one where the fire raged were not warped or melted from the heat. They played perfectly.

Wax crayons stored in a similar cabinet showed no indication of being exposed to more than normal room temperatures.

Another wall, at left, shows the results of intense heat. The door frame is twisted, and some of the plaster has eroded away, but the metal lath base held the plaster in place long enough for its cooling effect to keep the fire from breaking into adjoining rooms.

National Apprentice Training Program Launched

AFTER years of work, the National Lathing Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Program has published a comprehensive training package, incorporating an instructor's guidebook, the student guidebook, and a series of topic tests and quizzes.

In announcing the new program, Leo Schultz, director of the Joint Apprenticeship Program pointed out that "this course represents a thorough, tested approach to related instruction classes in the lathing industry. Experts in the field of education, as well as eminent authorities in the lathing trade, have contributed their experience and knowledge to making this program as easy to organize and conduct as possible, while maintaining a high standard of educational excellence."

The course training materials are available to all locals with the National Apprenticeship Clause in their agreements. For participating Joint Apprenticeship Committees, the National Program will provide an Instructor's Guide, one guidebook, and topic Tests and Quizzes for each enrolled student without charge. Each apprentice will be charged $20.00 for the required-reading reference books, which will serve the apprentice for many years. They include the authoritative Diehl Manual of Lathing and Plastering, and the LIU's Lathers' Craft Problems and Reference Book.

The course package is designed to provide the foundation for a 2 or 3 year training program, depending on how the apprenticeship program is organized at the local level. There are a total of 49 assignments, covering twelve separate areas of knowledge: Accident Prevention, First Aid, Lathing Trade Mathematics, Care and Use of Hand Tools and Equipment, Welding, Materials and Their Use, Partitions, Walls and Vertical Furring, Ceilings, Plan Reading and Estimating, Fire and Sound Proofing and Construction and Installation Specifications.

The student guidebook has been designed to support up to 144 hours of related classroom instruction each year. It has been carefully written and is fully illustrated to complement the classroom instruction sessions.

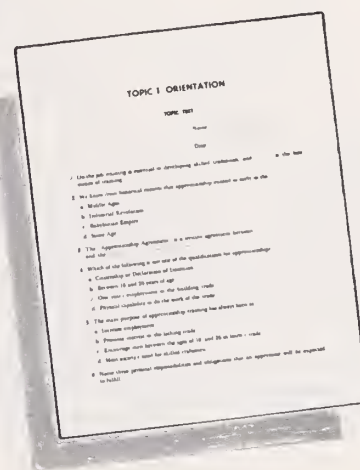

Backing up the instructor is the instructor's guide. It tells how to make the most efficient use of his teaching materials and his own skill. It is especially useful for those instructors who have not had an opportunity to attend a teacher training program, but offers much valuable information and reinforcement of classroom instruction for those who have.

Topic tests and quizzes not only provide self-help for the apprentice, but serve also as a self-help check for the instructor, to make sure he is getting his lessons across. They also give the training program national standardization, to insure that lathing skills and knowledge will be consistent across the country.

Locals participating in the apprenticeship program may obtain their training package, or information about the program, from the Director of the Joint Apprenticeship Program, Leo C. Schultz, at 6401 New Hampshire Avenue, Hyattsville, Maryland.

A Selling Job for Lath and Plaster

Meeting in Toronto's new lathing and plastering information center, a unique facility for promotion of lath and plaster in Canada, Great Lakes leaders for promotion of U.S. industry map their plans to stimulate work.

Representatives from the Lath and Plaster Bureaus of the Great Lakes Conference held their regular quarterly meeting July 5 in the dramatic new lath and plaster industry promotion center in Toronto. The regional Bureau directors and executives stressed the need for more direct, personal contact with architects, consulting engineers and specification writers to sell the benefits of lath and plaster construction.

This is the same kind of a job the Plastering Information Center is doing. Officially opened in June, it is a bold new concept in promotion for the industry in Canada. Although it includes modern, attractive showroom facilities for new products and assemblies, the real benefit of the Plastering Information Center will be its services to the user of construction materials. A comprehensive program of advisory services, information gathering, and workshop experimentation with lath and plaster is planned.

For Great Lakes Conference Bureau executives, the Toronto meeting provided an opportunity to swap successful promotion ideas, and examine common problems. Coordination with the national program was boosted by the attendance of Gene Sheid, Executive Director of the National Bureau for Lathing and Plastering, which is located in Washington, and Thomas J. McGlone, the Executive Secretary of the National Bureau.

The Plastering Information Center is sponsored by lathing and plastering locals, lathing and plastering contractors, and materials suppliers. The basic objective is to stimulate design with lath and plaster, and encourage its use. The workshop, a new idea in lath and plaster promotion, will give customers—as well as the staff of the center—a chance to try out new designs and techniques where mistakes will not be costly, instead of out on the job. If an architect has an idea for a new way to use lath and plaster, or an adaptation of an old idea, his plans will be executed at no charge by the center.

The staff will help customers write specifications, solve lath and plaster problems and develop case histories of interesting installations and problems. They intend to promote modern application of old techniques, such as sculptural forms, cornices, textures, etc.

One of the executive officers of the Plastering Information Center, N. K. Doyle, brings practical working experience and technical knowledge of lathing to his job. Mr. Doyle was an active lather, and a member of Local No. 97, Toronto, Ontario.

Activity already underway at the Plastering Information Center includes publication of its first brochure, to explain the purpose of the center. In the near future, the staff will publish a second brochure, highlighting the capabilities of lath/plaster. Subsequent publications will examine the fire-proofing qualities of lath and plaster; the bewildering variety of design texture possible only with lath and plaster (including descriptions and illustrations of about 50 new textures designed by the center); techniques for using stud wall construction, with information on fire ratings, and the use of cover cornices and moldings in contemporary design.

Brother Brubaker Honored by Local 87

Brother Harvey Brubaker (center, front row), is congratulated by the newly-elected officers of the Penn-Del-Mar Council of Lathers. They are (L-R) front row: Secretary-Treasurer F. Mulligan, Local 168, who took over the reins from Brother Brubaker, and Ernie Albright, President of the Council and member of Local 429. Standing: Pete Messina, Trustee of the Council and member of Local 53; Lloyd Scullion, Trustee and member of Local 108; Francis Horan, Vice President of the Council and member of Local 4, and Jimmy Custatis, a Council Trustee and member of Local 401.

A Testimonial Dinner was given in honor of Brother Harvey Brubaker, member of Local 87, Sunday, July 18, 1965. Brother Brubaker recently retired as Secretary-Treasurer of the Penn-Del-Mar Council of Lathers after 25 years in the post.

Brother Brubaker, who has been a member of the International since 1912, has held nearly every office in Local Union No. 87, which explains why he is referred to as "Mr. 87" by Brother E. Albright of Local No. 429, Harrisburg, President of the Penn-Del-Mar Council.

Among Brother Brubaker's many achievements was election and service as Business Agent of Local 87 for 31 years, and as Secretary-Treasurer for 50 years. He was elected Vice President of the Reading Building Trades for 4 years and served as the first President of the Penn-Del-Mar Council (then known as the Tri-State Council, which was chartered in 1937).

On behalf of the International Union, Brother Charles L. Brodeur, International Representative, extended congratulations to Brother Brubaker for the numerous sacrifices and services he had rendered to Local 87 and to the Penn-Del-Mar Council.

First-Aid Training For Building Trades

To reduce the severity of on-site injuries, and reduce the number of deaths, the Red Cross and Building and Construction Trades Department, AFL-CIO, offer help for local level classes.

THE toll of dead and injured from on-the-job accidents has always been higher in the construction industry than in almost any other occupation. It's the nature of the job, and there is little that can be done about the existence of most of the hazards. But there are two things which can be done to reduce the severity of any injuries and the number of deaths. One rests with the construction worker himself. He must stay alert to the hazards, and avoid dangerous situations. He should also take advantage of all the safety equipment which is available for his use.

The second chance for reducing the effect of the hazards comes after an injury has taken place. Many times, the lack of nearby medical facilities or people with medical knowledge has made the effect of an injury more serious than it would otherwise have been. In extreme cases, the lack of emergency assistance has turned serious injury into death.

Something now is being done about this lack of help for the construction workers. The American Red Cross and the Building and Construction Trades Department, AFL-CIO, have just announced a program of first-aid training, which, it is hoped, will ultimately reach into every construction trade local union, and provide a trained cadre of first aid workers.

The scope of the program is as broad as 9,000 local construction unions, and as wide as the 3.5 million men who make up their membership.

Training classes may be set up in two ways. They can be incorporated as part of the regular apprentice training programs, or they may be set up as special events in the union headquarters or at the job site. Instructors for five two-hour classes will be provided at no charge by the Red Cross. Any local or Joint Apprenticeship Committee can request the assistance. Here's how. First, check out your local standards for related subject apprentice training. They should include Red Cross first aid training if they don't now. Once this is accomplished, locals or joint apprenticeship councils should contact the local Red Cross chapter and tell them that they want to get started. There is a Red Cross Chapter in just about every community.

An alternate method is to contact the local labor liaison man at the Red Cross, and let him know of the interest in first-aid training.

Training is available under a long-standing agreement among contracting companies, unions, and the U.S. Labor Department's Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training.

Before the program was launched, it was tested for several years by the concerned organizations, in various test sites throughout the country. The objective was to find out what kind of a training program was best suited to the construction industry's training program, and to its people, and how it should be conducted.

In a letter sent to all building and construction Trades union headquarters, BCD head C. J. Haggerty emphasized the number of lives that might be saved through prompt first aid attention which the program will make possible. "Many disabling injuries would be of much shorter duration if properly handled at the time of the accident. This agreement enables the Building and Construction Trades Unions to train its members in these techniques and to create within our industry probably one of the largest corps of first aid men available throughout the country for any emergency any time."

Commenting on the program, LIU General President Sal Maso and General Secretary-Treasurer J. Earl Ferguson urged full cooperation of the locals. "We earnestly hope," he said, "that every one of the local secretaries will make it his personal business to get this training program going. The job of setting up first aid classes in the apprenticeship programs is of primary importance, but will be relatively easy to accomplish because the courses are already organized, and attendance of the apprentices can easily be arranged. It is the job of getting the journeymen into the Red Cross classes at job-site union hall which will demand a top selling job at the local level. We need the experience and maturity of the journeyman lather in this program.

There is a bonus benefit in first-aid training. In the construction industry, it has been found that on-the-job accidents diminish sharply when workers have been trained in first aid. The courses help to emphasize accident prevention, and make workers more aware of hazards.

You Set the Stage for 'Right-to-Work' Repeal

YOU set the stage for repeal of union-busting "right-to-work" laws.

You wrote the script and you helped supply the cast.

You did it last November, when you and other union members and your friends went to the polls in record numbers and elected President Johnson and an overwhelmingly liberal Congress.

The drama could have ended differently, lamely. Indeed, it never would have occurred if you hadn't turned out last November. By the arithmetic of politics in the Congress, repeal of "right to work" never would have escaped from committee.

But you did go to the polls, and you did elect a liberal Congress, and the men and women you helped elect stood by you in the most crucial votes in years from the standpoint of working people and their unions.

There were three roll call votes in the House of Representatives dealing with repeal of Taft-Hartley Section 14(b), which permits state "right to work" laws.

The first was a complex procedural matter, which carried 248-171.

The second was on a Republican motion to send the proposal back to committee, thus killing hopes for repeal. It was defeated, 223-200.

The final vote—to repeal 14(b)—carried 221-203.

In each case—and where it counted so much in the second and third votes which carried narrowly—the statistic that stands out is the one showing the support for working people and unions given by the 51 new liberals you helped elect last year. With only a couple of exceptions, they were solid for repeal.

And without the newcomers, repeal wouldn't have had a ghost of a chance.

One after another, as the roll was called, they answered as you would have answered. They voted to free trade unions and their members from the so-called "right to work" laws that have harassed the labor movement for nearly 20 years.

Repeal will wipe off the books the open shop laws that now prevail in 19 states and will remove the constant threat of "right to work" movements in other states.

And we repeat: It couldn't have happened without your help.

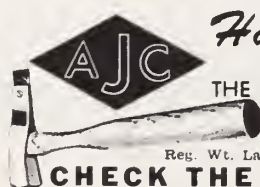

Repeal of 14(b) is clear evidence of how your votes, and your dollars for COPE, are translated into progressive legislation. But repeal of "right to work" is only one of many such instances. Your votes and your dollars last year have helped launch an unparalleled flow of programs that will help working people and the nation.

Education, medicare, expanded social security benefits, the anti-poverty Appalachia program, voting rights, housing, pollution control, manpower training improvements, public works—all these have been passed or are expected to pass soon.

Some of them are new programs, but many are ones that have been stalled for years because there was lack of a clear majority for them in the Congress.

That clear liberal majority is present now, and you helped put it there.

Incidentally, if you want to keep it there, you'll make sure to give a dollar to COPE this year to help build a backlog for next year's crucial congressional elections. Our liberal friends will need all the help they can get. And certainly, their support for RTW repeal and other liberal programs has earned it.

"I'll do anything for a little food," said the bum, "but why do you want me to meet your wife?"

The Job Still To Be Done

Claude Jodoin, President of the Canadian Labour Congress outlines Canada's unfinished labour business

In a major Labor Day Address, Canadian Labour Congress President Jodoin pointed out that despite the expanding economy, or perhaps because of it, society faces a demanding challenge in keeping employment up. "We, with all Canadians, welcome the reduction in the rate of unemployment," Jodoin said, "but, at the same time, there is a need to recognize that the situation is still far from satisfactory. Unusually high rates of unemployment continue among young people and among those who lack specialized training. There are also too many workers in the 'hard core' who have been without work for a considerable period."

The unemployment rate must be reduced to three per cent, Jodoin said. A million and a half new jobs must be created by 1970. And this must be done at a time when automation is reducing the manpower requirements.

"So far," Jodoin said, "our thinking in terms of social requirements has lagged far behind mechanical and scientific developments. There is far too great a tendency to ponder on the improvements we have achieved in social welfare and to regard our present position as a comfortable plateau."

Despite relative affluence, Jodoin noted, there are many troublesome areas other than unemployment in Canada. The anti-poverty program, for example, is "a patch-work combination and suffers from very serious shortages."

"There has been hesitation and considerable outright opposition to adoption of a health plan which would provide facilities for all Canadians on an equal basis."

In the field of housing, "we are failing, to meet the country's needs," Jodoin said. "It is quite true that there has been a great deal of construction. Since 1946 more than 2,000,000 new homes have been built in Canada; but barely 20,000 of these come under the category of low-rental public housing designed to meet the needs of those with restricted incomes, including our older people."

Jodoin mentioned the need for "far more generous and dramatic approach to education. Our educational requirements for the future are obviously going to far exceed the present capacity. There must be a readiness on the part of both governments and taxpayers to give high priority to educational needs and these must be geared to manpower requirements.

"The necessity for an extended and coordinated manpower policy for Canada "was also pointed out." It is one of the greatest essentials in meeting our changing economic conditions. Regardless of the optimistic statements of some government spokesmen, we are still far short of such a program."

"These are only some of the items in a long list of social requirements which still confront us in Canada. Beyond this is our obligation to other countries."

Jodoin told of his concern with the ominous proportions that world events seem to be taking in recent months. "The Canadian Labour Congress has always regarded international affairs as a matter which should concern every citizen. Our failure to narrow the gap between the highly industrialized and developing nations has undoubtedly been a factor in continuing world conflict. It has been the position of our organization that Canada should extend its efforts in this regard by appropriating a minimum of one per cent of our gross national product to an assistance program. The matters which concern us within our own borders will have little or no significance if we fail to maintain world peace."

Organizing Drive

Members of a Lathers Local in Toronto, Ontario, recently initiated efforts to obtain a collective bargaining agreement for the residential and apartment construction field. Proof of the effectiveness of the program is in the pictures at the right.

- Super thin blade for cutting ease and speed — specially tempered for durability and dependability.
- Proper "pitch angle" of head provides knuckle room clearance and insures direct blows for overhead work.
- Handle securely wedged to blade for "stay-tight" assurance.
- 12 row sharp milled oval face provides an accurate blow from any angle without slipping.
- Beautiful high polish finish. Temper line can actually be seen!
- Best grade hickory handle with large grip area for perfect balance—less tiring.

THE RAILROAD UPRISINGS OF 1877

The last two weeks of July 1877 were bloody ones marked by railroad uprisings which extended from Baltimore to St. Louis. This year, 1877, was the trough of a depression and a time of severe wage cuts on the railroads. With low pay to the workers despite high dividends to the stockholders, the working people had reached the end of their economic rope.

Resistance to pay cuts took the form of strikes to such an extent that traffic was severely tied up and even state militia units could not cope with the strikers. For the first time, Federal troops had to be called out to quell disorders. The strikers aroused great public sympathy on the part of farmers and other working people and even state troops.

The strikes were finally brought under control after considerable riot and bloodshed, but the two weeks left their imprint. Historians say a "new spirit of solidarity" on the part of the working people was born. Some of the railroad unions which had been primarily fraternal benefit groups assumed trade union functions including collective bargaining. The casualties were many, but the lasting impact might well be called a landmark of labor.

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

On several occasions we have advised you of certain information and material which we must have in order to properly file for a decision with the National Joint Board and in order to properly present the case to the National Joint Board when it comes before them for their consideration and decision.

We find in some instances the information received in this office is still either inaccurate or incomplete. We must not permit this fallacy to continue. Information sent to the National Joint Board must be accurate because if it is not, the result could very easily be an adverse decision. Such information must also be complete because if it is not, the National Joint Board may postpone making a decision until they receive the full details. Time is of the essence when a jurisdictional dispute exists since it can mean the difference between our members performing, or not performing, the work properly belonging to them. It is imperative that you submit all possible information concerning any dispute in which your members are involved to Headquarters immediately, such as pictures, blueprints, statement of assignment and lists of other jobs where your members have been employed on the same type of work.

A complete description of the work involved in the dispute, the exact methods used in its erection, materials used, etc., should be sent to us, since this information is very often a prevailing factor for decisions made by the Joint Board. You should submit a report on any and all meetings held, for the purpose of trying to settle the dispute on the Local level, and names of all others in attendance. Again, we urge you to cooperate with us in this respect and forward to us immediately any and all types of evidence on jurisdictional disputes.

Many people will remember September, 1965 as the month in which Hurricane "Betsy" took her toll in life and property in several sections of the United States. Louisiana, particularly the New Orleans area, suffered tremendous damage. Our heartfelt concern goes out to those who suffered loss in this recent disaster.

I just returned from visiting with a number of our local unions, their officers and members, throughout the State of Pennsylvania. Whenever I have the opportunity and pleasure of joining our local unions and especially when I have the honor of addressing their membership at meetings, I try to enlighten them with respect to the affairs of the International Union, its progress and problems. It is always gratifying to learn that these efforts are not in vain. It has always been my belief and theory that well informed people are more cooperative. I am reproducing here a letter which I believe clearly shows that, by being fully informed, our members are gaining confidence in both themselves and in the International Union.

September 16, 1965

MR. SAL MASO, General President
Wood, Wire & Metal Lathers International Union
Lathers Building
6530 New Hampshire Ave.
Takoma Park, Md.

DEAR SAL:

On behalf of the officers and members of Local No. 53, I wish to extend to you our sincerest thanks and appreciation for your recent visit with us. I sincerely hope that your stay with us was as satisfying to you as it was to us. There aren't many Local Unions that can boast the presence of their General President.

Your presentation at the meeting was well received and I am sure the members present, left with a much clearer picture of the situation and little, if any, doubt as to the stand we are taking.

I have spoken to some of the members since your visit and they were very much impressed with the way you put forth the state of the International Union. . . It isn't every day that a local union gets a first-hand report from their General President. Some of the members felt that if you fight (and you left little doubt of that) with the same confidence, drive and straight-forwardness with which you deliver a speech, then we are bound to move forward in our battle to regain our rightful work jurisdiction.

I personally regret I didn't have more time to speak with you, but as you could see, I was kept busy with various duties. I particularly wanted to escort you through our apprenticeship school and show you how well we are progressing.

Well, Sal, thanks again for visiting with us and I feel sure I speak for the membership when I say don't make it too long between visits.

With kindest personal regards, I remain,

*Sincerely and Fraternally,
/s/ JOHN J. MAGUIRE, JR.,
Secretary-Treasurer*

In reviewing the agreements submitted for approval we find that a number of them do not include our Trade Jurisdiction in its entirety as it is set forth in the LIU Constitution, Section 3. You must have our Trade Jurisdiction spelled out in every agreement for the protection of your members and your employer. Many agreements do not contain the provision for the National Bureau and Promotional Fund. The success of our National Bureau depends entirely upon your having this provision in your agreements. With the new products which are constantly being placed on the market, we must provide for their promotion and the only means of doing this is through a united effort. The National Bureau is making tremendous progress, but only through the continued efforts of everyone concerned will it continue to do so. Here again this provision is beneficial to both you and your employer, because it promotes our industry and in so doing it makes more employment available.

Further, in reviewing your agreements for approval, I find that, while your local union is a participant in the General Pension Plan and General Pension Fund, your agreement does not contain the proper Clause providing for the payments to be made to this Fund by your employer. The sample agreement which was recently sent to you contains this clause as it should be written in your agreements.

I had the pleasure of attending the meeting of the Southern Lathers Delegation last month. This meeting was well attended and very constructive. Pictures of the Delegates in attendance at the meeting and the newly elected officers appear on page 9. While in Atlanta, Georgia, I had the opportunity to observe and to learn many interesting facts concerning the apprenticeship program of Local 234, which is under the directorship of Brother H. M. (Jack) Bowen. Brother Bowen has done and is doing a splendid job with the apprenticeship program in that area. He has devoted much time and effort in making it an effective program.

Apprentice training is the lifeblood of our International Union, and we should strive to see that effective apprentice training programs and schools are set up in every area and that apprentices are trained in sufficient number to supply the needed manpower to meet the demands of our industry. In my report in the August, 1965, LATHER, I gave you some figures on potential future employment in the field of Lathing. It is a well-known fact that for quite some time we have needed to build up our membership. When you keep your membership up to par, you have sufficient qualified lathers to perform the work in your area. Also the income of your local union is sufficient for you to have sufficient Business Agents in the field to see that the work properly belonging to your members is assigned to and performed by them.

The Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association will hold their Convention in October, 1965, and I am looking forward with great anticipation to attending it . . . I shall give a report on this meeting in my next report.

In view of many inquiries we have received with reference to the 1956 Agreement between the Sheet Metal Workers International Association and our International Union, I am quoting the entire contents of this Agreement here for your information:

AGREEMENT

"This agreement by and between the Sheet Metal Workers' International Association and the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union has been entered into April 26, 1956 by the undersigned to prevent jurisdictional disputes and to better serve our members, the public, and the construction industry and we urge our members and employers to sincerely carry out the provisions contained herein.

On suspended ceilings such as the Grid System where light iron furring can be erected independent of the metal tile or pan, the Lathers shall erect all of the light iron furring and the Sheet Metal Workers shall install the metal tile and/or pan and as well as the separator or spacer, etc. to complete installation.

On suspended ceilings such as San acoustic tile or pan where the furring bar such as the T bar is to be erected simultaneously with the metal tile and/or pan, the Lathers shall install the hangers and the 1 1/2" or similar type of initial bar and the Sheet Metal Workers shall install all other members, such as the T bar, metal tile and/or pan, etc. to complete installation."

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

As you will recall from previous discussions on this page, enactment of H. R. 1153, Industry Promotion Bill, would make it legal for joint administration of promotion funds. However, provisions in your agreement providing for employer contribution to a promotion fund must be by mutual agreement. There is an age-old slogan, "It pays to advertise," which is still in vogue today. So monies contributed to a promotion fund would be expended to foster, promote and advertise in a diversified manner the value of lath and plaster in building construction.

Because of court rulings on promotion funds, our National Bureau has just been coasting. However, since the House approved H. R. 1153, our National Bureau has been moving forward in expanding its activities in hopeful anticipation that the Senate will act favorably on this Bill.

Mr. Thomas McGlone, a lathing and plastering contractor from Rahway, New Jersey, was recently installed as the President of the National Bureau. He succeeds George H. Brueggeman after serving as an assistant to him. Mr. Gene Sheid, as you know, is now the Executive Director of the National Bureau. Recently Mr. Sheid presented his proposed program to the Board of Governors in Houston which, I might add, was enthusiastically approved. The program included the dissemination of information to Local Bureaus on pending Government contracts, a system of contacting architects, a system of merchandising and advertising programs to better promote lath and plaster, and also an information clearing house for assisting Local Bureaus.

There has been a definite indication that interest has been generating since reactivation of our National Bureau. There were formerly only 19 local bureaus supporting the National Bureau. Efforts on the part of Mr. Sheid have now increased this number to 26 and the prospects for the future are very encouraging. We cannot stress too strongly the importance of promotion. Every member in every Local Union should insist that their Local Unions attempt to prevail upon their contractors to participate in promotion by organizing Local Bureaus who in turn should support our National Bureau. There should be joint committees by the contractors and Local Unions in every town and hamlet where our Local Unions are chartered. These joint committees should not only be for the purpose of negotiating wages and working conditions which, of course, are important. Equally important is the continuity of employment which can be insured by successful promotion of lath and plaster. Wages, as I said, are important but there will be no wages if there is no work on which to be employed.

General President Maso has continually advocated and insisted and has set forth in a sample working agreement directed to all Local Unions provisions for promotion, apprentice training and our work jurisdiction. Therefore, as stated above, it behooves every local union to work toward the end of established committees for the present and future welfare of contractor and journeyman.

In conclusion, we hope that action is taken soon on the legislation which will make a fully active program possible. At the present time, H. R. 1153, Industry Promotion Bill, has not been considered by the Senate and no hearings have been scheduled. Unless the Senate buckles down to work on it soon, time may run out in this Session. May I suggest that a letter or telegram from every lather in the country to his own Senator urging support of H. R. 1153 would certainly go a long way toward getting some action.

Sincerely and Fraternally,

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

Congress Eases Bonding Law

BY mid September, the Senate had given its stamp of approval to the House-passed bill which cleared up confusing language in the Landrum-Griffin Law. The confusing language, which required labor union leaders to be bonded 'for the faithful discharge of their duties' had the effect of making the cost of bonding them about 25 per cent more than was necessary for businessmen.

With the new legislation passed in both Houses and signed by the President, this repugnant wording, and the unnecessarily high bonding charges, are a thing of the past.

The legislation which remedied the situation was introduced by Congressman Roman C. Pucinski, and passed the Senate by a unanimous voice vote. Its passage climaxed a four and a half-year struggle by organized labor and the Secretary-Treasurer's Conferences of the AFL-CIO.

Commenting on the law as it stood before the bill passed, U. S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz told Congress that under the Landrum-Griffin Law, "nobody was clear what it meant, so premium prices (on union official bonding) went up." At first, the increases were as high as 50 per cent, but the AFL-CIO virorously protested. A committee of Secretary-Treasurers, headed by AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer William F. Schnitzler, negotiated a slash in the surcharge to 25 per cent, after showing that a year's experience failed to justify the higher rate. The AFL-CIO meanwhile began the drive for legislation to change the wording of the Landrum-Griffin Law. The goal was to make it a simple bonding requirement like that required for welfare and pension plans under the Disclosure Act.

Recent statistics by the AFL-CIO and the Department of Labor for the Fiscal Year of 1963-64 revealed that bank officials and employes far exceeded in numbers for the year of 1963, conviction for embezzlement than did labor officials for the above quoted period of 1963-64.

The new law, therefore, restores a sensible premium charge for the bonding of union officials. It specifically provides that unions may now obtain bonds from Surety Companies on an approved Treasury Department list provided the Secretary of Labor gives his consent.

As the leaves fall, the grass begins to turn brown, and the morning air puts on a white cloak of frost, we know summer's at an end. This month's cover, with a view into the country which too few of us see today, finds the corn harvested and shucked, the stalks bundled in neat Halloween stacks, ready for the artist's pencil.

The High Cost Non of Union Housing

IT seems someone always has been talking about the impact construction labor unions have on efficiency in the home building industry. The boisterous anti-labor advocate continually assumed the effect of unions has been unfavorable.

Finally a door has been opened that sheds objective light on this complex issue.

Allan B. Mandelstamm, associate professor of economics at Michigan State University, recently had the findings of his case study published in the July, 1965 issue of Industrial and Labor Relations Review. The results are sure to come as a shocking blow to many persons charging labor unions are inefficient.

Two cities in Michigan were chosen by Professor Mandelstamm for his

Each general contractor figured total labor costs by multiplying man-hours required times wage rates, including fringe benefits.

When all data was gathered and analyzed, it was found the cost of building the home was virtually the same in the two cities. However, even more revealing, labor costs also were nearly equal, despite the fact union workers receive considerably higher wages than non-union building tradesmen.

The casual observer would have been sure higher union wages would have automatically meant higher labor costs. Just the opposite was shown.

The study revealed that union

The plastering job in unionized Ann Arbor ran $564 compared to $514 in Bay City. However, union workers required 28 hours less time to complete the job.

The case study investigated other areas. Professor Mandelstamm concluded, "Union opposition toward new techniques and materials . . . was virtually nonexistent in the two cities." Several minor exceptions were found. The paint spray gun was limited by the union to unbrushable areas, such as grill work. However, non-union builders were not using the gun either, because the "fumes are noxious, careful masking of contiguous areas must be done, and the gun must be cleaned after each change of paint."

A second exception was the ram set gun. The union restricted its use to after-work hours by specialists because of the number of accidents occurring from its use.

Unions placed no restrictions on prefabricated parts, providing they had been constructed in a union shop.

Often unions have been criticized for using strict working rules as a featherbedding technique. The case study summarized, "Contractors held unanimously that the unions had set no upper limit on the quantity of work which might be performed by a worker during a given period."

"No respondent expressed a belief that the union had 'passed the word along to the men to take it easy'." Contractors also said, "The Unions had not required excessive breaks, rest periods, and the like."

"Union stewards worked full time with the men on all jobs. . . . All contractors reported that they were free to discharge any journeyman or helper with whom they were dissatisfied for any legitimate reason."

building tradesmen were capable of doing the same kind and amount of work in less time than non-union workers. Simply stated union members were more efficient.

Professor Mandelstamm found the Ann Arbor labor bill amounted to $3,938 compared to $3,894, for non-union Bay City workers. This is a difference of $44 in labor costs to have the house union built.

Total labor hours required of all the building trades unions involved was 1,126 compared to 1,367 for the non-union Bay City workers. Union men required 241 less hours to do the same job.

penetrating study: Ann Arbor, heavily union organized; and Bay City, only about 40 percent unionized.

He selected approximately 100 general contractors and subcontractors in each of the two cities. They were separately shown sets of blueprints for a predetermined standard house.

Professor Mandelstamm gave each contractor additional verbal specifications. Then builders made their job estimates. Subcontractors figured the price they would charge the general contractor, who himself gave the total price he would charge the buyer. Included in the contractors estimates were wages paid, man-hours required, and material costs.

"No instances were reported of work delayed so that a journeyman of a different trade could be called to perform a minor task. . . . Electricians were allowed to cut wood in order to install outlets, and so forth."

The study concluded, "The union rules, therefore, do not seem to have affected practice to any great extent. Furthermore, contractors reported that in cases when union rules had actually eliminated overtime, this had rarely affected efficiency." Professor Mandelstamm mentioned that "construction unions have traditionally opposed piece rates and other methods of incentive pay on the grounds that such systems reduce quality of workmanship, lower morale, and create a 'sweat shop' atmosphere by setting one worker against another."

According to the study, "Most contractors thought that quality would suffer severely, if piece work rates were paid, unless a great deal of supervisory help were hired. . . . Ann Arbor contractors stated they would not pay by the piece, even if there was no union opposition." With the exception of roofers, no piece rates were reported in heavily unionized Ann Arbor.

Professor Mandelstamm advanced other theories for the shorter time required by union building tradesmen to complete the same job. He asked, "Have higher wage rates attracted superior workers to the union sector?"

"Non-union contractors in Bay City frequently admitted that non-union workers could not produce work of quality comparable to that of union journeymen because of lack of thorough training. . . . The evidence indicates that the training program affected quality of workmanship favorably, but its effects on speed appears to have been slight, though also favorable."

The Michigan economist emphasized his conclusions on the higher efficiency of union construction workers apply only to the area studied and cannot be generalized further. "Nevertheless, the results of this survey," he said, "give some cause for believing that unionization may bring an increase in efficiency and a much smaller rise in costs than had heretofore been expected."

The following comes from the newsletter sent out by Senator Stephen M. Young (D-Ohio) which puts into rather good perspective, we think, the independent, ruggedly individualistic position of some of the far-right-wingers:

ON HIS OWN FEET

A young man lived with his parents in a low-cost public housing development in Hamilton County. He attended public schools, rode the free school bus, enjoyed the free lunch program. Following graduation from high school, he entered the Army and upon discharge kept his National Service Life Insurance.

He then enrolled in an Ohio university, receiving regularly his GI check. Upon graduation, he married a Public Health nurse, bought a farm in southern Ohio with an FHA loan.

Later, going into the feed and hardware business in addition to farming, he secured help from the Small Business Administration when his business faltered. His first baby was born in the county hospital. This was built in part with Hill-Burton funds.

Then, he bought considerable additional acreage adjoining his farm, and obtained emergency feed from the government. He then put part of his land under the Eisenhower Soil Bank Program and used the payments for not growing crops to help pay his debts.

His parents, elderly by now, were living comfortably in the smaller of his two farm homes, using their Social Security and Old Age Assistance checks.

Lacking electricity at first, the Rural Electrification Administration supplied the lines, and a loan from the Farmers Home Administration helped clear the land and secure the best from it. The agent suggested building a pond, and the government stocked it with fish. The government guaranteed him a sale for his farm products.

The county public library delivered books to his farm door. He, of course, banked his money in an institution which a government agency had insured up to $10,000 for every depositor.

His son attending the Engineering School at Ohio State University receives financial assistance under the National Defense Education Act. His daughter is taking her nurses training with assistance from the Nurses Training Act.

As the community grew, he signed a petition seeking federal assistance in developing an industrial project to help the economy of his area.

About that time he purchased business and real estate at the county seat aided by an FHA loan.

He was elected to office in the local Chamber of Commerce. It was rumored he joined a cell of the John Birch Society in the county seat. He wrote his Senators and Congressmen protesting excessive government spending and high taxes, and enclosed John Birch pamphlets, some containing outlandishly false statements.

He wrote, "I believe in rugged individualism. People should stand on their own two feet, not expect government aid. I stand on my own two feet. I oppose all those socialistic trends you have been voting for and demand return to the free enterprise system of our forefathers. I and my neighbors intend to vote against you next year."

"Seest thou a man diligent in his business? He shall stand before kings."

IMPORTANT NOTICE

TO: ALL LOCAL UNIONS, WOOD, WIRE AND METAL LATHERS INTERNA-TIONAL UNION

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

The following wire has just been received from George Meany, President, American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations.

"The Senate battle for repeal of Section 14(b) has now begun. Senator Dirksen is filibustering to block any vote. I urge you to ask each of your local unions to adopt at its next meeting a resolution backing 14(b) repeal and calling upon their Senators to insist on a vote this year. Such resolutions should be wired to the Senators promptly. We must make nationwide, grassroots support for repeal this year evident to every Senator."

We urge you to give your attention and cooperation to this matter because it is imperative that every local union comply with this request immediately.

Sincerely and Fraternally,
Sal Maso, General President
J. Earl Ferguson, General Secy.-Treas.

It's Time for a Change In Jobless Insurance

A major overhaul and modernizing of the 30-year-old unemployment insurance system was strongly backed by AFL-CIO Pres. George Meany when he testified before the House Ways & Means Committee this summer.

Testifying in favor of the Administration bill sponsored by Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.), the Federation president pointed out:

- Less than half the unemployed—four out of 10—are drawing insurance payments. State disqualification rules, state regulations on eligibility and the exhaustion of payments under the “limited duration provisions” of state laws are primarily responsible.

- Among jobless workers who are covered, unemployment compensation supplies a “maximum” payment averaging 42 percent of the worker’s usual salary. Far below the 65 percent existing in 1939 when the system went into effect.

“It is not only a failure for these people,” Meany said. “It is also the landlord, the grocer, the merchant who are losing out. Because of its shortcomings, jobless pay replaces less than $1 out of every $5 lost through unemployment”—the current seasonally adjusted average being 3.5 million jobless in this “good year.”

“The economic functions of unemployment benefits as a purchasing power stabilizer have become rusty with neglect,” he told the committee.

The Administration bill, on which Labor Sec. W. Willard Wirtz was the lead-off witness, would strengthen the system by raising the taxable wage base for employers to $5,600 at once and to $6,600 in 1971. Hearings on the measure were completed at the end of August.

It would extend coverage to about 5 million workers now left unprotected and lift state benefit payments to 50 percent of lost wages, subject to a gradually rising ceiling of two-thirds of each state’s average wage. It would also create a new federal extended-benefit program for workers who have exhausted state benefits, up to an additional 26 weeks. This would be financed in part by a small increase in payroll taxes, partly from general federal revenues.

“The problems workers face trying to live in the 1960s with benefits appropriate to some bygone era have been extensively surveyed and documented,” Meany told the committee. “What do they do? They use up their savings. They borrow money. They move to cheaper housing or move in with someone else. They sell what they can. They ask for help from friends and relatives. Some of them—if they can bring themselves to do it and many cannot—will ask for help from public or private welfare or assistance agencies. In short, they are forced to do the very things that an unemployment insurance program is supposed to prevent.”

It was “hoped and expected” 30 years ago, he continued, that the federal law would “equalize the tax burden” between states and thus “remove the possibility of interstate competition of the worst kind—competition based on human hardship.” This hope died “because the law set no minimum standards for the benefit provisions—the eligibility, amount, duration and disqualifying penalties, while at the same time the law permitted different tax rates among the several states.”

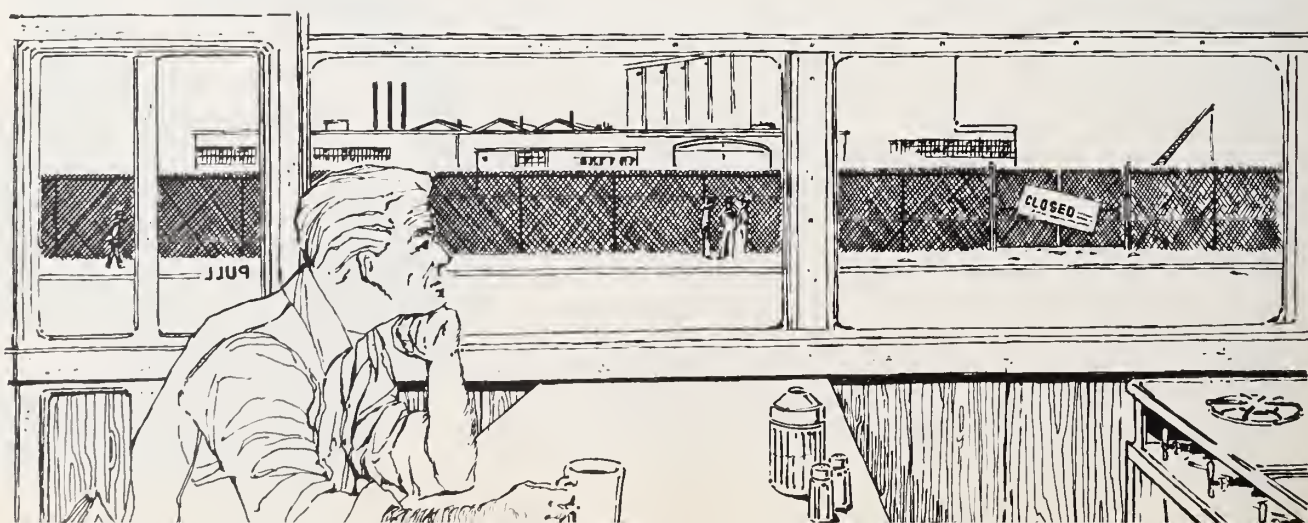

The result has been that in most states “benefits are geared to insufficient financing arrangements,” with the tax rate set for those “whose first concern is the tax rate rather than the needs of the unemployed.” Totally separate tax rates leave each state facing “the specter of insolvency,” and states with low rates use it as a “sales argument” to attract industry, he continued.

The provisions of the Mills bill for federal payments to meet the needs of the long-term jobless—those out of work 26 weeks or longer—is not “federalization,” the AFL-CIO president said, but “fiscal responsibility.”

Every state would “continue to have its own fund,” he observed. State administrators would “continue to be governed by their own state civil service laws” or comparable laws. Tax schedules would “continue to be a matter of state determination.”

The federal government would set minimum benefit standards, he said, but “there is nothing new about federal standards for the distribution of monies raised by a federal tax.” Under existing law—and they have existed from the beginning—“there are over 30 standards a state must meet.”

The AFL-CIO wants the maximum benefit raised, also, to “50 or 60 percent of the average wages paid in a state,” with the average payment one-half a jobless worker’s own previous wage, Meany testified. He suggested that one feature of the Mills bill be dropped—a provision allowing states to raise their maximums in a series of “steps.” State legislatures would have to “amend their laws to adjust” to the Mills bill, “and they may as well do so at once.”

In the shifting work patterns of the past 30 years, he pointed out, “millions of workers” either never were or are not now under protection by the system. “We believe it should provide for everyone who works for salary or wages, who wants to work, and who cannot find work.”

The system needs refurbishing by establishing new federal qualification standards for the states, Meany told the committee. While the question of disqualifications would be left to a special advisory committee under the Mills bill, he urged that the penalty for an act of “disqualification” should be limited to six weeks, thus making “the punishment fit the crime.”

Meany vigorously opposed an alternative bill sponsored by the Interstate Conference of state employment security commissioners—also introduced by Mills and by Rep. John W. Byrnes (R-Wis.), ranking GOP member of the Ways & Means Committee.

That bill is “defective,” he told the committee because it leaves up to each state “whether it wants to do anything.” It is based on a “premise” that very long-term unemployment “is attributable only to recession periods, which he said was erroneous. “The most outstanding feature of long-term unemployment is its persistence when the over-all rate of unemployment is dropping.

The federation president also objected to the formula in the Interstate Conference bill that would “trigger” a “few more weeks of benefits” only if unemployment rates in each state reach a specified level. “We are unequivocally opposed to the triggered approach because we believe unemployment benefits should provide help to those who need it whether or not an individual’s unemployment happens to coincide with an increase in the total number of unemployment,” he said.

A sick person who needs to go to a hospital should not be barred because the community has not been hit by an epidemic—but that “analogy is parallel to the Interstate Conference bill” on jobless benefits, he observed.

“This is the time—while we are not under the gun of an emergency unemployment problem—to shore up the system,” he urged the committee.

WATERGATE EAST

MEMBERS OF LOCAL NINE, WASHINGTON, ARE WORKING ON AN UNUSUAL LUXURY COOPERATIVE APARTMENT WHICH IS MAKING A STRONG BID TO RETURN THE CURVED LINE TO APARTMENT ARCHITECTURE, AND SHOWS THE VERSATILITY OF LATH AND PLASTER

In a section of Washington, D. C. called "Foggy Bottom" because of its proximity to the Potomac River and the once-shady character of the neighborhood, a spectacular new super-luxury cooperative apartment is rising. It is a refreshing break from the slab-sided monotony of some of the modern apartment and office buildings. The structure has been inspired with tasteful architectural honesty by the curves of the Potomac, and laced with a strong measure of Italian verve by Architect Luigi Moretti. It has become the current lath and plaster showcase of the Nation's Capital.

The apartment building—Watergate East—is the first of five large buildings in a $66 million Watergate complex. It is going up on a ten-acre tract that used to be the home for old gas storage tanks. Close at hand will be the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. All around the Watergate project some of Washington's more attractive structures are either building or planned. The area is experiencing a renaissance which promises to make it one of the most desirable residential and cultural areas in Washington.

Watergate East, and the two other 13-story apartments to be built, will be first among equals. The apartments will sell for from $20,000, for a one-room efficiency, to over $200,000 for expansive penthouse spreads with their own gardens and swimming pools. The entire roof will be landscaped, and numerous planters elsewhere will help retain an unusual measure of natural beauty on a downtown site.

About 50 members of Local 9, LIU, have assumed the responsibility for a variety of unusual structural jobs in Watergate East, which is currently close to completion. The decorative planters, curving exterior railings, parapets, large conical fan housings and doubly-curved stacks on the penthouse roof—many of which were to be precast—are being built with lath and plaster or concrete.

One reason for the extensive use of lath and plaster, of course, is the basic design. There's hardly a straight line in Watergate East, except for floors and ceilings.

The interior partitions between rooms were originally to have been substitute materials, with special attention to sound proofing. The switch to lath and plaster was brought about by some creative salesmanship on the part of the lathing and plastering contractor, John Hampshire, and a sharp architect's pencil. Costs were found to be lower, and with lath and plaster, sound-proofing is better.

Most of the exterior lath and plaster work going in instead of precast can be traced to the unusual curves. The large fan housings on the roof, for example, were difficult for precast materials, because of their outwardly-leaning walls and circular shape. They have been constructed by lathers by erecting prefabricated steel vertical studs to carry the load, then furred and lathed.

There is also a special problem for the contractor in the interior decorating flexibility offered to the future owners of Watergate East apartments. Within the structural limitations of the building, and the budget of the owner, apartment interiors are strictly up to the tenant. Some, for example, are fortunate enough to have their own architects and interior decorators, with ideas about where partitions, ceilings, and decorative elements should go.

To accommodate their plans, ceiling heights vary greatly from apartment to apartment, especially where piping or ducting must be concealed under a dropped ceiling. Nothing is typical.

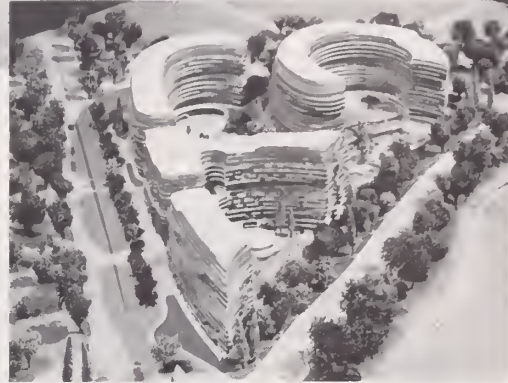

There is an almost bewildering variety of floor plans. A total of 167 are offered, ranging from the simple efficiency with one balcony to two-story duplex units which take up the entire 7th and 8th floors of the building. Other apartments run completely through the building, with balconies at both ends. Nearly all the top floors will have service entrances into kitchens, and the top floor penthouse apartments feature wood-burning fireplaces and stairways to their private roof gardens. Some of the individual apartment balconies will be 100 feet long, and those situated at the curving ends of the building have views which sweep across at least 180 degrees of Washington scenery.

Already several owners have purchased more than one apartment, and are having them combined into a single, sweeping home. Some may take one decorating cue from a model apartment being finished in one of the wide-view end apartments. Where a structural supporting column passes through the interior corner of the room, two more have been added and arched in with lath and plaster, for an attractive decorative effect. This is the kind of thing, with variation, that is being done throughout the project.

The architect's own changes, too, have been an advantage for lath and plaster, with its exceptional construction flexibility. Now it's routine for the staff architects to give the lath and plaster superintendent Morris Cooksey, or the lathing foreman, H. L. Murray, rough sketches, and let them and their men take it from there. Professor Moretti is reportedly "quite pleased" with the execution of his designs for both interiors and exteriors.

The lathers in Watergate East have not only had to prove an unusual measure of versatility and skill. They have also had to keep up with a pace which is, even for Washington construction, hot. Watergate East ground was broken in early 1964, and it is expected to be open in November.

Buckle Down for Safety

CALLING on union members to "buckle down for safety," AFL-CIO President George Meany has given solid support to a new program which makes it possible for union members to put seat belts in their cars at a cost far below usual retail price. Through arrangements made with three union seat belt makers, union members will be able to purchase, from participating locals, a fully certified seat belt for just $3.25. The retractor to keep it neatly in place when the car is not in use, costs just $1.00.

Anyone who has already purchased belts will recognize the significant savings: about $7 over the usual seat belt, and close to $3 for a retractor.

Announcing his support of the program, AFL-CIO President Meany pointed out that over half of union member accident fatalities take place off the job, and in this off-the-job category, "by far the greatest number of these occurred in motor vehicles."

In the first six months of this year, for example, there were 161 union members killed in accidents. Of these deaths, 57 were on the job. 104 were off the job—and among these, 71 resulted from auto accidents.

Forward-looking locals, concerned about the safety of their fellow workers, are beginning to join the AFL-CIO's seat belt promotion campaign. To aid them, the AFL-CIO has produced a complete seat belt promotion kit. The kit is so complete that it even includes detailed information on how each local union can improve community awareness of its concern by gleanings favorable publicity through the program. Model press releases are included in the package.

The Union Safety Seat Belt Campaign aims at putting ten million seat belts in passenger cars by January 1, 1966.

Quite obviously, no one wants to be killed, but the sad fact remains that each year, about 40,000 people, with no intention of becoming a fatality statistic, do just that. Some were plainly blind to the dangers involved in driving the modern automobile. A combination of carelessness, recklessness, and irresponsibility can be blamed for a large number of needless deaths and injuries on the highway. Undetected mechanical failures, too—especially at today's high speeds—are taking their toll of otherwise careful and vigilant drivers.

And it's an old saw, but true, that no matter how carefully you maintain your own car, and drive, there's an irresponsible driver lurking behind every curve with a package of potential injury for you. There may be times when, no matter what you do, a collision becomes inevitable. In this case, there's just one out—and it can't be manufactured on the spot. Seat Belts.

Admittedly, they're not perfect. People do get injured wearing seat belts. In a high-speed head on collision, there's little short of a miracle that can help. On the other hand, many of the rumors you may have heard about seat belts, in themselves, being hazards, are manifestly untrue.

If you were to give you and your family the ultimate protection against injury or death in collision, each of your loved ones would step into the family sedan garbed in crash-padded suits and crash helmets, and buckle up to an aircraft-type shoulder harness/lap belt system. This is obviously impractical. But the lap-type belt is the most efficient means yet devised to give the mass of the people the maximum protection possible with minimum inconvenience.

How well do they perform? The National Safety Council points out that four out of every nine people killed last year would have survived if they had been wearing seat belts. Of the killed-and-injured totals, they estimate, 66 per cent were needless.

If you don't have seat belts, isn't it worth at least $3.00 a head to your family to increase their chances of avoiding death and serious injury by 66 per cent?

How can your local get in the union seat belt business? By writing the International Seat Belt Committee, 1200 15th Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. 20006. They will in turn notify the manufacturer servicing your area, and forward an information kit to your local. All it costs is a letter.

If You Like Progress, Give a Buck to COPE

IF you like what Congress has been doing—passing progressive laws to help working people and the nation—here's a tip: It would be a smart idea to do what you can now to make sure Congress goes right on enacting needed legislation.

And what you can do now is give a buck to COPE, the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education. Your dollar, united with other dollars contributed to COPE by union members, will be used to help re-elect in 1966 the liberal congressmen who have been going to bat for you this year.

This is the only assignment for dollars contributed to COPE, to help finance liberal candidates—our friends—in their campaigns.

Is it worth a buck? Figure it out for yourself on the basis of the achievements of the liberal 89th Congress. Here is part of its record:

“RIGHT TO WORK” REPEAL—As this issue went to press, Senate action was pending on repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, the section authorizing state “right to work” laws. The House already had voted to repeal 14(b). Repeal would wipe the existing 19 state open shop laws off the books. In the House 48 of the 51 new liberals your COPE dollars helped elect in 1964 voted for free collective bargaining and an end to union-busting “right to work.”

MEDICARE—The 20-year battle to provide health care for the elderly under Social Security has been won. It received overwhelming support from the Senators and Representatives your COPE dollars aided. Some 20 million Americans over 65 will benefit from the program. Hospital bills are automatically covered, and for $3 a month the elderly also will get coverage for doctors' fees. One example of how medicare will help the elderly: A broken leg takes months to mend. In one typical case the total costs were $2,481 for hospital care, doctors' fees, X-rays and other charges. With the basic hospital coverage, plus the optional $3 a month program, you would only have to pay $243 instead of nearly $2,500.

SOCIAL SECURITY—The entire Social Security program was liberalized and improved. All benefits were boosted seven percent retroactive to Jan. 1, 1965, for those receiving the minimum monthly payment. After next January 1, family benefits will go as high as $368 a month. Widows, the disabled and dependents will receive better pension provisions.

EDUCATION—The 89th Congress took a giant step toward assuring that your children will get the best possible education. It passed the first major program of federal aid to public schools, bolstering almost every school system in the nation. The $1.3 billion program will provide textbooks, improve school libraries, set up community-wide educational centers, improve educational research and training, and strengthen state departments of education. Its basic thrust is toward helping children from poor families get the education they need to break out of the poverty cycle.

HOUSING—There's a new twist in housing, aimed at moving faster toward the goal of decent dwellings for all Americans. The program passed by Congress provides rent supplements for low-income families and individuals. These will pay the difference between the full rent of a public housing apartment and 25 percent of the income of the family occupying it. Example: If a family earns the poverty-level income of $3,000 and pays $900 a year rent, the government will grant a rent subsidy of $150.

VOTING RIGHTS—Thousands of Negroes in hard-core areas throughout the south already have responded to the historic voting rights law enacted recently by registering to vote.

The long-run effect will be emergence of an effective liberal movement in states now retarded by obsession with the race issue. The new law protects the right to register and vote by sending federal registrars into areas where patterns of discrimination exist. It suspends literacy tests as a qualification for voting in any state or political subdivision where less than 50 percent of the voting-age population was registered and voted last November.

TAXES—Excise taxes that burdened consumers for years were slashed by the 89th Congress. Estimated savings for the average American family: $57 a year.

PUBLIC WORKS—As this article was written, a $4.3 billion job-creating public works measure was in House-Senate conference. It will mean construction and repair of needed community facilities in many areas of the country.

We've described just some of the major legislation Congress has enacted. In addition, it created a Department of Housing and Urban Development to coordinate an all-out attack on the problems of big cities—transportation, education, sanitation, housing. It passed legislation providing aid to the poverty-ridden Appalachia area; improved the manpower training act; enacted drug controls. It is expected to pass water and air pollution control programs.

This Congress has been the most liberal and the most productive in decades, and your COPE dollar helped make this possible.

One thing is certain: Your foes in politics are building huge war-chests to defeat liberals in 1966 and stop the flow of progressive legislation. The extremist John Birch Society is shooting for a $12 million political kitty. Other right wing groups will go all out financially and organizationally. Conservative groups like AMPAC and BIPAC, the medical and businessmen's political action organization, are gearing up for next year. They'll have more money and more manpower than ever.

You can help our liberal friends in Congress withstand the conservative and right wing attack by giving your dollar to COPE now.

A Summer of Strike Success in Ontario

In the wake of a near-record construction boom, widespread work stoppages by a number of locals as well as international unions have brought wage increases ranging from about 7 per cent to as much as 12 per cent for Ontario construction workers.

The largest single stoppage was in Toronto, where just about all commercial and industrial construction was closed down while six unions bargained with the Toronto Construction Association. During the bargaining, sheet metal workers signed an agreement with contractors which provided an 18-cent-an-hour increase, including fringe benefits, for the four-year term of the contract. Then separate settlements between the electrical workers and the plumbers for increases averaging about 26 cents an hour, and the Steel Workers for 40 cents an hour, pulled the props out from any hope the Construction Association had of keeping wage increases down to its earlier target of 10 cents an hour.

By July, construction management had offered a 35-cent-an-hour, two-year package to the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers of America local, which was rejected by the local.

Elsewhere in Ontario, wage gains up to 40 cents an hour have been won. Ottawa plumbers scored a $1 an hour boost, plus 2% more for vacation pay. Kingston sheet metal workers won a doubling of their wages over the 4-year period of their contract.

Ontario Knuckles Down on Safety

With a strong push from Ontario's Labour Minister, Leslie Rowntree, the Province is gearing up for tougher safety standards and enforcement, following a 2½ year beefing-up of the safety promotion staff.

Backing up the concern of Mr. Rowntree are trade union leaders and the Ontario Construction Safety Association. Representatives of labour and management recently met to iron out past differences over who should be responsible, and determined to attack the problem jointly. Accidents in the entire Canadian construction industry cost about $14 million a year in lost time, personal death and injury, and construction delays.

The Ontario government has just about doubled the size of its safety staff in the last 2½ years, and has created a new advisory Labour Safety Council which will be filled equally by representatives from labour and management. The government has also established a new safety education department within the Workmen's Compensation Board. This group will direct the work of the safety associations.

Among some of the safety improvements being made under Mr. Rowntree's supervision are: standby rescue units for underground tunneling and compressed air workers, and research into the effect of working in a pressurized atmosphere. A therapeutic decompression chamber has been installed at the Toronto General Hospital, for treatment and research.

B. C. Studies New Management Contribution Plan

The British Columbia Workmen's Compensation Board is looking into the possibilities of setting employer contributions to the Board on an individual basis, with the contributions based on the firm's accident record. At the present time, companies are classified in large groups, and assessed on a group average basis. Contractors with a fine safety record must pay as large a share of the costs of accidents as firms of the same size with a bad record. There is little incentive to keep the safety record clean.

Ultimately, the Board hopes to be able to make the compensation assessment strictly on the basis of each firm's record—with the company paying the total cost of its own accidents.

Under the proposed plan—which has not yet been approved by the board of commissioners—the adjustment would be made gradually. Over a three-year period, the assessment of those firms with low accident rates would decline while those with bad records would increase.

TOP MANAGEMENT BARGAINS WITH LABOR — 1885

Bargaining between labor unions and top management is an accepted procedure today, but this has not always been the case in the tempestuous history of American labor relations. The commonplace of today was a significant step forward yesterday.

What was probably the first — certainly one of the first — significant examples of bargaining between executive management of a nationally important concern and representatives of trade unions occurred in 1885. The parties: Jay Gould, railroad tycoon and financier who controlled the Southwest System of railroad properties and the Noble and Holy Order of the Knights of Labor.

The Knights retaliated through strike action against layoffs on the Wabash Railroad and the strike spread throughout the Southwest System. The paralyzing effect compelled Gould to meet with the Knights for what was probably the first time the executive board of a national labor organization bargained with one of the nation's greatest rail systems. Concessions were won. And while ultimate and permanent success lay in the future, the fact that a labor union could effect a meeting with top management represented a great step forward and is certainly a landmark in the history of labor.

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

By meeting with our members throughout the country and through correspondence received in this office, I find in many instances members are not aware of the exact procedures to follow when penalties in the way of fines are placed against them as a result of hearings on charges brought against them by Local Unions or Members of the Local Unions.

When a fine is imposed upon you as a result of being found guilty of charges in accordance with the LIU Constitution Sections 164, 165, 166, etc., and you wish to appeal such fine, you should personally file your appeal in writing directly to me, as General President. In filing an appeal, you should set forth in detail your reasons for your appeal, and such appeal must be filed within thirty (30) days from the date of the notification from the Local Union advising you of the fine.

You should also pay, or start paying on, the fine immediately within the thirty (30) day period, in order for your appeal to be accepted. Your payment will be forwarded to Headquarters to be held in escrow, pending my decision. When a fine is in excess of One Hundred Dollars ($100), the amount of fine in excess of One Hundred Dollars ($100) must of course first be submitted to the Executive Council of the LIU for its action. Only the amount up to and including One Hundred Dollars ($100) is under my jurisdiction as General President, if it is appealed within the proper time period as described above. Of course, if no appeal is filed within the proper time period, the fine will be registered here at Headquarters as submitted, and is due and payable to the Local Union involved immediately.

These procedures are clearly set forth in the LIU Constitution. However, if you have any questions, or wish any further information with reference to this procedure, please do not hesitate to request such information either from this office or from your International Representative, because not only you must abide by the LIU Constitution and its provisions, but I too must be guided by the provisions of the LIU Constitution in processing these matters and making decisions.

In previous reports I have expounded on the vital need for all of our Local Unions to sponsor organizing drives, and the potential number of members there are to be gained, if an all-out effort is put forth to bring them into the LIU.

Toronto, Ontario, Canada recently sponsored such a drive, for which I granted a special dispensation. The fruits of their efforts are tremendous. On page 12 there appears a letter which I recently received from the officers of Local Union No. 97, Toronto, Ontario, Canada, which explains the feelings of the Local Union regarding their organizing drive, and their reaction to the success of the drive.

There are also pictures showing the signing of their agreement for the residential division. I had the honor and pleasure of attending the meeting and presenting the books to this group of new members of Local 97, residential division. This was a momentous occasion for Local 97 and they are to be congratulated on their successful organizing campaign.

Similar organizing campaigns are being sponsored in other areas throughout the United States and Canada and I am sure they will be just as successful as Local 97 has been. We urge you to keep up the good work, and be sure to let us hear from you on the progress being made with respect to these campaigns since we intend to publish information of this type so that our other local unions may be kept informed.

I just returned from attending the Convention of the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association which was held in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Many important measures were presented and discussed at these meetings, and several of the reports are reproduced in this issue of the magazine.

The Board of Governors of the National Bureau for the Promotion of Lath and Plaster met in conjunction with the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association Convention and one matter of vital importance to our industry which was discussed at this meeting was Curtain Wall.

Lath and plaster curtain wall systems are of great interest to us because of the tremendous potential for lathing work. The system uses steel studs and metal lath, covered with portland cement, on the outside. This can then be finished with a number of proprietary products, such as Marblecrete or stucco, to give architects a great choice of finishes.

Backing up the exterior is insulation, a vapor barrier, a dead air space, and then metal lath or rocklath, finished with conventional plaster.

The important thing about these curtain walls—apart from the fact that they are 100 per cent lath and plaster—is that they are competitive in price with solid masonry, and cost less than pre-cast construction, while offering the advantages of either, and some more besides.

A number of jobs across the country have already been handled with curtain wall construction. One is illustrated on page 13. The progressive John H. Hampshire lathing and plastering firm of Baltimore has completed several curtain wall projects in the east recently, and reports that there have been over 55 curtain wall jobs in the U.S. Northwest. The new San Francisco airport is probably the biggest lath-and-plaster curtain wall job in the U.S., with a total of 15,000 square yards installed.

Right now, the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association is making arrangements with the Metal Lath Association for wind load tests on lath and plaster curtain wall structures. When these are completed, probably early next year, manufacturers will begin developing the detailed specifications that are needed before architects and builders can specify lath and plaster curtain walls "off the shelf." We strongly support this work, and extend to both the CPLIA and the Metal Lath Association all possible assistance of the LIU.

Mr. Gene Sheid, the Executive Director of the National Bureau for promotion of Lath and Plaster is now established in his permanent quarters. The National Bureau is now located at 938 K Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. Telephone Number 347-3683. If you desire any information with respect to the National Bureau, Mr. Sheid will be very happy to accommodate you. You may contact him at the above address.

The Lathing Industries Joint Apprenticeship Committee also held a meeting in Minneapolis, Minnesota, at which time approval was given for the initiation of a correspondence course for apprentices. We shall keep you informed of the progress of this course and when it will be available.

As we participate in the festivities of Thanksgiving Day, let us all offer thanks for our heritage and the privileges and blessings we enjoy as a result of it.

Sincerely and Fraternally,

SAL MASO, General President

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

There has been a great deal of Monday morning quarterbacking by the not-so-liberal press lately about the so-called “right-to-work.” The subject suddenly became popular after the senate’s bitterly disappointing rejection of a change in Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act. That’s the section, you’ll remember, that legalizes state laws prohibiting the union shop.

Time magazine, in its October 22 recap of the 14(b) change defeat, editorialized that “the defeat was organized labor’s. In the affluent sixties, few Americans believe that prosperous, powerful unions need such special dispensations or protection.”

What Time really means is that it opposes “compulsory” association, and is head-over-heels in love with the idea of “voluntary” individual association. This sounds very American—very patriotic, at first glance. But let’s look at this idea of “voluntary” association. Where did it originate?

Can we turn to the example of the lawyers, who, after all, are the biggest single occupational group in Congress? Not really. There are few attorneys who can practice law anywhere without belonging to the appropriate bar. In some cases, the “bar” may be an official nod of approval from the concerned government, with an appropriate flourish of papers. In other cases, membership in the bar may be hard-won, as many aspiring and unsuccessful candidates for admission will tell you sadly. But no matter how it’s administered, and by whom, membership in the lawyer’s bar is essential to practice. Unless you’re in, you’re out.

How about the practicing physicians? They, too, have their “voluntary” association—the AMA. Although they cannot claim 100 per cent membership for their trade, we doubt that those who belong would turn down a chance to make membership mandatory for all.

Quite obviously, there is, among those who most loudly criticize the idea of union membership as a condition of employment, “compulsory” association. But we don’t deny their right to organize.

Now we can’t say that every member of every union understands or favors the union shop. It has become too evident lately that some of the fire has gone from the ranks. Conditions have become so good—mostly, remember, because of the hard work and heartaches of the labor pioneers—that some younger members of the trade don’t know why they’ve got a union.

Let’s quote again, this time from editorial writer John Chamberlain, who claims: “The vast bulk of the Right-to-Work Committee’s strength comes from small contributors, and 8000 members of the Right-to-Work Committee happen to be bona fide rank-and-file members of labor unions.”

Bona fide members, perhaps, even granting that the report is accurate. But dedicated union members? When we say that all dedicated, knowledgeable union members are extremely disappointed with the outcome of 14(b), we don’t mean members—alleged or otherwise—who have made contributions to the Right-To-Work forces.

Let’s be frank. Unless every union member wakes up to the fact that it’s only through his organization that modern comfort and security have come, he may find himself, very soon, without an organization to complain to. If this happens, he deserves whatever happens, and with the Right-To-Work forces then in control, it’s not likely to be very pleasant.

Pursuant to Section 206A of our LIU Constitution, every officer, agent, shop steward or employe of a local union who handles finances or property of the local union must be bonded. This is also a Federal law requirement.

The bonding provision in our Constitution dates back many years and I am sure most of our local unions are aware of this provision. However, as most of our local unions pay the premium which provides for one-year coverage, we recently directed a letter (with a bond application enclosed) to those local unions and councils due for renewal. May I say that the response to our letters in returning the bond applications has been most gratifying. This is an indication that most local union secretaries are aware of the importance of having an up-to-date bond coverage. As stated above, response has been good, but there are still many we have to hear from. So, we would greatly appreciate it if those local union secretaries who have not yet returned their bond application, would give the matter their immediate attention.

Sincerely and Fraternally,

J. Earl Ferguson

The traditional Thanksgiving drama: a hesitant small boy, on an important mission for grandpa, approaches the task with grave reservations. The gobbler, likewise, is something less than enthusiastic. For better or for worse, the scene is one of diminishing importance today. Mass-produced turkeys, fattened on mass-produced feed, sent to market ready for the roasting pan, have taken the edge off the grandson's dilemma.

Speaking to the Illinois State Council of Lathers, in October, LIU Fourth Vice President R. J. Hamilton proposed a plan to get across to the trade's apprentices an idea of why they have a union. Brother Hamilton draws upon long years as a union member, and experience as an instructor at the Washburn Trade School, Chicago.

What's Become of Unionism In the Building Trades?

THIS question may seem odd but it's timely. Everyone associated with construction unions have had problems. The older and more experienced you are, the more you will understand this.

Only a short time ago the only people who crossed our picket lines were scabs. Today our own building trades members cross them, not because of federal laws, but because they are afraid they might lose a day's pay. The scab works below our union wage and accepts straight time for overtime, under the poorest working conditions. Today some building tradesmen do likewise.

If you were a journeyman before World War II, you have lived through one of the most progressive times in the union movement. We've won the 5 day week, pension, health and welfare benefits, vacation plans, and many other improvements—through collective bargaining. These gains were obtained by union leaders throughout the land, but in their anxiety to better the plight of the working man they forgot to teach their young members the history and meaning of unionism.

Today many of our brothers know little or nothing of the sacrifices made in the past to gain the working conditions they enjoy today. The old timers who sacrificed so much are passing on to their reward and cannot relate their stories of long hours and the days of sweat shops. If they could, would anyone listen?

The old concept of a "fair day's work for a fair day's pay" seems to be outmoded. Narrowmindedness and selfishness have taught some to work hard when work is scarce in order to hold a job, but to lay down on the job when work is plentiful.

Whom shall we blame for this lack of unionism that haunts our membership today? Is it the International Building Trades, our own international union, our individual locals, our officials or our journeymen? I'm sure that some of the blame can be put on all of them. Unless unionism is taught to members in their early years of association with the building trades, by word and by deed, I can see more crossing of picket lines, infringement of work rights, decaying respect for union officials and a general breakdown of working conditions in the individual locals.

What can be done to bolster the feeling that it is an honor and a privilege to belong to a union?

It has taken years to lower these standards and only our future action will decide how long it will take for union members to once again hold their heads high and be proud to be a member of the building trades unions of America.

I believe that it is as essential that unionism be taught to our young people as it is to teach them the trade. The future of the building trades depends on what we do in this field.

Our international union is in a great struggle with one of the largest industrial organizations within the AFL-CIO Building Trades.

One reason it is so difficult to negotiate our problems with them is the lack of unionism taught to the members of this large organization. It is almost impossible for them to understand that it is wrong to raid the jurisdiction of another trade or to break down the working conditions held for many years by another union.

The future of not only the Lathers Union but of all in the labor movement will indeed be dark if we don't act. Unless we can instill in the hearts of our members the conviction that "the injury to one is the concern of all," then the prosperous day of the working man will soon end.

I recall a speech made by former Secretary of Labor Mitchell, who has now passed away, warning the building trades of the danger of disgruntled members within its ranks. In Chicago we have such a group of people in Local 102, which was formed eight or nine years ago and is growing stronger every day. It is organizations of this type without union principles that will cause the union movement to fail.

A fine film was presented on TV last Labor Day on the history of the union movement. Those of us who needed to see it the least watched it in its entirety. But can we expect our young apprentices and journeymen to switch off the ball game or soap opera to watch something that has happened in the past and seemingly does not concern him now. Our fathers gave their lives for a union principle or had their heads bashed in by policemen's clubs because they would not stop picketing a sweat shop.

If union members won't take time to watch such programs willingly, then we must bring the story to them another way. The history of the union movement is just as important as the history of the United States of America. It took both to make this a great country. It is too bad that the history of the union movement is not included in our history books showing the sacrifices that were made in order there might be a middle class today. If this were done, then we would have no need for a program to cure what is wrong with unionism in the building trades today.

Are we going to continue to be content to allow 75% of our membership to stay away from our union meetings and let them only be interested in how much of a raise they are going to get with each new agreement? Or are we going to educate them to see the necessity of promotional funds, apprentice training, and many other progressive movements essential to preservation of our industry, even though it may cost them a few cents per hour from their wages?

To criticize without making recommendations would be wrong. I, therefore, suggest the following action.

1. The AFL-CIO Building Trades Department in Washington should procure a movie similar to that shown on TV last Labor Day on the history of unionism. It should be shown to all prospective building trades members upon their application to join.

2. All international building trades unions should require prospective members to know some background on unionism. For example: who was Samuel Gompers, and what did he and many others like him do for the union movement?

3. Individual local unions should explain their agreements and working rules fully to their members. It should be made clear what had been gained or lost in the collective bargaining. The Locals should also include a program on unionism in their apprentice program.

4. Each and every journeyman should be an ardent supporter of union principles and recite them over and over again to our apprentices and young journeymen.

These are just a few of the things that can be done to help stem the tide of lost prestige in the union movement today.

I have had the privilege and pleasure of teaching many young building trades apprentices and journeymen over the past twenty-five years: lathers, plumbers, sprinkler fitters, cement masons, and electricians. The margin between true unionism and selfishness and ignorance becomes wider than each passing year among our young people. We cannot afford to wait any longer to include union principles with the training of our young people.

It seems that the motto of unionism has changed from "what can I do for my union" to "what can the union do for me."

Will the necessary steps be taken to preserve the hard-won battle or will the victory die for lack of leadership? Time will tell.

'66 Construction

Construction will continue its upward sweep in 1966, reaching a new high of $51.475 billion in total contract value, according to the F. W. Dodge Company, a division of McGraw-Hill, Inc., and the foremost analyst of this sector of the nation's economy.

This will be a gain of 4.2 per cent over 1965's total contracts for future construction—estimated by Dodge at $49.4 billion, with eight months' figures already in.

This bright picture emerged in the Dodge Construction Outlook for 1966, presented at the 27th annual Building Products Executives Conference in Washington, D. C., last month. Some 100 leaders from the construction industry and the building products field attended the all-day event.

The F. W. Dodge estimates include major construction projects only, not covering thousands of small jobs which are difficult to measure. They therefore differ from the Commerce Department's total which is expected to be close to $70 million. The Federal Government attempts to estimate the entire market. F. W. Dodge prefers to make more limited estimates, based on work which can be fairly accurately measured.

In its forecast for 1966, Dodge observes that it will be the third straight year of construction advances within the range of 4-5 per cent. Construction growth next year will take this direction:

- Housing demand will continue to reflect a high rate of demolition and replacement. In particular, rental building will remain strong in 1966 and for several years afterward.

- Hospital and educational facilities, to meet today's urgent needs, will be expanded sharply, aided substantially by new Federal programs.

- Highways, urban transit, sewer and water development—some of the critical unsolved problems left over from the last big burst of growth back in the Fifties—will be accelerated.

The year ahead will offer "selective rather than general opportunities in building markets," Dodge believes. "Like the past couple of years, the next year or two will require continued cultivation and development of existing construction needs, before the next era of big new markets opens up toward the end of the decade."

In its analysis of the 1966 construction market, Dodge continues its practice of grouping various types of activity according to the "motives" which govern their demand. These three basic groups: construction for personal or family needs; business construction, stimulated by the profit motive; and community construction, reflecting the needs of people acting as a community rather than as individuals or business units.

FAMILY DEMAND

The residential housing market, which normally accounts for two-fifths of the total demand for all types of construction, will continue to be influenced by two primary factors: the rate of family formation and the volume of demolition of existing structures.

"In 1966," the Dodge outlook states, "there will not be enough change in any of these basic elements to get the housing industry really moving off the plateau it has been on for the past few years.

"The supply of mortgage funds has hardly been restricting housing growth; nor has the expansion of personal income. Neither of these factors is likely to change very much in the year ahead. Demolitions of the existing housing stock are not apt to increase in view of the recent trend in urban renewal which emphasizes rehabilitation rather than removal of rundown housing.

The 1965 Housing Act may be a major stimulus to homebuilding in years to come, but it probably won't have any direct effect "until late in 1966, at best," according to the Dodge forecast.

"Although there's little prospect for a significant change in total housing demand next year, there is room for good improvement over the 1965 volume, as the depressed Western housing market returns to a more normal level in 1966 . . . a pickup next year of close to 35,000 units." This potential gain, and continuation of the steadily upward trend in the size and cost of newly-built housing, "will boost the dollar total for new housing in 1966 by 5 per cent," Dodge states.

"Next year's gains are not so much growth as they are a return to a more normal level of operations after a moderate decline. The broader expansion—which will get underway as the new housing programs take effect and as the anticipated sharp rise in marriages begins—is yet more than a year away. Once it starts, however, the trend of home building will be on the way up for a long time to come."

BUSINESS DEMAND

Decision of the nation's business managers to expand, modernize, and relocate their facilities—all made with the expectation of profit—govern this sector of construction demand and is reviewed by Dodge in the context of the general business outlook.

"The best single indicator of the state of the economy toward the close of 1965 is the achievement of reducing employment to 4½ per cent of the labor force—the lowest rate since 1957. That one statistic sums up many others: record total output and near-capacity operation; rising capital expenditures and high business confidence; growing personal incomes and strong retail sales."

Although the specter of the Great Crash raised early in 1965 is hardly a real issue, with more important differences than similarities between the two periods, "the aftermath of the steel settlement is no paper tiger. . . . It was the stockpiling of steel in anticipation of a possible strike that gave the economy its extra thrust in the early part of 1965. . . . The September settlement brought a quick cutback in steel orders, and is bound to leave a substantial gap in next year's output.

"With a slower rate of growth in total output, business capital spending . . . is likely to begin losing some of its steam. . . . There's little probability of an actual decline in plant and equipment spending next year. More likely: continued growth into early 1966 and a leveling out toward mid-year."

Industrial and commercial construction, which rose 8 per cent in 1965 after a gain of 12 per cent in 1964, is at a $10 billion level and has been growing far faster than any of the three broad categories in the Dodge analysis. "In the next year's climate of somewhat slower overall economic growth, business construction is still more likely to show a gain than a loss . . . about 3 per cent."

Key factors behind the 1966 demand for business construction:

- Manufacturing building will be most affected by the decrease in total business output. Already slowing down in late 1965, manufacturing building contracts will be a bit higher next year but are apt to follow quite a flat course.

- Office buildings advanced sharply in 1965, snapping out of the preceding year's slump. This rise will continue in 1966, due to a combination of low and stable vacancy rates in most major cities, and strong backlog of plans for office buildings which haven't yet reached the contract stage.

- Store and warehouse building shot ahead by more than 15 per cent in 1965 and will remain strong in 1966, although easing back a bit from the present unsupportable rate.

- Utilities construction will set a new record next year, gaining 7 per cent as a result of renewed expansion of electric generation and transmission facilities, natural gas pipelines, and communications.

COMMUNITY DEMAND

Community-generated construction activity, advancing steadily at close to 5 per cent during each of the past two years, will maintain nearly the same rate in 1966. Major changes, however, will occur among the following individual construction categories:

- Educational building—but—troubled by new Federal programs such as the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, the higher Education Act, and a $160 million increase in construction appropriations for the 1963 Facilities Act—is growing at a rate unlike anything seen since the grade school boom of the Fifties. Primarily due to college expansion, this segment will gain another 5 per cent in 1966.

- Highway construction will show a better-than-average gain next year. Federal Aid, through the Interstate and ABC programs as well as a number of "quick start" road projects under the Appalachian Aid bill, will stimulate a 6 per cent expansion in street and highway contract value in 1966.

- Hospital building will spurt 10 per cent next year, mainly as a result of increased appropriations for the Hill-Burton Act, the 1963 Mental Health Facilities Act and the Health Professions Act. Biggest potential for new construction lies in this year's Medicare program, which will put a tremendous strain on existing facilities. Next year's gain in hospital contract value will be the start of another big wave of health facilities construction.

INDUSTRY TEAMWORK

Joe M. Baker, Jr., Managing Director of the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association, addressing the Convention, came up with some good thoughts about pulling together

"The Lathing and Plastering Industry"—with the emphasis on INDUSTRY—is heard over and over. At least we are thinking in terms of a unified group! The question is, of course, whether or not we are a unified group! . . . or just fragments of a small, unimportant, and divided body!

There was a time when this industry could afford the luxury of being made up of completely autonomous, completely independent, and completely aloof individual organizations and individual people. There was a day when lath and plaster were as much a part of the building as its foundations.

That time has since passed us by and today no industry has greater competition than lath and plaster. We said a decade ago that "there is no substitute for genuine lath and plaster," and we were right. However, there may not be a substitute, but somebody sure has been making a lot of imitations!

This industry is not dead; nor is it dying! Although, without unity, we could become extinct within another decade. Some areas of the country are just now experiencing their first inroads of drywall, and these areas may have a long tough road ahead.

However, in other parts of the country, where drywall "took over" ten to fifteen years ago, there have been two factors which are today bringing genuine lath and plaster back into new buildings: One factor is the fact that "the pigeons are coming home to roost," and the drywall of a decade ago has caused so many headaches, so much trouble, and so many call-backs, and has given such little satisfaction that architects, builders, and owners are now going back to REAL walls.

The other factor has been a unification of the diversified groups in the area with contractors, unions, manufacturers, and suppliers working together as a team to give the buying public a better deal along with a far better product!

Someone has said that the current sound transmission problems so prevalent in "modern day" drywall construction are that material's number one detriment. If lath and plaster had been invented yesterday, architects would be beating a path to the door of the inventor to use this new, wonderful material with sound control built right in!

We can become the important factor in construction which we once were. But we must realize that this can be done only through unity. Contractors must join and participate in their local and international associations (and efforts to split the lathing and plastering businesses into separate entities must be prevented); then these associations must work in a real spirit of cooperation with our four historic Labor Unions and with the industry's manufacturers and suppliers to create a productive INDUSTRY team which will have the strength and the IDEAS to meet any challenge!

INVESTMENT in MANPOWER

A joint statement on apprenticeship by Jeremiah Burns, Chairman of the National lathing industry JAC; Leo C. Schultz, Executive Director, and William A. Duiguid, Jr. Chairman of the national plastering industry JAC.

The greatest single investment that we as a people have, is in our skilled knowledge. It is imperative that we guard this investment carefully. Our future progress and strength as a nation depends upon a conscious concern with our manpower resources, their training and ultimate skills.

In construction, the skilled craftsman transforms the ideas and drawings of the architect and engineer into the finished product. The degree of skill possessed by the individual worker determines the quality of the job that he is able to perform for the contractor and the architect. To develop his highest skills he must have training.

The National Apprenticeship Programs provides the opportunity to bring together, in a common effort, those persons who have something to contribute to the effective training of youth entering our industry. It provides for guidance and leadership to youth wishing to become skilled craftsmen in our trades. Of equal importance, it provides for the guidance and foresight necessary to keep training practices abreast of changing industry needs.

When jobs to be performed require extensive trade knowledge and skill, training must be correspondingly complicated. Training for craftsmanship involves preparation not for a simple skill but for the many types of related practices that may be given to a competent craftsman. Apprenticeship is the recognized method of learning a skilled trade. The training of a craftsman depends in a large measure on day-to-day practice under the supervision of skilled journeymen, combined

When properly supervised, the apprentice pays his way in production and becomes an increasingly valuable man as he progresses in his training and knowledge. Thus, apprenticeship is a sound investment. Well planned, properly supervised apprenticeship can do these important things:

- provide the most efficient way to train all around craftsmen to meet present and future needs
- assure an adequate supply of skilled craftsmen, in relation to the employment opportunities
- assure the community of competent craftsmen, skilled in all branches of our trades
- assure the consuming public of these quality products and services that only trained hands and minds can produce
- increase the individual workers' productivity
- give the individual worker a greater sense of security
- improve employer-employee relations
- eliminate close supervision because the craftsman is trained to use initiative, imagination and ability in planning and performing his work
- provide a source of future supervision
- provide the versatility necessary to meet changing conditions
- attract capable young men to the industry
- generally raise skill levels in the industry.

At this 48th Annual Contracting Plasterers' and Lathers' International Association Convention, apprenticeship will be one of the most important subjects considered and discussed. It is the life blood of our industry and our crafts, and they can only be as healthy and prosperous as our apprenticeship programs are active and effective.

The realization of the vital need for strong apprenticeship programs is required of each member if the Contracting Plasterers' and Lathers' International Association, as well as the industry, is to endure and to grow.

Wilbur E. Miller, Local 9 lather working for the Washington, D.C., lathing and plastering firm of Rubino and Farris, received one of the Washington Building Congress' 1965 Craftsmanship awards for an unusual private residence remodelling job.

The text of Brother Miller's citation commends him for "exceptionally fine work in framing up a difficult lathing job." The job required difficult arches, flares and intricate corners to make over the front porch of a home in northwest D.C.

During the awards ceremonies, which were attended by LIU General Secretary-Treasurer J. Earl Ferguson, Local 9 Business Agent Louis Monroe, and Region Eight Special Organizer Jack L. Diver, some timely observations on craftsmanship were offered by Brigadier General Charles M. Duke, Engineer Commissioner for the District of Columbia.

A craftsman, Duke reflected, "is one who has mastered his tools and his trade, whatever it may be; and by reason of his initiative and ingenuity, and perhaps years of experience, stands out above his fellow workers. His job to him is not just any job. He identifies, as few workers do, with the particular piece of work he is doing, or with the building he is helping to construct.

General Duke quoted a passage from a book written in 1961 by the new Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, John W. Gardner: "The society which scorns excellence in plumbing because plumbing is a humble activity and tolerates shoddiness in philosophy because it is an exalted activity will have neither good plumbing nor good philosophy. Neither its pipes nor its theories will hold water."

Continuing, General Duke said, "I don't know now what preceded or what followed the paragraph I quoted. But as I read it I felt good about what was to happen here tonight, and my part in it. I am certain that whatever the attitudes of other components of our society, our Washington building Congress has proven that we hold the artisan in high esteem—in the highest or humblest of trades—and that we believe in rewarding excellence and outstanding performance."

There is, however, a threat to the high position of real craftsmanship, General Duke said. "What we do have to worry about, I believe, is that in the big push to get the job over with we do not sacrifice the quality of individual workmanship or the pride that we all feel in doing a good job. We have to be concerned that the individual craftsman is not crushed to the point of anonymity, that he is not robbed of his incentive or the opportunity to use his craftsmanship as it was intended to be used.

"This is a price being paid on many construction jobs today because of the area's (Washington's) rapid growth. We should not—in fact, we must not—permit the sacrifice of good design or detail—especially in our public structures—simply because the clock is running and the job must be brought in at some breath-taking schedule. Whatever the pressures of the marketplace, there must always be a place for the craftsman's skill—for the lasting imprint of his work on future generations.

"Here in Washington, particularly, there is an ever present and growing challenge to outstanding craftsmen. Now looming on the horizon is a new dramatic plan for that famous mile between the Capitol and White House—the Grand Axis of Pennsylvania Avenue. With the blessing of the President and the Congress, the redevelopment of the Avenue will take place. That project alone should challenge the ingenuity and resourcefulness of this area's craftsmen for some time, even some of whom we honor here tonight."

A transformation from the staid, respectable architecture of an earlier era, through the skilled use of lath, turned this residential front porch into an expression of active, modern life. Above, the finished job. Below, the completed lathing job, ready for plastering.

14 (b) REPEAL SET AS 'UNALTERABLE' GOAL

Washington—A vote on repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act will be the "first and unalterable objective of the AFL-CIO" in the 1966 session of Congress.

The federation's Executive Council gave 14(b) repeal the highest priority at a special one-day meeting in Washington, emphasizing that "we will be fighting, not just for a favorable vote, but for the right to vote" on the issue of free collective bargaining.

The council singled out the "obstructive tactics" of Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen, Republican leader of the Senate who organized a successful filibuster at the recently concluded session of Congress to prevent a vote on repeal, and declared:

"The issue as it now stands goes beyond the merits of the repeal bill—important as they are. The overriding issue now is the right of the Senate to vote."

AFL-CIO Pres. George Meany told a press conference at the conclusion of the council's special meeting that the federation has "no quarrel" with Pres. Johnson on the 14(b) repeal issue, that the President did "everything he could" to carry out the repeal pledge in the Democratic platform.

Queried as to past and future timing on the repeal legislation, Meany said that the "very first day" of the second session would be the appropriate time to renew the fight to get a vote on the repeal bill and that there are enough votes for repeal if a vote can be reached.

As to timing during the 1965 session, Meany said the AFL-CIO was in complete accord with the President that the unfinished business of the 88th Congress had to be cleared up first before consideration of the 14(b) repealer. The unfinished business included aid for Appalachia, medicare and social security improvements among other items.

The AFL-CIO, the council said, is "keenly aware" of the need for full debate to "check hasty or ill-considered actions" or in handling novel legislation, adding—"but none of this applies to the repeal of Section 14(b)."

Successful Climax to Organizing Drive In Toronto, Ontario, Canada

Above, members of Local 97 with General President Sal Maso. Below, Brother Maso with the signatories to the agreement, members of the Metro Lathing Contractors Association.

MR. SAL MASO, General President,

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER:

We wish to take this opportunity on behalf of Local 97, to sincerely thank you for, firstly, your financial support relative to the organizing drive of Local 97, Residential Division.

By temporarily appointing Brother Agostino Simone as Deputy Organizer, you removed a financial burden which was becoming increasingly more difficult for Local 97 to maintain, enabling us to continue the organizing program which we scheduled. It cannot go without saying that without your understanding and support, we could not have arrived at the conclusion which we have now realized.

The proof of your wisdom will be witnessed in the forthcoming editions of the LATHER, where the numerous new members of Local 97 may be observed by all.

Through the cooperation and liaison established by yourself, International Organizer James Connolly and the officers of Local 97 we were able to establish a positive force capable of organizing the lathing industry in the City of Toronto; a feat which remained beyond the most competent of people for a period of many heart-breaking years.

For some it will be difficult to comprehend why the organizing of so many Lathers remained so elusive over such an extended number of years; the explanation is that Canada experienced after World War II a great influx of immigration similar to that of the United States after the First World War. Naturally these immigrants flocked to the highly industrialized areas such as the City of Toronto, and many found their way into the building trades. Regardless of the many prejudices which existed against these new Canadians, the Trade Union Movement, and especially the buildings trades, realized that to protect those union conditions which we so complacently enjoyed, we had to educate and organize the more unfortunate and exploited newcomers. We sincerely feel that you fully realized the many problems that confronted us in this effort.

Last, but not least, we again wish to thank you for disrupting your demanding itinerary to be present with us at the signing of our Residential Agreement with the Metro Lathing Contractors Association on Wednesday, September 22, 1965, and then extending your visit to attend a general meeting of the residential membership. By addressing and giving the oath of membership to these new members you have left with them a lasting impression of the advantages of unity.

In closing, we wish to extend to you our fullest appreciation for your most understanding cooperation.

THE OFFICERS OF LOCAL 97.

Reproduced here is a letter received from the Officers of LIU Local Union No. 97, Toronto, Ontario, Canada, relating the story of the recent organizing drive sponsored in Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Throughout the trying periods of this campaign this team pulled together for a common cause. They entered the organizing drive with enthusiasm and with only one thought in mind: success! Their efforts were not in vain. The applications for new members being received at Headquarters are proof of their success. There is nothing more gratifying to anyone than to be able to say, "We have accomplished what we set out to do."

Shown in the pictures are General President Sal Maso with the members of Local 97 Residential Division and the signing of the Collective Bargaining Agreement for these members with the Metro Lathing Contractors Association.

Congratulations and best wishes for continued success in their endeavors are in order for the members of LIU Local Union No. 97, Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

FORUM MEDICAL BUILDING

Lathers of Local 422, Battle Creek, Michigan, recently completed this interesting and challenging job. Working for Lathing and Plastering Contractor Henry Vlietstra, they built the outside pilasters of 1½" channel iron, ¾" furring, and galvanized Diamond Bantam metal lath. Each pilaster had three corner beads. Window pockets were constructed out of Milcor casing beads or plaster stops for the frames to fit in. All was finished off with Portland cement, with a vice glaze. For the interior of the outside walls, Rocklath was clipped on, and finished with conventional plaster. All interior partitions were also truss studs and clipped-on lath. Local 422 Business Agent is Carl Wood; Shop Steward, Allen Bessar.

Coupon-Clippers Would Drool Over Returns on COPE Dollar

In the investment world, a four or five percent return is about what the coupon-clippers expect.

What do you say to a 570 percent return on investment?

Or 320 percent?

Or 700 percent?

That's getting up there, isn't it? But it happens.

That's the kind of return you get on your COPE dollar, the buck you give to the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education.

Aw, you say, we're pulling your leg. Not so.

Take a look at the excise tax repeal passed this year by the men and women your COPE dollars helped to elect to Congress.

It will save you $57 on purchases (U.S. Treasury Department figures), and that's a 570 percent return.

Or take the general aid to education bill. It will pour $32 per school child into the nation's public school system and help provide better schooling for all our children. That's a 320 percent return on your COPE dollar.

Then there's the 700 percent return America's social security beneficiaries will get. About 20 million of them will receive an average of $70 more this year because Congress increased benefits.

It's impossible to judge the return on your investment that medicare will bring, but chances are it's the biggest of all. Here's just one example taken from an actual case record:

An elderly man slipped and suffered a badly broken leg. Months later, by the time the leg healed, he had run up hospital, doctors' and other bills totaling $2,481. If medicare had been in effect, he would have paid only $243. That's a saving of $2,238.

Your COPE dollar helped gave the way for medicare, for social security increases, for education and excise tax legislation. It helped bring passage this year of a flood of other progressive laws, many of which had been stalled for years.

The key to all this progress was the election in 1964 of 51 new liberals to the House of Representatives, and of course the reelection of scores of incumbent liberals. But the newcomers have spelled the difference between victory and defeat more than once. Medicare, for example, passed the House by 45 votes. Without the 51 new liberals it couldn't have made it.

The same measures that please liberals infuriate right wingers and conservatives, who are girding now for an all-out effort in 1966 to step the flow of progressive legislation. They'll aim primarily at the 51 new liberals, many of whom were elected from marginal districts and were helped greatly by President Johnson's landslide victory. But all liberals will be their targets.

The extremist John Birch Society has set its sights on a $12 million political kitty for the 1966 elections to bombard liberals with. Other right wing and conservative groups will be throwing more money and manpower into 1966 congressional elections than ever before. They don't like the returns you've been getting on your investment of a dollar for COPE. They want to cut them hack or chop them down. And they're starting now.

How about you? Have you given your buck to COPE to protect and expand the progress of the past year? It's the best investment you could make.

Council Hails Congress, Cites 'Gaps' to be Filled

Washington — Terming the first session of the 89th Congress "the most productive ever held," the AFL-CIO Executive Council called on the second session to take action on a "long list of unfinished business."

"It is in no way a reflection" on the record of the 89th thus far, the council declared, to observe that, as Pres. Johnson said, "the remaining gaps must be filled."

The council in a statement singled out failure to repeal Sec. 14(h) of the Taft-Hartley Act, thus restoring "full freedom of collective bargaining" and reducing "strife between labor and management," as a major failure of the first session.

Among other legislation left undone, the statement noted, was "the single most important measure in the war on poverty—an increase in the federal minimum wage and its extension to millions who are now denied its protection."

The House Labor Committee approved a bill to expand coverage of the wage-hour law to some 7 million workers now unprotected and to raise the statutory minimum wage from $1.25 to $1.75 an hour in a series of step-ups. The bill was never given a green light by the House Rules Committee and was not called up by the leadership.

Hoping to inspire his workers with promptness and energy, a Canadian businessman hung a number of signs reading "DO IT NOW" around his factory and office.

When he was asked some weeks later how his staff had reacted, he shook his head sadly.

"I don't even like to talk about it," he said. "The head bookkeeper eloped with the best secretary I ever had; three typists asked for an increase; the factory hands decided to go on strike and the office boy joined the navy."

Alberta Health Program

Early in September the Alberta Federation of Labor again announced its support of a Government medical health program. It has supported resolutions calling for such a program for the last five years, at each of the Federation's annual conventions. In making this year's announcement, Frank Brodie, Secretary of the Federation, said "the importance of covering everyone under the scheme is to assure all people, whether rich or poor, that their health needs can be taken care of regardless of their financial standing."

"The other important characteristics of a publicly operated health program is to provide comprehensive health care at the lowest possible cost."

The Royal Commission on Health Services, under the leadership of Chief Justice Emmett Hall, conducted an exhaustive inquiry, and recommended adoption of a comprehensive scheme. The health plan, according to the commission, is within the financial means of the country.

The construction booms in Britain and Germany have prompted the Department of Trade and Commerce to set up a trade mission to these countries, with the purpose of developing a market for Canadian construction materials and methods. As a part of a long-range plan, eight senior executives from Canadian firms that manufacture construction materials were sent on a mission to Britain and Western Europe, with a representative of the Department of Trade and Commerce. The first materials to be promoted include roofing, insulation, floor and ceiling tiles and various kinds of metal and mineral siding.

LANDMARKS OF LABOR No. 23

EUGENE V. DEBS—ORGANIZER AND CRUSADER 1855-1926

Out of the troubled Pullman strike of 1894 there emerged—just 63 years ago this month—two developments destined to leave their marks on American labor: the advent of Eugene V. Debs as a militant crusader for the working man and the adoption by the Federal Government of the use of the injunction as a weapon against unions.

In the depression of 1893 the Pullman Company laid off more than half of its 5,800 workers and cut wages from 25 to 40 per cent—but continued to pay dividends. The American Railway Union, founded and led by Eugene V. Debs, sought arbitration, but failed and was compelled to strike. The union had risen to 150,000 members and it made its economic strength felt.

Management invoked assistance even to the extremity of court injunction, despite vigorous objections of the liberal Illinois governor, John Peter Altgeld. The injunction prevailed and Debs was jailed for six months for contempt, but he became a martyr. He emerged as a leader of great stature and he dedicated his life to the workers. He ran for President of the United States five times as a Socialist. Although he failed, even his economic and political enemies grew to respect his life and his sense of dedicated service.

'Gene Debs is identified—as a victim—with the coming of "government by injunction," the introduction of which was a dark chapter in labor's history and more than 60 years later organized labor must still fight against this weapon.

THE PHAROS (LIGHTHOUSE) OF ALEXANDRIA

The famous Pharos of Alexandria was built under the direction of Sostratus of Cnidus during the reign of Ptolemy II, and went into service about the year 250 B. C. It stood on the small, rocky island of Pharos in the harbor of Alexandria — a mile out from the mouth of the Nile.

Details of doubtful authenticity have come down to us describing the 600-ft.-high massive tower of white marble which surpassed the loftiest of the pyramids, the mirrors used as reflectors, the fire kept burning nightly at its top, and the builder's scheme for immortalizing himself by cutting his name in one of the blocks and then covering the huge letters with plaster.

It is definitely known, however, that for centuries the lighthouse did guide ships in the Eastern Mediterranean with its giant beacon fires.

The structure was destroyed by an earthquake in the 13th century of our era, and its remains were said to have been visible as late as 1350.

Soon after this lighthouse was built, the word "pharos" became the general name for all lighthouses in many languages, and the term "pharology" has been used for the science of lighthouse construction up to the present day.

The American Homestead Winter, a Currier and Ives Print first published in 1868, captures some of the nostalgic feeling of the Christmas holiday season. The sleigh may be leaving for a trip to grandmother's house across the frozen river, to join in a round of good cheer and joy as presents are exchanged, and a bountiful dinner enjoyed with the family.

NATIONAL CIVIC FEDERATION 1896

The National Civic Federation, organized in Chicago in 1896, was one of the first and most significant efforts toward bringing capital, labor and the public together for the purpose of maintaining industrial peace. By the turn of the century it was a nationwide movement with such figures as Grover Cleveland and Harvard's Charles Eliot among those representing the public; Charles M. Schwab, John D. Rockefeller, Jr. and August Belmont representing employers, and John Mitchell of the Miners, James O'Connell of the Machinists and James Duncan of the Granite Cutters representing labor.

Mark Hanna, industrialist, and Samuel Gompers, AFL chieftain, were leaders in the movement which resulted in numerous labor agreements. The Civic Federation prevailed during the "honeymoon" period of labor and management and while it did not last, the efforts toward a three-way attempt to achieve labor peace and tranquillity can be chalked up as a landmark of labor.

College Construction: A Good Market for the Trades

When most of us think about elections, we think in terms of candidates, and political parties. We seldom think about the billions of dollars worth of construction activity authorized by the voters in state and local elections just about every time they go to the polls.

School, or highway, or government building bond proposals ride the tag end of a great number of the local and state election ballots, and in Mid-November, officials proposed more than $3.5 billion in construction bonds on the ballots. About 75 per cent of them were accepted by the voters.

In line with current trends, many of the bonds accepted were for educational construction. The American people are concerned enough about some of the deficiencies in our educational system, and the classroom-busting baby boom, to be willing to spend their own money to do something about it.

A total of $54.4 million of the bonds approved were for college and university construction alone, a field which is better than most for lath and plaster. The requirements for good sound-proofing, fireproofing and permanence in educational institutions—especially in the living quarters required at college level—induce many owners to specify lath and plaster.

A remarkable thing about the money approved for college and university educational construction is that the voters accepted 100 per cent of the proposals presented to them.

The F. W. Dodge forecast for 1966 construction, carried in the November issue of The LATHER (page 6), calls educational building one of the best categories for the future, "growing at a rate unlike anything seen since the grade school boom of the fifties." Mostly because of the college expansion plans all over the country, F. W. Dodge predicts a 5 per cent gain in the educational field next year.

A great deal of the driving force for this construction is coming from the Federal Government's new programs, such as the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, and the Higher Education Act.

The 1965 legislation doubled earlier authorizations for construction of undergraduate college facilities to $460 million, and $120 million for graduate level facilities.

It turns out that college housing, as distinct from the academic buildings such as classrooms, libraries, and laboratories, is one of the best fields for trade employment.

The U. S. Labor Department recently released a report that indicates money spent on college housing generates more on- and off-site work than any other kind.

For every $1000 that is spent on college housing, 94 manhours of work are created at the site, and 144 off the site. Compare this to the manhours created for every $1000 in other kinds of construction:

- Single-Family Residences: A total of 72 hours of on-site labor and 132 of off-site labor.

- Public Housing Projects: 114 hours of on-site labor, and 122 off-site.

- Civil Works: 85 hours of on-site, 123 off-site.

- Highways: 94 hours of on-site, 125 of off-site.

- Schools (elementary and secondary): 84 hours of on-site, and 128 hours off-site.

- Federal Offices: 97 hours on-site, 130 off-site.

- Hospitals: 98 hours on-site, and 134 off-site.

The Labor Department reported that there is a great variation in work requirements, depending on the size and location of the buildings. As the size of the project goes up, the cost of labor relative to the project cost declines. The larger projects are usually in large metropolitan centers, and give contractors a greater opportunity to use labor-saving devices.

Better Tools for Better Work

Anything that can create new business rather than replace old is great news, and some of the new tools promise to do just that.

Ever since man first started to flake pieces off his favorite rock, to give it a better cutting edge or to give it a shape better suited for killing his food and enemies, he's been unsatisfied with his tools, and constantly seeking ways to improve them.

Today there's a lot of change going on in the lathing trade: and most of it's good. But whenever a tool is developed that really contributes to an increase in the lather's productivity, and creates new business rather than replacing men on the old, it's even better.

At the recent Convention of the Contracting Plasterers and Lathers International Association, mechanization was one of the topics high on the list. Philosophizing a bit about the subject, a contractor who played a major role in bringing the on-site plaster pump to reality reflected that he expected mechanization of plastering to do two things: broaden the market by bringing the cost factor down, and make the contractor a better, more stable businessman by requiring him to make a greater investment in the business.

The Contractor, Joseph D. McNulty of McNulty Brothers, Chicago, feels both of these goals have been achieved, for the most part.

Although the trend to mechanization began with the plastering end of the business, a number of new devices are becoming available for the lather too. Some of them have been useful for both lathing and plastering—the broad range of material handling equipment such as hoists, power buggies, and scaffolds. The rest of the new lathing equipment, which has come along in only the last two or three years, falls into the tool category. There is the great variety of stapling equipment now available, which helps the lather do the job better and faster, for some applications, and withstands the predictable hard use. And there is also a variety of new wire tying tools.

One of the new lathing tools that is winning rapid acceptance is the hog-ringer, equivalent to the lath tyer. For some applications, they fit the job perfectly. On others, there's no substitute for hand work.

Commenting on the minor revolution in lathing tools, Plastering Industries magazine said in its November, 1965 issue: "As in all other things in modern industry, where the competitive dollar is paramount, economies increase rather than decrease the potential market for lath and plaster, and the International Unions and their leaders have been quick to give their blessings to all methods, equipment and ideas which will extend this opportunity, providing proper safety factors are considered."

One significant cost-cutter has been the introduction of pre-cut and shaped materials, as well as improved packaging and palletizing. Materials now arrive on the job site in better condition.

Large-size lath, especially in the field of thin-coat, have helped improve efficiency and increased the amount of work available. Throughout the country, the competitively-priced techniques using large size lath and veneer plaster are winning out over substitute materials, and thereby helping to keep employment up in the lathing trade.

Within a very short time, it seems likely, the lathing trade will become as mechanized as the plastering trade, which has had a head start since the second World War. The net effect should be beneficial for everyone.

Every Lather and Plasterer knows that there is no adequate substitute for lath and plaster, and the same goes for a great number of architects and builders. But too often, the people who specify the construction techniques find themselves stymied because of the cost factor.

If the lathing and plastering industry is to prosper, it must turn to faster, better techniques. "Through mechanization and ingenuity," says George Brueggeman, President of the CPLIA, "we will find a way to compete more favorably."

Power Hog-ringer ties metal lath to furring. As with staplers, they're best suited to large expanses of similar work, preferably on normal-height walls, and large ceiling areas.

Mechanical tackers and staplers have become quite popular in the lathing industry, especially for the application of Conerites and corner beads.

Anti-Labor Groups Push Alliance To Fight Union Bills in Congress

WASHINGTON, (PAI)—Between now and January 10, when the second session of the 89th Congress opens, anti-labor forces will be perfecting and shaping their campaign to block passage of repeal of Section 14(b) and other measures of direct interest to the labor movement.

A survey by Press Associates, Inc. shows that the Senate filibuster, led by Minority Leader Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois, which blocked consideration of 14(b) repeal, has given anti-labor groups new encouragement.

PAI has been informed of some of the plans which these groups will use to fight 14(b) repeal as well as other measures such as increase in minimum wage levels and coverage, modernization of unemployment compensation and situs picketing.

The anti-labor groups admit that the opposition to repeal was never worked out as an overall strategy of the first session of the 89th Congress. What happened was that a number of groups, most of which have a history of fighting unions and social and economic welfare legislation, joined the fight. However, the effect was splintered in many directions.

With the exception of General Electric, no major industries such as auto, aircraft, steel, textile, threw their support to repeal. The anti-labor groups are now going all out to enlist their backing and secure a solid front against a new repeal move in the new session.

The anti-labor groups acknowledge that they used, almost entirely, emotional arguments such as "freedom." They now admit that this approach did not impress any senators. Now, they have skilled researchers trying to dig up new "evidence" which they hope will be more convincing.

The anti-union forces also recognize that the trade union movement will engage in a strong push for four proposals: repeal of 14(b), higher minimum wages, modernization of jobless pay and situs picketing.

Their plan is to try to enlist big business into a package deal, a strong, well-financed coalition to oppose all four. They reason that even firms which have found that union shop provisions in contracts are not objectionable would join the coalition because of their interest in opposing at least one of the other three measures.

Opposition to the four measures may not be a mere negative and frontal attack.

An example is what is happening in unemployment compensation.

The National Association of Manufacturers co-sponsored, along with other business groups, a National Conference on Unemployment Compensation in Washington recently.

The conference was informed by Rep. A. Sydney Herlong, Jr. (D., Fla.) a member of the House Ways and Means Committee which will write the original bill, that legislation on jobless pay will be passed in the next session of Congress.

Herlong, Senator Carl Curtis (R., Neb.) and a number of state and industry unemployment compensation experts recommended amendments to save employers' money by holding down benefits to the jobless, stepping up the experience rating, increasing both Federal and State rates, etc.

The new approaches to labor-interest legislation, and the possibility of a far more effective and coordinated alliance against them, will test organized labor and its friends next year.

Erwin M. Lurie: Lath and Plaster Expert

Erwin M. Lurie, a professional engineer who contributed significantly to the drafting of specifications for the metal lath industry and served in many leadership posts, died recently.

Mr. Lurie joined the staff of the Associated Metal Lath Manufacturers in 1922, eight years after his graduation from the University of Illinois with a degree in civil engineering.

During his tenure with the group he contributed to the "Specifications for Metal Lath Construction." By 1930, Mr. Lurie had been made Secretary of the Association.

Mr. Lurie produced a number of well-known booklets, including "Safety from Fire," "The Partition Handbook," and "The Lurie Steel House."

During the war years, he served with the War Production Board, then managed the National Foundation for Lathing and Plastering. It was during this time—from 1945 to 1950—that he compiled the "Handbook of Recommended Specifications for Lathing, Furring and Plastering."

He served the government again as a materials and architectural engineer, and, after his retirement, joined the staff of the Building Industries Laboratory in Chicago.

NOTICE

Members are requested to stay away from Local 345, Miami, Florida. There is a shortage of work in this area, and many local workers are unemployed.

IT HANGS By Its BOOTSTRAPS

and lathers of Local 18, too, working on this Louisville building, find their work keeping them in suspense.

The owners did get more usable floor space, however, than if the building had been built in the conventional way, and the final cost, according to project architect Kelly Oliver, was no more than that for a "quality" conventionally framed structure. Reduced cost of steel framing just about balances out the increased erection cost, he says.

The five trusses on which the whole thing hangs are 96 feet long, cantilevered out 36 feet on each side of the concrete core shaft. Just below these hangars is the jutting-out canopy, which posed one of the greatest challenges in lathing on the job. Underneath the canopy, all around, is a lath and plaster soffit. Metal lath, hung on a standard suspension system, was finished in colored cement. To work on the canopy, members of Lathers Local 18, who did all of the lathing work on the building, had to suspend themselves 190 to 212 feet above the ground, on a portable scaffold which was slung about 10 feet out from the security of the wall. The scaffold was supported by $\frac{3}{8}$ inch steel rods—absolutely safe, but not absolutely convincing. And old 4-inch ship's hawser might have been more comforting, if less reliable.

The most remarkable thing about the Lincoln Life Insurance Building, in Louisville, Kentucky, is its design. Inside and out, it's styled for decoration—to please the eye, and provide an interesting place as well as a functional one in which man can work. It's in the best architectural tradition of Frank Lloyd Wright, and was designed, in fact, by his successors in Taliesin Associated architects.

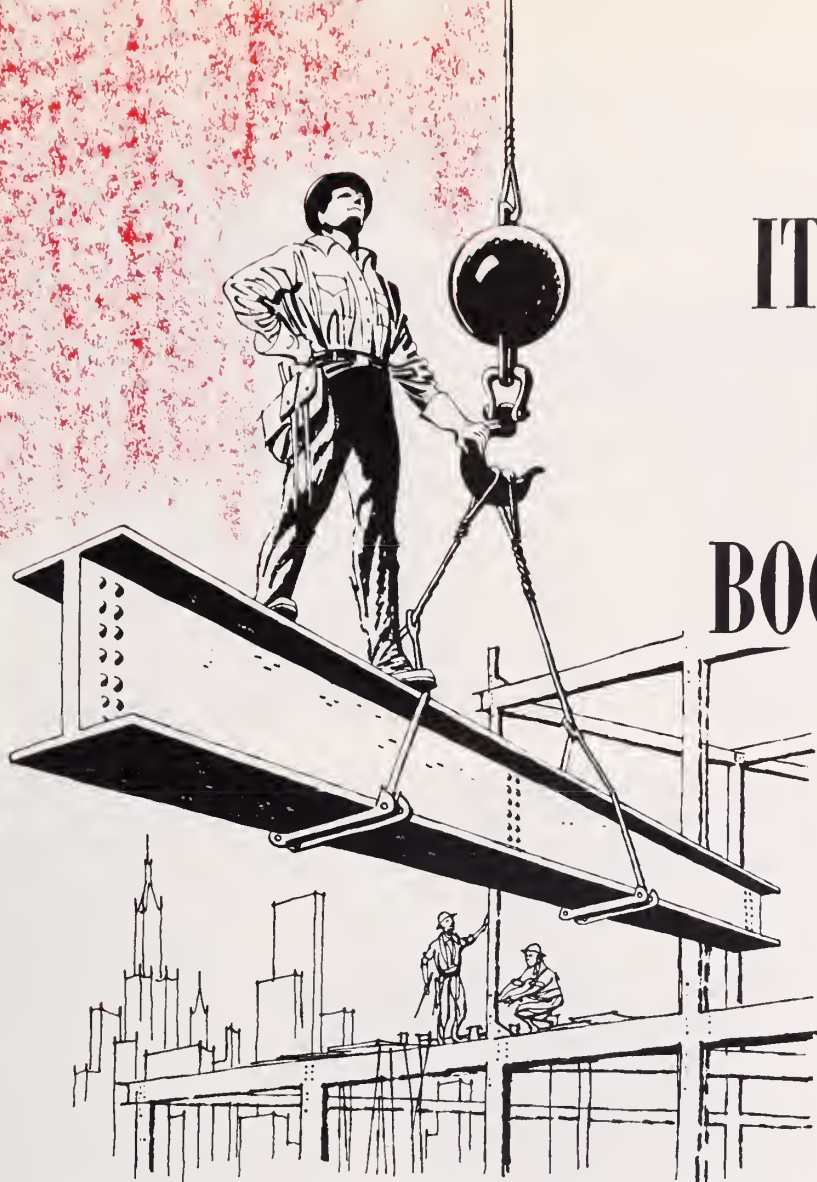

According to William E. Doll, one of the owners of the firm that handled the lathing and plastering work—William E. Doll Co., Inc.—the inside has to be seen to be appreciated. Unlike a number of modern office buildings where the exterior offers no real clue to the interior, in the Lincoln Life building they are complimentary.

In the secretary reception areas on the 12th floor, for example, there are four curving canopies over the spots where the secretaries will sit. The canopies reflect the curves of the arched, open grillwork and tracery of the precast facade.

The Lincoln Life Insurance building was built in a relatively new manner, using techniques that are just now gaining popularity in the U. S. and Europe. Instead of stacking floors and walls, layer by layer, on heavy columns, the architects of Lincoln Life building have laid some giant cantilevers on top of a massive central core of concrete, and then hung curtain walls, floors and all from them. Although architects find that the cost of construction is often reduced through this technique, Lincoln Life was actually built this way only for style. Exterior columns would have spoiled the delicacy of the lacy precast concrete curtain wall.

Canopy of one of four secretaries' positions in the Lincoln Life Insurance Building below shows decorative use of lath. Secretary sits in the "shade", and her boss, in the executive suite beyond. From her seat, she can look out through the lacy exterior curtain walls, shown almost completed at right. Lathing work on soffit under the jutting canopy was test of skill and nerve.

At right, details of more of the lathing work are visible. Metal lath over furring here, with opening for light fixture visible.

In addition to the decorative lathing work on the secretary's canopies inside, members of Local 18, under the supervision of Lathing Foreman Grant Metcalf, handled a sizable amount of interesting work. Some of the interior partitions were constructed of lath and plaster, and all of the structural supporting members which were exposed to view were fire-proofed with steel furring, metal lath, and plaster.

In the 13th floor penthouse dining room, extensive lighting troughs were constructed of lath and plaster, around the periphery of the room and as islands in the central parts of the ceiling too.

The view of the real world, from the comfort of the Lincoln Life Building, shows the effect for those inside the curtain wall facade. Mirroring some of the interior lines, the lace-work adds interest, contributes to shade for summer season, helps protect against the weather. Pattern is carried down entire outside of the building, ending one floor up from street level to give full illusion of a building hanging by itself in the air.

Apprenticeship Award Goes to Richard Parker

Richard N. Parker was cited for his exceptional support of the Joint Apprenticeship Program of the lathing industry at the awards luncheon of the CPLIA Convention. A plaque from the Joint Apprenticeship Committee was presented by Sal Maso, General President of the LIU and Jeremiah Burns, New York City lathing contractor. Both are co-chairmen of the Joint Apprenticeship Committee.

Mr. Parker was instrumental in preparing technical information for the "Guidebook for Related Instruction of Lathing Apprentices."

After receiving the award, Mr. Parker commented on apprenticeship:

"Rather than to sit and worry about an apparent lack of jobs," he warned,

"we must concern ourselves with being able to man every job that comes along. Then, with confidence, we can proceed to get more and more jobs for our industry."

"It has happened more than once, that an architect who has had the bitter experience of a job delay has decided not to use that material or trade again even though the building being designed may be for an area where there is a plentiful supply of journeymen. We must all do our part to see that work is not lost to us because we are not ready for it."

(Ed. Note: In the November issue of the Lather, page 9, our preliminary report on Mr. Parker's Award, received just at deadline, erroneously called Mr. Burns, President of the apprenticeship trust. His correct title is co-chairman of the Joint Apprenticeship Program.)

Mr. Parker's award

While Wages Languish . .

Through the continuing fog of propaganda dispersed by American industry to justify stand-pat wages, or the minimum possible increase, it's sometimes difficult to pick out the real profit picture.

Fortunately, industry has to communicate with its stockholders, and the United States Government, about what they are doing, how much profit they are making, and how much tax they are paying. Right now, enough has been said in business magazines, newspapers and Commerce Department reports, to guess that it's been a whopping good year for American business.

The third quarter of 1965 smashed all existing profit records, the AFL-CIO News Service reported.

"The traditional midsummer let-down skipped the U. S. business community this year," reported Business Week in its survey of third-quarter profits.

The Wall Street Journal in its quarterly report of profits said:

"The first 525 reports issued by publicly held corporations for the third quarter show an aggregate net income" of just under $4.213 billion, "or 16.8 percent more than the same companies earned in the like 1964 period."

Corporation profits in the third quarter "maintained the record $44 billion annual rate" scored in the first six months of the year, "far above the $37 billion pace registered in the first half of 1964," the Journal reported.

"Significantly," the survey observed, the basic steel industry "contributed little to this good showing" despite high third-quarter steel sales that may have reflected apprehension of a possible strike.

Third-quarter earnings in some other categories — aircraft makers, rubber companies, mining and metal firms — ranged from 42.6 percent above earnings in the same quarter last year to 153.7 percent.

Net earnings of corporations and business after taxes in 1964, the previous record year, reached the $37 billion level.

The projected figure of $44 billion for 1964 would mean a spectacular increase piled on top of an increase, although some economists believe that business will have a "tough time" maintaining record profits at that level in the fourth quarter, the Journal says.

This is because of anticipation that there will be inventory-cutting in the aftermath of the summer-time steel labor dispute. "Any slowdown promises to be a small one at most and would be from lofty heights indeed," the survey said.

First-quarter corporate earnings showed an increase over 1964 of 16.3 percent and second-quarter gains ran at 15.9 percent level—both of them lower than the third-quarter rise.

In addition, the Journal survey noted, profit margins continued to show a higher increase when measured as a percentage of sales.

Any pressure exerted on record profits by a cutback in steel sales in the fourth quarter may be "partially—if not fully—offset by some sizable gains expected for the auto industry," the Journal's survey noted.

"The fourth-quarter earnings increase expected for the auto industry could turn out to be immense."

Metal Lath, and channel installed by members of Local No. 46, New York, formed the foundation for a dramatic ceiling of the reception hall of the Kaufmann Conference Rooms, in the Institute of International Education, United Nations Plaza, New York. The complex suspended ceiling consists of three planes, each rising, from rear to front, at an increasing angle. Each is smoothly related to the next by tangentially connected curves of different radii. The main ceiling is suspended on isolators or springs to eliminate vibrations and to improve acoustics. Polyurethane foam rope filler for sound elimination is used in a quarter-inch space between the walls and ceiling to permit ceiling movement. The mechanical duct system above the ceiling is provided with flexible connections to eliminate vibrations.

From an 8 ft. 4 in. height at the entrance to the conference rooms, the ceiling sweeps upward to 21 ft. at the top of the two-story-high window wall. Rising to this height over a span of 40 ft., and paced by the rising planes of the ceiling convolutions, the change gives to the hall a dramatic quality and a stately height, into which the visitor moves from the more accustomed domestic scale of the entrance way.

The walls of the conference room are formed in similarly designed irregularity, opening outward by stages from a 27 ft. width at the rear to a width of 49 ft. at the window wall. No two planes of the side walls are parallel to each other, and only a small portion of one of the side walls is at right angles to the rear and the front walls. The walls and the smoothly curving tangential radii of their several planes, were formed of channel, metal lath and plaster, over this assembly, light-finished American ash paneling was emplaced to picture rail height. Clusters of tiny birch rods, glued in hexagonal section, were affixed vertically, to the face of the paneling, from baseboard to ceiling, 12 in. on center.

The plastering was done by McKeown Plastering Co., Inc. General contractor was John Lowry, Inc. Each is located in New York City.

Metal lath and plaster ceiling of the Reception Room sweeps upward to 21 feet at the top of the two-story wall at right. In elevator lobby, center, self-furring metal lath was base for white cement plaster, set with tiles. Center picture shows decorative elements at other end of room.

Designed by Alvar and Elissa Aalto, architects, of Helsinki, Finland, the project was coordinated by Harrison & Abramovitz & Harris, New York City-based architects. The latter firm designed and supervised the construction of the Institute of International Education Building, on the 12th floor of which the Kaufmann Conference Rooms are located. The Institute carries on a broad program of two-way international exchange in education.

Lathing, including the execution of complex ceiling and wall designs handled by Local No. 46 lathers under the supervision of lathing foreman Martin McInerney. Lathers regularly on the job were William Murtha, Robert Slane, William Downey, William Hess and John Fabrizi. Lathing Contractor was Leonard C. Adams Co. Inc., Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

We like to recall the story of the old country character, who was approached by the local political candidate seeking support in the election. "Dunno," said the farmer. "I've been reading where your opponent has some mighty fine points in his favor!"

"But Zeke," protested the candidate, "I've been your friend for life. I signed a note for your loan, so you and your bride could get that car and go on your honeymoon. I helped you arrange your father's will, handled it for nothing, and saved you close to $2,000 on your farm purchase contract. Then, when your kids got grown, I helped you get one of them a scholarship and the other an appointment to Annapolis. And you're going to vote against me?"

"Well," drawled Zeke, "it's all true, what you've said, but that's been a long time ago. What have you done for me lately?"

Gratitude, it seems, can be short lived, and we're all guilty of the short memories at one time or another. With union organizations like the LIU, very often the members recall the "recently" more often than they do the "back when." But right now, perhaps surprisingly, your union is doing something just as concrete as the work that originally brought the LIU into being.

Too many members, unfortunately, think only about dues when they think about their union. Sure, it costs money to belong, but let's look at the other side of the picture. What do the dues actually contribute to your well being—right now?

First, of course, they support the organization which negotiates collective bargaining agreements, makes sure that contractors are bonded to guarantee your wages; makes sure the proper deductions are withheld for full benefit from Social Security, Workmen's Compensation, and related programs.

But secondly, and perhaps more important, dues work for members of the LIU in the way that they do for members of all international unions—in the halls of Congress, the corridors of Government bureaus, to keep wage rates up, fringe benefits sound and improving.

Dues also enable the international

to support a staff of trained people who are available on a moment's notice to go to wherever there is a need for them, and iron out trouble on the spot. They know the law, and they know organizing.

The more dues-paying members in the lathers International Union, the more complete its programs can be. It's easy to imagine the results of a single individual trying to negotiate on an individual basis with an employer! But if there is a multitude of people negotiating—the ear is far more likely to be bent in the right direction, and the results to be favorable.

You can't hear the shout of a single individual several blocks down the street: but the united roar of every lather, pulling together, can come through loudly and clearly.

It is a fact that union pay checks are fatter and union jobs more secure today than those for non-union jobs. This has been proven by independent surveys. The University of Michigan, for example, has discovered that union families, as a group, have achieved higher levels of income than comparable non-union families. They have larger holdings in terms of cash in the bank, can sign up for a larger slice of installment buying, and have more homes, per family, than non-union workers.

So in addition to the long-range inheritance which has been handed down to you from those dues-paying members who have gone before, you can actually see the difference, if you know what to watch for, at the corner grocery store.

Those who are so inclined may consider their dues, and their union membership as "expense" items. When the facts are on the table, it's clear that they are really "income." The opportunity to pay for them, and receive all of the benefits that comes with them, turns out to be a privilege, instead of a burden. Think about this next time your deduction falls due. Look at the other blocks on your pay sheet. That's were the full story of the dues deduction is told.

Old-Timers' Testimonial in Allentown

Shown above in the center of the photo is Brother Herb W. Shankweiler, a charter member of Local 401, Allentown, who was the only charter member present for an old-timers celebration held by the Local in Allentown recently. All members who had been in the local for 25 years or more were feted at the banquet. In addition to Brother Shankweiler, old-timers were: Henry J. Sassaman, 42 years; Garry Frey, 42; James Cusatis, 40; Richard J. Duggan, 37; Joseph Tranguch, 31; Charles A. Carr, 25; Paul G. Frank, 25 and Frank Takacs, 25. At the left of Brother Shankweiler in the photo is LIU General President Sal Maso. At right, General Secretary-Treasurer J. Earl Ferguson.

LET'S KEEP THE KIDS IN SCHOOL

Right now, the weak students are most sorely tempted to leave. Don't let them do it!

At Christmas time, the pressures on low-income students to drop out of school and get a job are hard to resist. They want to be able to share a good, bountiful Christmas with their family, and to have that understandably good human feeling that they have contributed to it, instead of just taking.

All of us know some likely candidates. We can sympathize with their feelings. Perhaps, because our own lives are reasonably well ordered, we have a tendency to think that they may be right. Nothing could be farther from the truth. In the last generation, or in fact in the last ten years, conditions of employment have changed so radically that success in any field argues against the high school quitter.

President Johnson, last August, organized his Youth Opportunity Campaign, aimed at keeping young people in school. Right now, the campaign is being intensified, in order to try to help these sorely tempted young people.

In addition to the financial pressures of the season, winter is a time when the borderline student begins to think that he has come up against a dead end once more. Time is running out on yet another semester, and prospects for getting through this one, let alone the next, seem poor. But dropping out of school might well be the mistake of a lifetime.

Here are the facts about schooling, and the solid reasons for putting up a good fight to make it through:

LIFETIME EARNINGS:

- A college graduate earns nearly two-thirds more than a high school graduate.

- The high school graduate earns over three-fourths more than a person who did not finish eight years of school.

- There is a strong correlation between low income families and the tendency to drop out of school. Last October, 553,000 school dropouts were residing with families with incomes of less than $3,000 a year. Forty percent of all dropouts were in families with incomes below this level.

EMPLOYMENT AND UNEMPLOYMENT:

- In August 1965, the unemployment rate for young people was 9.7 percent, more than two times that for all workers in the labor force.

- The unemployment rate for school dropouts, age 16 to 21, is 16.6 percent, almost four times the national average.

- The unemployment rate for everyone 18 years and over who do not finish high school is 6.6 percent—as compared to 3.4 percent for high school graduates.

- Unemployment rates of graduates and dropouts 16 to 24, in October of 1964, were these:

	Graduates Dropouts
Both Sexes	8.2	13.6
Male	6.8	11.2
Female	9.5	18.9
White	7.3	12.8
Nonwhite	16.1	16.3

THE SCOPE OF THE DROPOUT PROBLEM:

- In October of 1964, 14.1 million young people, 16 to 24, were out of school. Some 5.1 million, or 36 percent of them were school dropouts.

- During this school year, more than 750,000 boys and girls will drop out of school without having attained a high school diploma unless something effective is done about it.

- Six of ten of the Nation's school dropouts are in the 16- to 17-year-old age bracket.

- If the problem of school dropouts continued at its present pace, we could anticipate having 32 million adult, non-high school graduates in the labor force by 1975.

These unfortunate dropouts would be bucking the tide. The number of unskilled jobs available declines with each passing year. Almost every one of the "new" jobs, created by our advances in technology, requires at the very least a high school diploma.

In his Youth Opportunity program, the President has urged young people troubled by the urge to dropout to seek advice, and told them where to find it—"Your parents, the teachers you like, the adult you respect must"

We all hope the troubled ones will ask. If you know any, ask them first. And if some come to you, remember that they deserve the best advice you've got.

Metal Lath Association Elects Officers

The Metal Lath Association announced election of new officers recently. Re-elected president of the Metal Lath Association was Julian D. Waxman, president of the Goldsmith Metal Lath Company, Cincinnati. Gilbert J. Casey, sales manager of metal lath for Republic Steel Manufacturers Division, Youngstown, Ohio, was re-elected vice president. Richard N. Parker was renamed managing director of the Association which has its headquarters in the Engineers Building, Cleveland.

Frank M. Bell was appointed chairman of the promotional committee, and Alfred A. Smith was made chairman of the technical committee.

A 50th Anniversary

Family and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Casserlie gathered to wish both of them continued happiness and health recently, as they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. Mr. Casserlie has devoted a lifetime to the lathing trade and to Local 2, Cleveland, Ohio.

The Casserlie's children and grandchildren were responsible for planning the surprise party that brought hundreds of old friends together.

Brother Casserlie retired a short while ago from active participation in the trade, after having served as an official in various Local 2 offices. He has always been a staunch supporter of union goals and policies, and been a member of the LIU since February 1, 1918.

Two of Brother Casserlie's sons, Tom and Don, have taken up the trade, and are now working as members of Local 2.

At the right, Mr. and Mrs. Casserlie with cake. Below, the celebrants and their full house of grandchildren, all eleven of them.

A Liberal House-Full, by a Margin of 51

ONE figure expresses the change in the House of Representatives from the days when the Dixiecrat-conservative GOP coalition rode high blocking good legislation to the progressive record established in the first session of the 89th Congress.

It is 51.

That's the number of new liberals you helped elect to the House in 1964. They made the difference between victory and defeat for much crucial Great Society legislation—a good point to remember in view of the 1966 congressional elections coming up.

You don't need a computer to figure out what would have happened on some of the votes listed below without the 51 new liberals.

Issue	Vote
Appalachia aid (passage)	257-165
Medicare (motion to kill rejected)	236-191
Urban Development Dept. (passage)	217-184
Housing (effort to kill rejected)	208-202
Anti-Poverty (effort to kill rejected)	227-178
14-b Repeal (effort to kill rejected)	223-200
14-b Repeal (passage)	221-203
Public Works (approval to increase funds)	196-194
Farm Bill (passage)	221-172
Immigration (effort to limit Western Hemisphere immigration to 115,000 a year rejected)	218-189

It was passage of issues like those listed above, plus other important legislation, that earned the first session of the 89th Congress praise of the AFL-CIO Executive Council as "the most productive Congressional session ever held." Following are descriptions of some of the landmark legislation enacted:

- Medicare—Enacted after a 20-year struggle. Brings hospital care for the elderly under the social security program. Provides option plan to help pay for doctors' and related fees.

- Social Security—Benefits increased seven percent retroactive to Jan. 1, 1965. Increased earnings of recipients permitted without loss of benefits. Liberalized provisions for widows, disabled and dependents.

- Public Education—First major program of federal aid to public elementary and secondary schools. Primary aim: to help children of the poor break out of poverty cycle through education. More than 90 percent of counties in U. S. will benefit.

- Taxes—Excise taxes slashed on long list of consumer goods. Average family will benefit by savings of $57 annually, according to U.S. Treasury Department.

- War on Poverty—Series of programs including special aid to 11-state Appalachia area; broad planning for regional development through public works; Operation Head Start to give children of the poor preschool training; Neighborhood Youth Corps to help jobless youngsters; VISTA, a domestic peace corps.

- Housing—Stepped-up construction of low-rent public housing, grants for home improvements for homeowners earning less than $3,000 a year, housing for the elderly. Break-through rent subsidy plan to help poor meet rent payments for decent housing, though enacted as part of bill, was squeezed out by Congress' refusal to appropriate funds. President Johnson has vowed to fight to restore it next year.

- Aid to Cities—Enactment of law creating new Department of Housing and Urban Development. Gives urban-dwellers voice at Cabinet level for first time. Will coordinate all programs of federal aid to cities, helping them deal with problems of transportation, education, housing, development of community facilities.

- Health—In addition to medicare, a sweeping series of measure to improve the health of Americans, the quality of their care. Among the bills: regional medical centers to attack cancer, heart disease, stroke and other killer diseases; grants for staffing community mental health centers; increased funds for construction of health research facilities; grants to improve medical libraries and their services; expansion of grant programs for training of health personnel and for loans to students in specified health fields.

New Democratic Party Looks Good in Canadian Poll

The only political party that came out of the Canadian general elections with enhanced prestige and with its best showing since its founding in 1961, was the labor-supported New Democratic Party.

When the polls were closed and the count in, the NDP, which was founded barely four years ago with labor and liberal support, held 21 seats up from the 17 it won in the 1963 election and the 16 it scored in its first campaign in 1962.

On the contrary, the Liberal party of Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson came up with 128 seats, barely two more than it held previously and considerably less than Pearson had hoped to win when he called for elections this year.

The Conservative Party of former Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker, also failed in its bid to oust the Liberals from power, gaining four seats to reach a total of 99, far less than it needed.

Except for the New Democratic Party, the other minority parties lost strength, particularly the highly conservative Social Credit Party which not only split between Western Canada and Quebec, but lost at least four seats in the process.

Except for the New Democratic Party, the Canadian election, as one political observer put it, was largely "an exercise in futility."

Tommy Douglas, chief of the New Democratic Party easily won reelection from suburban Vancouver. Vice President David Lewis also was re-elected in Toronto. Among union members either elected or reelected were Norman Fawcett, a railroader, from outlying Sudbury; Arnold Peters, former Steelworker and Woodworkers, and Murdo Martin of the Fire Fighters, both from Toronto.

As in the past, Pearson must now depend on the minority parties — particularly the New Democratic Party—to put his program in effect. As explained during the campaign by Tommy Douglas, the party will support Pearson on all measures that add to the social and economic welfare of the Canadian people.

One of the most important measures now under debate is a universal medicare plan along the lines of the one now established in the Province of Saskatchewan. Pearson has promised such a program and will be pressed by the New Democratic Party to carry out the promise.

Other measures which the New Democratic Party will support include increases in old-age pensions and measures to stimulate the Canadian economy.

Another highly important measure is "redistribution" of seats in the Canadian Parliament—a problem that parallels that of "redistricting" in the United States. Canada suffers from the same problem of rural domination through district boundaries that are long out of date. The New Democratic Party wants a fair distribution of seats on the "one man one vote" principle and will be pressing Pearson to carry this out.

Pearson wanted a majority mandate from the Canadian people, that is, a majority of the 265 seats in Parliament. He failed in attaining this, barely holding his own and still dependent on minority support. The Conservatives hoped to knock him out of power entirely. Neither gained what it wanted.

Union Membership At Record Level

The Department of Labour's annual survey of labour organizations has indicated that union membership in Canada at the beginning of 1965 was at a record high of 1,589,000. Membership was higher by almost 96,000 than in January of the previous year, a net gain of 6.4 per cent and the highest percentage increase in any year since 1956.

The survey shows that almost three-quarters of all union members were in organizations affiliated with the Canadian Labour Congress. In most cases these unions were also affiliated with the American Federation of Labour and the Congress of Industrial Organizations. Another 9.4 per cent of the total union membership in 1965 was in organizations affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions. Unaffiliated international and national unions accounted for 12 per cent, while 3 per cent was in independent local organizations.

Union members constituted 29.7 per cent of the 5,343,000 non-agricultural paid workers in Canada as of January 1965, and 23.2 per cent of the total labour force.
